Past Presidents Kinsmen Club Are Entertained

It was past presidents' night at the Kinsmen Club on Monday evening when nine of the club presidents were present since the inauguration of the club in 1933 were present.

These included Bill McIntosh, first club president, and Matt Currie of Simcoe, formerly with the Bank of Montreal in Belleville, who came the farthest to attend the entertainment. A number of the former presidents were unable to attend but sent telegrams voicing their regrets.

All former presidents at the meeting set at a special table and all gave brief resumes of Kinsmen days, recalling the early days of the club, the year which they acted as the club head. Bill McIntosh recalled the inauguration of the club, stating only a half dozen members at that time belonged to the club. Today there are approximately 75 members.

President in Chair

Ernest of the club, Frank Lang, opened the meeting and turned the gavel over to Norm Gatsuh, who acted as chairman for the balance of the night. Seated at the head table were Matt Currie, Orliff Lloyd, Harry Rollins, Gardiner Duff, Arthur Wright, Bill Tilden, Norm Garbutt, Bill McIntosh and Newton Wilson.

Former presidents unable to attend and who forwarded regrets were: Carl Gibbard, Maxwell, Keith Scott, and Bill Hurst.

Club entertainment took the setting "Shoot the Works" vaudeville and quiz show with 27 performers to the cast on June 13th. The show is shorty commencing a Canadian tour and will open in Belleville after a six-day stand at Toronto.

Members discussed the election of club officers which will take place at the next meeting and also plans for the district Kinsmen convention which will be held in the city. Bill McIntosh favored with two much-appreciated solos.

SEVEN PERSONS KILLED

Cairo, April 27 (Reuters) — Seven persons were killed and 23 buried in debris when a five-storey apartment block in the old city of Cairo collapsed late Tuesday night.

Firemen dug throughout the night in an attempt to reach the 23 reported missing.

The fire brigade commandant said it would take all men two days to move the tons of masonry, bricks and twisted girders which had been a block of 17 apartments.

There were 93 persons in the building when it fell with a roar and a blinding swirl of dust. Sixty-three escaped.

Veterans' Homes in Churchill Heights Officially Opened With Six Houses Occupied

Six house-hungry war veterans, their wives and children, had dreams fulfilled Tuesday afternoon as they were allotted the first six of 103 wartime houses to be completed in the city.

Keys for the shiny new houses, complete with five rooms, bath, full sized basement and furnace, were turned over to the lucky veterans in a brief ceremony at which Central Mortgage and Housing officials, members of city council, and others took part.

Then two of the new houses were thrown open for inspection by the happy new tenants, by veterans and their wives who still are looking for shelter in homes, and by other interested members.

The six new houses in the Churchill Heights housing development are to be occupied Wednesday by their new tenants. The balance of the 103 rental homes will be allocated just as soon as streets and services are readied. Rents for the homes is $42.50 per month.

Administrator, Chairman

Chairman for the brief keypassing ceremonies was Harold Merwater, housing administrator for Central Mortgage and Housing. He introduced J. Morland Parkwood Heights was turned to commencement at which today saw 265 homes completed or under construction, this including the 103 rental homes.

Home Important

Alderman Angus Duffy stated there was no finer accomplishment than to build a house and turn it over to a veteran and his family who were desperately in need of living accommodation. There is nothing more important than homes, he said.

Alderman Don Thomas, himself veteran of World War II presented the key of the first house to Allen Elliott, former member of the Royal Canadian Regts. Mr. and Mrs. Elliott and their three children will occupy the new residential today have been living in two rooms, with sink privileges.

"It is going to be just about heaven for us," Mrs. Elliott assured as she accepted the keys and completed the shiny new kitchen and the new bath.

"Why," she said, "there's even taps for laundry tubs in the basement. Where we've been living they was nothing at all."

Other Aldermen presenting keys to the remaining five fortunate veterans were Aldermen Tice, Brown, Wilbur and Allen.

Thos. Give Blessing

Other veterans and their wives to be allocated houses yesterday were Mr. and Mrs. Eric G. Law and their three small boys; Mr. and Mrs. Grant Sickle, their two children and girls; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Dracup and their three small sons; Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Tinkess and their two children and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Stewart and their three small girls.

Max Matthews, president of the local branch of the Canadian Legion, stated the Legion appreciated the fact veterans had gained something for which they had long looked forward.

"Those years ago the Legion canvassed the city to learn the need of housing accommodation," he said. "Today we see the fulfilment of that canvass."

But he went further and stated there was need for still additional houses in Belleville — houses were needed for veterans and for fewer points.

Other speakers, heard included Bert More, of James More and Sons, contractors for the veterans' houses; Frank Bateman, trustees, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce.

All houses are built to comply with the standards of construction as laid down by the National Housing Act and National Building Code. There are major differences between this project and the former Allen Allegra, Secretary Hardwick and others. Art Stewart gave his idea of a good square meal — Indian war dance, the Highland Fling, and a grass-skirted Hondoha maiden, in an impromptu dance.

Special prizes were given the individual champion. A.-Whalen won the prize for high single with a score of 299. Jack Allen bagged the high triple with 804 while the veteran bowler Jon Lee has walked off with the high average prize with a neat 229.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, April 27 — (CP) Western oils chalked up small gains in an otherwise dull and narrow session on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Industrials were a little weak at the opening but tended firmer in mid-session. Golds and base metals showed some mild advances.

Volume for the first three hours was 317,000 shares, about 54,000 shares less than yesterday's similar period.

Industrials mixed gains and losses in fractional range with a few key issues among the gainers. Minnesota and Ontario paper tightened in papers and a few utilities, foods and banks improved. Textiles were lower and steels and refining oils mixed.

Modest Musical Comedy Mentor Gives Away Footlight Secrets

"This will be one of the best shows ever produced in Belleville", mused Maestro Ted Schwab gently stroking a rich reddish undergrowth of beard.

The popular impresario, producer of Kiwanis Club amateur shows for the past three or four years, was speaking of his current footlight brainchild the 1949 edition of "Pack Up Your Troubles", scheduled for Collegiate Institute auditorium on May 16 through May 19.

The veritable Schwab jumped slightly as a sharp-pointed whisker barb pricked a finger. "This show," he murmured...oud enough for a nearby newspaperman to hear, "will be one of the razzle-dazzleiest extravaganzas ever presented to a Belleville and district audience. Last year's edition as well as those previous to it will fade into nothingness compared to what we plan to stage this year."

Musical Melange

"Twill be a musical melange of mirth, pulchritude, side-splitting comedy, vocalizing that will make the Met. stars sound like amateurs, dancing which is out of this world, and in general a stage production that will thrill audiences down to their collective backsides", quoth this modest young maestro.

"I don't want this mentioned in the newspaper", he sighed, casting a quizzical glance at the newspaperman, "but if you must, of course, I must permit it to be published. You can say (chest expanded at this moment) that the Kiwanis "Pack Up Your Troubles" will not only lay 'em in the aisles, but also pick 'em up and put 'em in taxis after the performance."

Comedy Quartet

"Pantinance" Maestro Schwab continued after much prompting "we have one of the best comedy quartets this side of Radio City. Bud Cavanaugh, Bill Bankier, Ed. Waterhouse and Percy Marcus, will transmitch 'em in the sides with their hilarious antics. This feature be one of the outstanding numbers of the show."

"The honorable Ted, squinted a sharp optic at the scribe." I don't want to take up too much space in your paper," he said, a suspicious lump asserting itself in the assistant cheek." "but I would like to be quoted as saying that the orchestra composed of the finest musicians in the city will once more be under the direction and baton of one Reg. Hinchey. That name alone is sufficient to guarantee that the music will be the best obtainable."

All Stars on Hand

The diminutive maestro sighed. "You don't have to use this statement," he said, "I know you are very busy and would rather not be quoted. But off the record I might say that all the stars of the former shows will be on hand plus a few surprises that will rock the city. We have new features, new faces and new music."

Slowly he picked his 125 pounds off the park bench, Head bowed he slowly walked away. The scribe pinched himself to make sure he was awake and sauntered in the general direction of Victoria Park.

A yell rent the air. "Hey," come back the Schwabian baritone, "I forgot to mention (you don't have to print this) that there will be a chorus of forty voices."

"And" he added in after thought "in case you are in the market for pasteboards, the tickets will be on sale this weekend at Bill Cook's cigar emporium or any Kiwanian will be pleased to supply you."

"Adieu, chum" gurgled the sparsely thatched musical mentor. "and remember all I have said is in the strictest confidence. I don't want any libel suits on my hands so please don't print what I said." We concurred.

Bata Bowling League Starts The Playoffs

The Bata bowling league got under way in the first round of the playoffs Monday night, and brought several upsets. The fourth place Agros trounced the highly favored second place Engineers, who were predicted by most to win the league championship. The Spitfires took two games from the Whammies in the other first division playoff. In the second division, the lowly Falcons upset the Spartons, taking two games and stopping the other by only twenty-one pins. The Orphans took two games from the Blazers.

Standings for Playoffs:

First Division

Teams	Won	Lost
Agros	3	0
Spitfires	2	1
Engineers	0	3

Second Division

Falcons	2	1
Orphans	2	1
Blazers	1	2
Spartans	1	2

Three same teams tangle again next Monday night in the last three games of their six game playoff series.

Letter to the Editor

Wants Square Deal For War Veteran

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer

I would like to bring a matter to the attention of the veterans and the people of Belleville, where I think the Board of Education are doing a great injustice both to a fine soldier and to themselves.

When a teacher in a Belleville public school gives up his position to go to war, sees a lot of fighting, is decorated for distinguished service and returns with the rank of major, the Board should be pleased to give him the first promotion his seniority permits. This is the record of Lt. Col. Cousins of our city.

One of our public schools has a vacancy for principal for which he is nowentitled on the count of seniority. His record as a teacher is excellent.

The Board, on the ground that he does not hold a B.A. certificate proposes to appoint a young man who only joined the Belleville school staff during the war. This is a fairly recent idea or ruling on the part of somebody. Churchill never got a B.A. Teaching is character and the respect of the pupils is the greatest thing that public schools require. Col. Cousins answers to all these requirements.

It is up to the veteran organizations and the citizens of Belleville to see that public promises are made good. If things like this can happen, the servicemen might as well shut-up shop. A good soldier deserves a square deal.

P. H. WILLS,
Belleville,

OF ONE'S OWN FREE WILL

The individual citizen's participation in movements dedicated to the common good is seen as vitally necessary by Dr. Charlotte Whitton, C.B.E., in an article which appeared in Toronto Saturday Night and in another article by Dr. Gordon Bates, general director of the Health League. Dr. Whitton declares that "an integral part of the structure of traditional freedom is the citizen's participation as a volunteer in the planning, financing and actual administration of the welfare agencies of the community." She says that the right of the individual to do what he wants to do for others, of his own free will, no less than what he must do, under the law, is a very real privilege of the free" and "the association of free citizens in voluntary organizations for these purposes is a characteristic of vigorous democracy."

Dr. Bates feels that there is a greater danger that the importance of voluntary association may be forgotten and therefore he says that governments need the support of popular education to pass laws which will benefit the health of the people. Things should, he says, be done by means of which seeing that sane health objectives, which governments can achieve, are made possible and that the best instrument is undoubtedly the voluntary society.

LOOKING FORWARD

Thoughts of many are ahead of the season at this time for they peer into the future and see themselves on the weekend drive, which has been so popular for decade after decade, on their way to the summer cottage for the halcyon portion of the year when the birds are with us and all nature is throbbing with new life.

Some have driven so much that possibly the vision of pleasures to come may not be as clear as if they drove less and looked to the weekend journeys as to something fresh. However that may be, the car is the conveyance which has helped to transform the manners and habits of this age and will continue changing them.

The weekend with winter cleared away becomes something so appealing to the motorist that he is found on the highways and roads in great numbers, making his way through traffic in all directions and especially away from the centres of civilization to the open spaces where nature reigns with her flowers, her scents, and all her wild life.

Beyond this lies to the contemplation of the prospect when another vacation will open with all its charm. More and more the roads will be crowded with motor cars by the thousands who hear the call of the road and the great outdoors, of the beaches and the cabins, where the people throw off some of the shackles of customs and of the other seasons and feel freedom in the presence of nature.

It would be difficult to discover a prospect more pleasing than vacation in Canada's summerlands anywhere from the Pacific to the Atlantic.

While Canadians are appealing for visitors from the United States and elsewhere to visit Canada's treasure vaults of enjoyment in her grand expanse of land, they themselves will not forget the charm of an endless variety of places in any one of the ten provinces which call to Canadians and to their guests.

ROMANCE TODAY

The raft "Ton Kiki" which carried six young scientists headed by Norwegian ethnologist Thor Heyerdahl across the Pacific as it drifted in the summer of 1947 from Peru to the Tuamotus Islands is to be housed in a building near Oslo according to an Oslo report. The 100-day drift across the Pacific was to prove the proposition that ancient Indians of South America could have made long western voyages and settled in the Polynesian group of islands.

The drift of this raft was accepted as an explanation of the theory that Indians could have crossed the Pacific in such a manner and reached the far eastern Pacific Islands.

The days of discovery are not yet ended and interests in many fields are to be found for the modern boy, youth and man, woman and girl. Who has not thrilled with the thought of taking part in such momentous ventures as the polar journeys. There remains enough appeal for everyone. Of course the thrill could not be so great as that felt by Leif Ericson or Christopher Columbus yet there is plenty of romance in this present day, such as the spirit of adventure and the thrill of investigation felt by the Heyerdahl party drifting the ocean wide to support a theory and perhaps to make a new discovery.

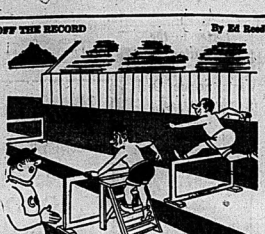
Age and sorrow have the gift of reading the future by the past. — Farrar.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST
(Copyright, 1940, Edgar A. Guest)

FOR A FEW SECONDS

A minute late or soonerr and what difference does it make!
Well, to be that minute sooner desperate chances some will take.
They weave into the traffic in a reckless way and wild;
At high speed they turn the corners, and sometimes they kill a child.



To be that minute sooner at the place they wish to reach,
Some drive the streets so madly that the car brakes fairly screech.

They break every rule of safety and I say it to their shame:
They forget the old and crippled, and the blind they're apt to maim.

A minute late or sooner. Would it seem too long to wait?
Would it spoil the evening supper just be a minute late?
Would the difference really matter if with care you chose to drive
And you hadn't hurt another, and had reached your home alive?

Mackenzie's Column
Western Allies Move Cautiously On Latest Offer

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Assistant Foreign Editor)

The western allies are moving cautiously, though hopefully, to make sure they are accepting a real peace, and not a mirage in the starting Soviet offer to lift the German blockade.

The Russians have stated their willingness to abandon the blockade if the democracies in turn will end their counter - blockade and agree to a meeting of the Council of Foreign Ministers to consider the whole German question.

The western powers are prepared to agree, provided the Russians have no further conditions up their sleeves.

The western allies are asking themselves: "Can Moscow's offer be a trick to prevent the creation of the German government so that Russia can get complete control of a unified German regime which would include the Soviet zone?

Will go Ahead

Last there be any doubt regarding the attitude of the western allies, I have from a high crystal clear that they are going ahead with the creation of the German government in the zones controlled by the three powers.

The date for its inauguration has been set for July 15. The second naturally ignored Russia which occupies the east one-third of the old Reich.

Here it should be well noted that the western German leaders met at a conference recently. They hope a prosperous west German republic will be so attractive to the Germans in the Soviet zone that a union of the two will be brought about.

Menace of Europe

In any event, the creation of the republic not only will go far towards restoring the morale of western Germany but bids fair to give a big boost to the ailing economic situation in western Europe. As this column has emphasized so often, pre-war Germany was the mainspring of the European economy. She can approach that status, and perhaps equal it again, especially if the eastern zone can be added to the republic.

Will this encourage the growth of a new militarism in Germany? The allies have created safeguards against that. While the new government will end when the republic is inaugurated, the occupation statute will appoint civilian high commissioners who will exercise control over the German Council of Calculis.

Business Keeps On Upgrade

By FORBES REDDE
(Canadian Press Business Editor)

Canadian statistics continue on the upgrade.

Dividend payments by corporations for April reached the best level for any corresponding month in years, says a release by a Toronto investment firm. (J. F. Mackie and Co.).

The total was $25,051,255, compared with $24,154,438 and $20,183,886 respectively for April of 1939 and 1940.

Cumulative total of $142,420,021 for the first four months of the year is an increase from $127,994,766 for the comparative period of 1947.

Utilities as a group pay the release, were leaders in the month's overall improvement. April payments by utilities were $5,510,151, against $4,550,838 a year ago, and $4,361,467 two years ago. This gain is largely accounted for by the April 15th payment of the Bell Telephone Co. of Canada as a result of the recent stock offering to shareholders.

Other developments:

Department store sales advanced 15 per cent in the week ending April 6th, compared with the same week a year ago.

President Douglas B. Grieg told yesterday's annual meeting of Ford Motor Co. of Canada, Ltd., Windsor, that the company expects to sell more cars and trucks this year than in 1939.

President H. G. Hilton of Steel Company of Canada told the company's annual meeting at Hamilton that sales for the first months of this year are again a record.

western Germany's foreign affairs, foreign trade and various other fields.

Will this create there's another way of looking at the Russian offer? There is the blockade. It could be that the Soviet finds she is being hurt more than she is hurting the western allies by maintaining the blockade. It won't be long before that point is cleared up.

HOW OLD AT FORTY-FIVE?

According to physiology textbooks used in the public schools when you and I were young, Mac, the average person reaches the maximum mineral matter in the bones we nearly half and half in youth, and in old age the mineral was 75% and 25% organic matter. I still prevails among the laity, and some physicians seem to share it. The imaginary "excess of mineral matter" (calcium or lime) sufficiently accounts for the fact that the bones of elderly people are more liable to fracture.

The truth is that the ordinary diet is more deficient in calcium than in any other element. As a result adults experience a steady, long continued loss of calcium through the years. This may not become manifest for a considerable time, because use great calcium stores in the cones are constantly drawn upon to make up for the calcium deficiency in the blood and tissues. Eventually this constant depletion makes the bones more fragile.

Depletion of the calcium in the bones is what produces the condition known as osteoporosis. This says osteoporosis is "absorption of bone so that it becomes unusually porous and fragile, occurring esp. in old age." Osteoporosis would seem to that trend in premature old age," for the majority of fractures or classification of adults past 45 or 50 show more or less osteoporosis.

Chief reason why the ordinary American diet is deficient in calcium is the inadequate consumption of milk. I have harped (let it pass) on this subject so often so much that I sometimes wonder if I am not becoming a nuisance. Such a to-do over my unenthusiasm for homogenized, pasteurized and standardized milk! The basic health diet must include a quart-and-a-half of milk, whole fresh milk or the equivalent in milk products, every day.

Milk is the best source of calcium. Other foods contain some calcium but because it contains a large amount of readily available of calcium in the intestine, and because it contains some vitamin D, which is essential for utilization and retention of calcium in the body.

Dr. Ernst P. Boas (Threatment of the Diet, Lea and Febiger, textbook not available to laymen) describes the "sudden, severe, painful cramps in the muscles of the calf, common in elderly persons. They come on at night — are unknown...unrelated to circulatory changes in the legs. calcium and phosphorus in meta- not appear to be useful..."

I suspect Dr. Boas has fallen into the error which a good many medical men have fallen into about the use of calcium therapeutically, that is, as a remedy for anything. They fail to bear in mind the physiological fact that vitamin D is ineffective, if it is not essential for, the utilization of calcium and phosphorus in metabolism. I have a pamphlet on Adult Tetany and Growing Pains" (Rickets) which regardless of you provide stamped self addressed envelope and do not send a clipping) in which I suggest supplementing the diet with a good daily ration of calcium and vitamin D, for growing pains, so-called, in children or for acute-at leg cramps in adults of mature years. I am not unmindful of old A. J. Coincidence, yet I can't believe it is only a coincidence. Hundreds of sufferers from such leg cramps have reported that this suggestion brought prompt relief—and even if it fails to give relief you are sure at least that it can do no harm to child or adult.

Nearly 99 per cent of the 2½ pounds of calcium in the body is normally in the bones and teeth but the 1 per cent in the blood, lymph, brain, nerves, muscles and other tissues is as important in its inexpensive of iron in the tissues and blood.

London Letter

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, April 27 — (CP) — In a remote district of India two native religious sects went to law over the ancestry of sacred land which they claimed should be devoted to the worship of their gods. Their appeal was rejected.

The native sects appealed to the Privy Council — highest court of appeal in the British Empire.

There the case will finally Divine Justice.

Three months later their claim came before the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, highest court of appeal in the Commonwealth, and the court promptly reversed the decision of the Supreme Court of Calcutta.

The tribunal, one of the jurisdiction over 450,000,000 people and all of them subjects of the King, is the supreme Court of the United States — might seem almost petty by comparison.

Now and for some weeks to come, however, the tribunal is for a dry brand of legal humor, and its decisions will affect the status of Australian government's appeal against the decision of Australia's High Court that nationalization of banks is unconstitutional.

Importance of the issue is indicated by the briefing of 30 counsel and the estimated total cost of £220,000 ($880,000).

The highest court in the Commonwealth sits in less state than a small-town police court. Facing the lawlords — all of them master jurists — the lawyer who is pleading stands at a lectern plain reading desk and talks in conversational tones.

Their lordships, grave and impassive, sit behind a horse-shoe table piled high with heavy law books, ranged in a horse-shoe centre of the street on which she lived, with an umbrella in her hand. Asked why she was there, she cried out: "This is God's umbrella. Anyone who gets under this umbrella will not get hurt." The highest court in the three trembling Chinese women came under the umbrella and clung to the old lady's garments.

WHAT DO YOU MAKE OUT OF THIS?

When the Japanese were shelling Nanking in China, a little old Chinese woman, long a Christian, marched into the centre of the street on which she lived, with an umbrella in her hand. Asked why she was there, she cried out: "This is God's umbrella. Anyone who gets under this umbrella will not get hurt." The highest court in the three trembling Chinese women came under the umbrella and clung to the old lady's garments.

The bombing went on for some minutes. Every house in the vicinity was destroyed and every person killed except the old Chinese Christian woman and the three persons who clung under the umbrella.

We can call it coincidence or good fortune or anything we have a mind to call it, but circumstance sufficiently singular to challenge attention. Certainly the Christian woman believed that she was under God's special providence. She was living in confidence and security. Probably the only way the circumstance can be explained is by recalling the words of Jesus: "What things whatsoever ye desire, when ye pray, believe that ye receive them, and ye shall have them."

Maybe it we asked God for such blessings and had more faith, the miraculous would begin to manifest itself in our experience.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

It is reported that it will be fifty years before the last of the dud bombs that fell on Berlin can be safely written off as being no longer public hazards. In the unparalleled ruin and destruction of Berlin, hundreds, probably thousands, of unexploded bombs are hidden. Years from now, contractors peacefully at work on foundations for new apartment houses or five and ten stores will be blown sky high. It is certainly going to take Germany longer to forget the last war than it did the one previous.

The oldest case of a dud exploding occurred only a few years ago in a Toronto club. The gentlemen members of the club were inclined to a little enthusiasm of the past — a characteristic of most clubs that have easy chairs. The house committee decided it would be an attractive feature if, in the main lounge, they had an ornamental wall display of semi-antique fire arms, and they settled for a nice, fan-shaped collection of old muskets, with bayonets fixed, such as were used by the troops in the Fenian Raid, the Riel Rebellion and pre-Boer War operations. The display was purchased from a dealer in junk, salvage, and set up. It grew attractively fierce, in a few years it looked as if it had been there since the Fenian Raid, just as if the founders of the club had, themselves, hung up their trusty muskets after having preserved the nation from the foe.

One day, with terrific bang, one of the old muskets discharged in the club. Just about killed half the club membership with heart attacks. There is not and has never been a proper explanation of the miracle. The ancient black powder, the fulminate of mercury in the old fashioned primer of the shell accidentally left in the weapon, should have perished years before. The old musket did not burst, was subjected to no jolt or jar. It just went off with a perfectly good, irrational, lawless, wilful bang.

Timber-Salvage Job Half Done

Thessalon, April 27 — (CP) — A mammoth timber-salvage job is nearly half finished on the north shore of Lake Huron. The job is to salvage as much timber as possible from nearly 1,500 square miles burned out in the huge fire that destroyed two months last summer in Massassaugi Provincial Park.

Already $1,000,000 board feet of lumber has been cut and dragged from the area but the job is expected to take until 1951 to finish. Working in the woods are 1,622 men, 627 horses, 55 tractors and 113 trucks.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE CIRCUS

The opening of the circus season at Madison Square Garden in New York is always a big event of more importance. It's historic for many a child. For here is to be seen the beginning of the thrilling else in all the world. Truth-fully can Ringling Brothers call their show the "Greatest Show on Earth."

When I was a boy I was not allowed to go to the circus. But my Uncle Tom could only stand and watch the parade go by, leaving my father in charge. I'll bet that when that later time came something like a circus parade went before, however, for who can preserve the first thrills and excitement of the child's first visit to the circus, except the child?

It was long after maturity when I first saw the circus in its full glory in Chicago. Each year, however, the circus has grown. There are more and bigger ones, but the best of them all seems to have finally settled into the one now known as Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey, and to that show on its opening in New York City a friend and myself took our way.

This entire show is a pageant of beauty, skill and innovations from start to finish. There was saw many of the old favorites, including that sad-faced Emmett Kelly clown, and dozens of others who were not sad, but all jolility. Great parades, realistically picturing the literature of childhood, twenty beautiful women and real trained animals, and performers that fascinated and filled one with wonder at their exploits. And such clean entertainment. No one can go to this show and not feel glad that he went — but that especially is the child's reaction. His or her great event.

Nothing in the whole world seems so shown by some of the pageants in the opening of the entire show is worth travelling miles to see. Here you will see the children animals brought under control by kindly treatment, and unbelievable feats performed by them.

Beautiful girls in their colorful dresses — many whose names are household ones with confirmed fans — ride and stand upon the healthy and inspiring, for they have to be this way to do the exciting exhibits that they exhibit.

James Waldo Fawcett, of the Washington Star, has a daughter who is a circus performer. And She has followed the circus all over the country and has recently written a most interesting book entitled "Full Tilt Love With the Circus." It is filled with her own pen drawings, and her brother and father have added their bit with fine photographs.

The American circus is as confirmed an institution as the capitol at Washington or baseball.

ONE MINUTE NEWS ABOUT JOHNS-MANVILLE

CONTROL GUIDES GIRDERS GLIDE

Your J-M reporter did it!... Invented a simple "controlling" on a construction job the other day and was amazed at the smooth operation of a huge hoist as it picked up the long steel girders, swung them around and gently guided them into position.

A J-M engineer explained that this smooth control depends on such materials as Johns-Manville Asbestos Brake Lining and Clutch Facings. These J-M friction materials have the tremendous power of holding bulldozers, steam shovels and hoists under control. Made of asbestos they withstand the intense heat of friction and the man at the controls can operate his machine almost as smoothly as you drive your car.

For over 90 years, the J-M label has identified the finest in Friction Materials. For complete details, write Johns-Manville, 199 Bay St., Toronto — or see your nearest J-M distributor.

Wide-Spread Interest Shown In Safety Drive

By HAROLD BANKIER

And still they come—challenging the sponsors' statement, that "rain or shine, Saturday is Safety Day in Belleville", another two hundred and fifty junior pedal-pushers hoisted their bikes through the Pinnacle Street entrance of the Armouries Saturday afternoon. Queing up patiently they passed at a somewhat accelerated pace through two assessed Optimist assembly lines and floated proudly through the main doors and down the front drive to Bridge Street.

At the witching hour of five-thirty, as the tumult and the shouting died, we cornered President Don Boyce and President Elect John Ryan of the local club, asked a few more or less pertinent questions and made some notes on the back of a scrap of Scotchlite. Here is a free translation.

Belleville's Scotchlite-a-Bike campaign has spread even beyond our comparatively far-flung city limits. Three separate visitors, from Peterborough, Chatham and Windsor respectively, dropped in at the Armouries last Saturday afternoon. They asked and received a sufficient supply of reflector-tape to take care of their own youngsters' bikes.

Secretary "Tut" Kokesh has found his correspondence noticeably heavier since the beginning of the campaign. A letter addressed to "The Optimist Club, Belleville, Canada," has been received from Poughkeepsie, N.Y., asking where Scotchlite can be obtained. This letter, a tribute to the splendid publicity campaign which has been liberally provided by local press and radio, is all the more remarkable since Scotchlite originated in the United States, and was in use there some years before its recent introduction to Canada.

Coe Hill Request

Another letter came from a public-spirited gentleman residing in Coe Hill, whither to provide Scotchlite reflector tape for the twenty-five boys in his village who ride bicycles.

This correspondent asked for details of application methods and costs. It he will come to Belleville Armouries next Saturday afternoon, at two o'clock, and make his way through several hundred bicyclists and their machines, he can learn the methods by first hand observation of Optimist Safety Squads in action. As to the cost, the club will provide the required amount of Scotchlite free, if the gentleman will identify himself.

Man of mystery. Optimists are still chuckling over their own "who-dunnit". Readers will recall having seen a large photograph of the assembly lines in action, on page 16 of April 19th's issue of the Ontario Intelligencer. This picture handsomely portrayed two bicycles in due process of Scotchlighting, two patient youngsters clinging valiantly to their steeds, and eight Optimists busily applying the reflector tape. At a recent meeting, this picture, prize exhibit of the publicity chairman, passed slowly around the table amid glad cries of "That's I!" from those members lucky enough to be portrayed. One character, more critical than average, (he, by some coincidence, was not in the picture), asked a question which yet remains unanswered.

"Who's the chap in the black fedora, light coat and dark trousers. The one squatting at the lower right of the picture? He certainly adds class to the picture, but I've never seen him before!" A committee was appointed forthwith, empowered to investigate fully and report on the name and nature of the interloper. Their report was as follows:

Gave Good Assistance

The gentleman in question brought his little girl to the Armouries on the first Safety-Saturday. Finding that she placed last in the line-up of approximately two-hundred and fifty and shrewdly observing that the somewhat inexperienced assembly lines were making heavy weather of their new job, he pitched in like a sterling citizen he must be. Working like a beaver for over an hour, he was rewarded by seeing his offspring come slowly into view. He completed the standard safety job on her machine, then father and daughter drifted away as unobtrusively as they had come.

Fortunately, this is one good deed which did not go unobserved and the all-seeing lens of Bob McCormick included in its field of vision a most worthy new citizen of Belleville.

WEDDINGS

BLAIND—COLEMAN

The Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, was the scene of a lovely double ring ceremony on Saturday, April 23, at 2 p.m., when Reta Irene Coleman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Coleman, Belleville, was united in marriage to Donald Vincent Blaind, R.C.N., Halifax, son of Mrs. J. Blaind and the late Mr. Blaind, of Belleville. The Reverend Monsignor J. F. Nolan officiated.

The wedding music was rendered by the Reverend Sister Mary Ildefonsa, and the soloist was Miss Carolyn Forhan.

The bride, charming in her floor-length gown of heavy blush satin, featuring a fitted bodice, lily-point sleeves, with peplum which extended into a long train, and full length veil held in place with white satin roses, was given in marriage by her father. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses.

Mrs. George Clement, sister of the bridegroom, and matron of honor, was becomingly gowned in a black satin, fashioned with short sleeves.

Miss Norma Coleman, sister of the bride, and Miss Barbara Hanna, were bridesmaids wearing identical gowns of flamingo moire, on similar lines to that of the bride, with net picture hats, and picture hat. They carried bouquets of white carnations.

Mr. Gordon Blaind, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman, and Russell Blaind, brother of the bridegroom, and John Whalen ushered.

The wedding breakfast was held at the Hotel Quinte, where the bride's mother, wearing a navy crepe dress, and pink accessories, with corsage of pink sweetpeas, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, in grey crepe with black accessories, and corsage of pink sweetpeas, received the guests.

The young couple left for South Bend, Indiana, and Chicago, the bride wearing a navy gabardine suit, pink accessories, and corsage of pink sweetpeas. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Blaind will reside in Halifax.

Out-of-town guests were from Hamilton, Toronto, and Trenton.

A miscellaneous shower was held on April 8, by a few friends of the bride, at the home of Miss Barbara Hanna, Burnham Street, where the evening was passed by making a "Bride's Book". The bride received many lovely gifts.

After thanking the giver personally, dainty refreshments were served.

London, April 27 (Reuters)—The Board of Trade has announced a 50-per-cent increase in paper consumption for "old, established" newspaper bulletins, magazines and periodicals" beginning July 1. The term "old established" means established before Aug. 16, 1940.

Decorative Plan Of Modern Rooms Demands Comfort

Winnipeg. (CP)—Miss Yvonne Ring, lecturer in applied art in the faculty of home economics, University of Manitoba, advised home makers to allow their decorating and furnishing to reflect their personalities.

Miss Ring said, in an address here that period and contemporary furniture could be used in one room with pleasant results. "But whatever type of furniture you choose, whatever your color scheme, two things must be watched. Comfort is one of the best characteristics of a room. Secondly, the decorative scheme must not be overdone.

"Our homes reflect our personality, our way of life. The modern treatment is to create a plain, restful atmosphere, an idea of spaciousness where rooms are small. . . . Modern decorators are bold in the use of color in walls and furnishings, creating a cheerful, airy atmosphere."

There were many things to consider in furnishing the homes—color line, form, pattern, texture and space limitations.

Modern Backgrounds

"Perhaps some modern rooms seem rather empty and cold, but they show off the value in articles of furniture, the texture of drapes and upholstery, and the use of stone of tapestry brick fireplaces and so on. Metal furniture is one new thing."

With slides, Miss Ring showed modern homes with large rooms having a dining area at one end and living space at the other. This avoided the use of partitions and made rooms with a crowded appearance.

Open planning showed that many modern homes have no real hallways, the living room extending right up to the stairways.

Other features of modern homes reflecting today's mode of living were built-in furniture, china cabinets, book cases, attractive windows opening an entire side of a room to light and cool outside scenery.

Chippendale and Adam furniture of the 18th century often can be found in the homes of today, Miss Ring said. She showed slides of Winnipeg homes, some of them entirely modern, some blending traditional and contemporary ideas in one room.

"More and more custom built furniture made in Winnipeg is providing lovely settings in local homes. The light-colored woods used in modern furniture seem to fit that style best, and the period furniture looks lovelier in its dark, warm-toned woods."

Delicious refreshments were served and a social hall hour enjoyed.

BONARLAW
Fifteen Receive Holy Rite of Confirmation

Bonarlaw.—Most Rev. John Lyons, M.A., D.D., Archbishop and Metropolitan of the Ecclesiastical Province of Ontario, paid a visit to St. Mark's Church on Sunday afternoon, where he preached to a large congregation and conferred the Holy Rite of Confirmation on fifteen candidates from St. Mark's church and St. Paul's, Marmora. He was assisted in the service by the rector of the parish, Rev. F. M. Brownlie and lay reader, W. J. Cotterill, of Marmora. There was a full choir augmented by members of St. Paul's choir. A duet, "He Arose", was beautifully rendered by Mrs. Percy Gray and Mrs. Leslie Rundle.

The Archbishop's sermon was listened to with rapt attention by the large congregation, and his word picture of portions of the Lambeth Conference, which the Archbishop recently attended, were extremely interesting and informative.

Princess Elizabeth Will Move To New Home at End of May

London, April 27. (Reuters)—Princess Elizabeth, the Duke of Edinburgh, and their baby son, Prince Charles, will move into their new London home, Clarence House, at the end of May after months of delay and disappointment, it was announced today.

The house was to be ready by January, but building shortages delayed the work. They will have a London home of their own for the first time after 18 months of married life.

Their move from Buckingham Palace is to take place after their return from a visit to North Ireland, planned for May 25 and 26. Their household-secretaries and about 20 servants will take up quarters there this week while the Princess and the Duke are touring North Wales.

When the Royal couple moves it will revive the traditions that passed from the beautifully-appointed mansion in 1942 when its owner, the Duke of Connaught, a former Governor-General of Canada, died and all its contents were sold.

A government grant of £50,000 ($200,000) has been spent on modernizing the four-storey house which was badly damaged by bombs during the war.

The work has been going on for more than a year.

The house was built in 1825 for the Duke of Clarence, afterwards King William IV, and was occupied later by Queen Victoria's mother, the Duchess of Kent.

It became the bridal home of the Duke of Edinburgh, Queen Victoria's sailor son, in 1874, when he brought to London his Russian wife, Marie, daughter of Czar Alexander II. Then it was for 61 years the London home of the Duke of Connaught. Later the Red Cross and St. John Organization directed its overseas work from the mansion. Clarence House now is a "dream" home. The interior decoration and furniture is a combination of old and new. Most of the furniture is antique.

Conservation Of Resources Discussed

"Are we wasting our natural resources?" was the topic of discussion at the Young Women's Guild meeting held Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Hunter, Albert Street, Miss Alice Neal presided. Reports were received regarding the parcels of food and clothing sent overseas.

Mrs. G. Wishart was in charge of the devotional period. In speaking of conservation of resources as in Bible times, it was noted that the word conservation was unknown in Bible times. Nevertheless wise men observed the laws of nature. In two instances in Mosaic law instructions were given regarding the fallowing of the land, every seven years, and when the invading armies were instructed not to cut down fruit trees.

Mrs. W. Harrison and Mrs. Cornish were in charge of the discussion. For the past 300 years man has behaved as though the earth's resources were limitless. Except in a few areas he has maintained a purely extractive economy, taking the bounty of the earth and making little or no return. Where he has not actually lost soil and water, he has overgrazed and overcropped, and by the removal of animals and plants has carried away important soil minerals, broken down the all important soil structure and generally exhausted his environment.

Resources Being Depleted

It is not only in Canada, but all over the world, that it is felt that the natural resources are becoming depleted. Many acres of land that were once productive are now barren. Yearly thousands of acres of forests are burned to the ground through carelessness. Each year the loss from floods is tremendous. This is an indirect result of unwise cutting of timber in the past.

Fishing is one of Canada's important resources. It has to be protected with laws limiting the season and the numbers to be caught.

The hunting season also have to be limited, and certain animals have to be protected in parks to prevent them becoming extinct.

The mines contain untold quantities of minerals, but each year, more and more mineral is being used. In war time the scrap metal is saved and re-used, but in peace time this preservation does not seem to be taken.

"Just recently there was a sample of what happens when there is a shortage of water power and hence a shortage of hydro power. New power developments are being built but more power is also being consumed all the time.

There is a great loss also from soil erosion. Much has to be done in the way of educating the public in this regard. The rotation of crop, and contour ploughing all help.

At present a survey is being made of the Moira River watershed to see what can be done in this district. Several areas have been reforested.

Dwindling Supplies

With the increasing world population and the decreasing in food supplies, it is hard to know just how long it will be possible for the people to be fed. Of course in some countries there are thousands suffering starvation all the time.

While it is thought to be a matter for governments to consider to save the natural resources of a country, each individual can do their share, by being careful not to start a forest fire, but not wasting anything that can be saved that is of value.

A delightful social evening was enjoyed by the members of the Women's Institute of the village on Monday evening, in the Kiwanis Centre, Dundas St., under the auspices of the Kiwanis Ladies Auxiliary, convened by Mrs. H. Cross and Mrs. C. Mott. The guests were welcomed by Mrs. Cliff Basinger, president of the Ladies' Auxiliary and by Mr. Edwards, president of the Kiwanis Club.

Twenty-eight tables were in play, the honors going to ladies' 1st, Mrs. Ogilvie 2nd, Mrs. H. Saleman and consolation to Miss M. Donahue; men's 1st, Mr. Don Stanton; 2nd, Mr. E. Fairman; consolation to, Mr. S. Rode.

Those winning at euchre were, ladies' 1st, Mrs. Harry Carbaniss; 2nd, Mrs. H. J. Carter; men's 1st, Mr. W. McKay; 2nd, Mr. C. W. Kay.

Mr. A. Mazer, proprietor of Avon Jewellers, presented a very lovely brilliant bracelet as the lucky door prize, which was won by Mr. G. Donahue.

Mrs. Cliff Basinger graciously thanked the guests for attending, after which Mrs. E. Finkle, assisted by her committee, served refreshments.

Role of Women In Election Is Emphasized

Toronto, April 27. (CP)—Mrs. George Drew Tuesday told a cheering audience of more than 1,000 women delegates to the Ontario Progressive Conservative Party's leadership convention that "the destiny of Canada lies in the hands of the women."

The wife of the party's national leader said in her address that Communists are being "constantly" infiltrated into Canada to influence youth.

The Provincial Women's Advisory Committee, meeting in connection with the leadership convention, heard speeches from 200 delegates. They all emphasized the role of women in the coming federal election.

Mrs. H. Peer of Oakville, Ont., Past National President of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, advised the party to nominate a few efficient women to run for office. But, she said, "except in rare cases" women are not ready to become political leaders.

"It would not be fair, no matter how fine the woman might be, to take from her the comparative shelter to her surroundings and thrust her before the searchlight of public life without any previous qualification," said Mrs. Drew.

Senator Iva Fallis of Peterborough said the Liberal Party had been in power so long "they seem to rule now by divine right." She criticized Prime Minister St. Laurent for being the only commonwealth Prime Minister who was not attending the London conference.

"He apparently considers it more important to look after the interests of the present Liberal government at Ottawa than attend this important conference."

Miss Hilda Hemsi, formerly of Winnipeg, National Director of the Women's organization, urged delegates to increase their membership and bring out the votes of women who had never taken an interest in politics.

CURB TEEN-AGE ROWDYISM IN WHITBY

Whitby, April 27 — (CP) — Police here are launching an all-out drive to curb teen-age cowdyism in Whitby. Chief J. William Elliott said several charges will be laid against youths today. "... This kind of conduct is not going to be tolerated," he said. He said the youths were apparently copying tactics of Toronto's teen-age hoodlum gangs.

Govt. Official Addresses Rally For Institutes

Mountain View.—On Thursday last the officers and members of the Women's Institutes of the upper portion of the county, met at Mountain View, for an institute rally. There were four institutes represented. The government speaker was Mrs. Hayes, of the Institute Branch, who gave an interesting talk, and also held a discussion on "Records and Reports".

There were two sessions, morning and afternoon. At the noon hour about 22 ladies partook of a pot-luck dinner, sitting at one long table. Everyone contributed two items or more of food, which provided a real banquet.

On Friday, Mrs. Hayes spoke at Bloomfield to the remaining Institutes of the County.

Some Tenants May Face Raise In Rentals

Toronto, April 27 — (CP) Tenants who signed a two - year lease about May, 1947, soon may face a five-per-cent rent increase if their landlord supplies heat. Many other tenants have paid the extra five per cent since last fall and will not be further affected.

Rent control officials said landlords can make the increases when the two-year leases expire, provided they notify tenants before expiration of the leases that the tenants are being placed on a monthly tenancy basis and that they serve notice on prices board forms of the intention to raise the rent.

The five-per-cent increase, applying only to self-contained accommodation such as apartments and heated duplexes, was permitted by the prices board to cover increased costs to landlords of heating premises.

Hall Packed

The convention hall was jammed to capacity for the speeches, as was the opening session of the convention yesterday. Entrances were blocked by glass doors and sweltering delegates could not get out for a breather during the heat.

All day the candidates kept up their intensive drives for votes with some added frills. Three pipers and a strummer marched about convention headquarters at night on behalf of Mr. Frost. In their bands was a sandwich man and another whose suit was plastered with "Frost for leader" buttons. After the meeting, blue balloons urging Roberts for the leadership floated down on delegates leaving the hall.

Today delegates picked up their ballots, starting at 8 a.m. This distribution was to close at noon. Voting is to start at 2.30 p.m. To win, a candidate must have a majority over all opponents. If the first ballot is indecisive, the low man drops to the second; and so on, there ballots is the maximum in the four man race.

No Chance to Reply

Mr. Blackwell, Mr. Frost and Mr. Porter had an opportunity for a public reply to Mr. Robert's opening speech. The order of speaking was alphabetical and he was the last to take the platform. He also was the only one who did not issue a prepared text of his speech to newspaper men in advance. Copies of his 10-point program reached the press during his speech.

The Charitable Gifts Act was mentioned in point No. 7 and this he read in full. It said he planned:

"To recognize and adhere to the long established and conservative principles governing the presentation of legislation and in particular the avoidance of legislation of a retroactive restrictive nature."

Would Call Caucus

"In this connection, I am bound to make reference to the most contentious legislation passed by the government since the last election. I refer to what is known as Bill 169, the Charitable Gifts Act and particularly to the contentious and much debated retroactive features of the bill. This act in principle may be sound and necessary. Control can be placed by legislation without resorting to the objectionable and contentious retroactive features. It is my avowed purpose if elected leader to call a special caucus of all members of the government with a view to reviewing and reconsidering these particular provisions of the bill under circumstances where every private member will be invited to express his views so that whatever conclusion is reached will be based on the opinion of the whole membership of the government expressed freely and directly."

Mr. Blackwell—nominated by Leader Dr. Dan Marshall of Kingston and W. G. Thompson, Minister of Mines, Minister of Lands and Forests—said he believed legitimate business enterprises must be encouraged.

"Let us bodily say that business must make profits," he said. "If business fails to make profits it will also fail to flow and expand with the needs of the people."

Farmers' Rights

Farmers should have the same bargaining power as other groups in the community. Forest and mineral production should receive every encouragement. As far as possible natural products should be processed at home to create jobs.

"Unless serious depression is to be avoided in some of our northern areas, an adjustment must be made in the price of gold."

Sam Hughes of Welland and Mrs. R. D. Chambers of Hamilton busy spoke on Mr. Frost's behalf. The provincial treasurer, who holds the portfolio of Mines, said Ontario should retain its "fiscal freedom." The solution would come easy "with the new Drew government at Ottawa."

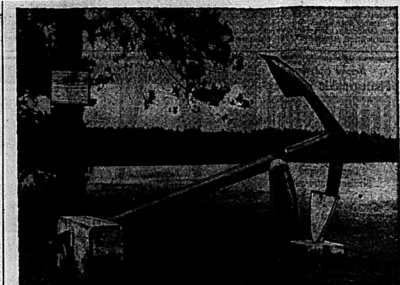
A growing Ontario population meant more children to educate and the need for more and better schools and more teachers. Ontario was attracting about 65 per cent of new industries coming to Canada. These developments brought increased demand for municipal and welfare services.

Calls for Co-operation

If chosen leader he would "pledge all my energy and my talents to translating the principles, the ideals and the objectives of our great party into action."

Mr. Porter was nominated by Blair Lang of Toronto and Elizabeth Janzen of Waterloo. The education minister called for "full and free consultation" among all three levels of government in Canada and a spirit of co-operation.

Industry was advancing and the population was growing by natural growth and immigration. The air immigration which he operated when minister of planning and development had brought 10,000 British subjects to Ontario. The province had entered "the threshold of the greatest expansion this country has ever known."



"Let us adjust our policies and frame our laws so that the people will derive their fullest share of advantage from the progress that is upon us . . . We must create the environment for opportunity."

Mr. Roberts — was introduced by a boyhood friend, Frank Cushing of Bellleville, and by Gowan Guest of Toronto — proposed to expand Ontario's mining services to intensify the search for minerals and to provide "Cabinet representation for the North."

Other points of his 10-point progress dealt with agriculture, hydro, labor, liquor control, improved services for private members of the Ontario Legislature at the legislative buildings, education and party liaison and promotion.

This two-ton anchor was left over from the War of 1812. The big hook was on its way from Kingston to the Upper Lakes when the war ended. The teamsters who were hauling it just dumped it "overboard" and went back to their peace-time business—Hambleton.

CAMPAIGN BEGINS

Extend Benefits

In the opening stages, Transport Minister Chevrier said provision had been made to extend educational benefits to merchant seamen of the Second World War up to the age of 30.

The senate gave second reading to six bills for the incorporation of oil and pipe-line companies and heard Senator W. A. Buchanan (L—Alberta) urge the government to seek new uses for coal, which now will meet competition from oil.

Back in the Commons, Mr. Diefenbaker belled the government with the charge that it was "running away" from the impending trade crisis. He held that every piece of legislation outlined in the Throne Speech could have been considered.

He also took a swing at the C.C.F. government of Saskatchewan, charging that it had failed in every instance where it had entered business in competition with private enterprise. This proved it was not possible to pay for social security out of the profits of government-operated industries.

Makes Suggestion

Mr. Case suggested that Prime Minister L. St. Laurent had found a feeling of "unrest" among the people in his recent western tour and said the government was going in the country because it feared outright defeat of the floor of the Commons.

Mr. Healy charged the government with seeking to "kill" co-operative movement through its three-per-cent tax on co-operatives.

Mr. Gillis stabbed at private enterprise and said it actually no longer existed. The business picture now was merely one of "the big fellows swallowing up the little fellows."

Mr. Knowles received the Dominion-Provincial controversy and said a satisfactory solution to the problem was essential to the country's prosperity. It should be recognized that power to form a federation rested with the provinces.

Big Disappointment For Wives of Sailors

Hamilton, Bermuda, April 27 — (CP) — The sudden sailing yesterday of the British cruiser Jamaica for war-torn China came as a blow to 15 wives of officers and men aboard the warship.

The wives now are on their way from Britain to Bermuda and had expected to see their husbands in a day or two.

Signals were sent out today to the steamships Reina Del Pacifico and Bayano, carrying the wives to Bermuda, telling them their husbands would not be here when they arrived.

Young Composers Hit the Jackpot When They Wrote 'Buttons and Bows'

By GENE HANDSAKER

Hollywood (AP)—Ray Evans and Jay Livingston, composers of the Oscar-winning "Buttons and Bows", were night-clubbing with their wives at the Ambassador Hotel's Cocoanut Grove.

On the table was a batch of those we-mailed-postcards advertising the place. Ray picked one up, intending to send it to Jay's brother. On an impulse and for a gag, he wrote, "Having wonderful wink. Time you were here."

He showed it to Jay, who said, "Don't send it. That would make a song title." And a song it is, words and music by Ray and Jay, sung by Lucille Ball in the forthcoming Bob Hope picture, "Sorrowful Jones."

Evans and Livingston are lean, studious-looking specialed chaps, each 34 years old. They almost look alike, and they do talk alike. They met at the University of Pennsylvania. Ray, of Salamanca, N.Y., studied banking and finance and played sax and clarinet in a dance orchestra. Jay, a shoe merchant's son, of McDonald, Penn., studied journalism and played piano.

After graduation, and a couple of ocean cruises with their dance orchestra, they teamed up in New York city in 1936. Evans, Ray worked as office boy and accountant, and Jay played piano, so they could eat. Olsen and Johnson liked their special material and brought Ray and Jay along when the comedians came to Hollywood to make a couple of pictures.

Compositions performed by Martha Tilton, Dinah Shore, and Betty Hutton helped boost them into their song-writing article, with piano and cluttered desk, at Paramount Pictures. Ray and Jay, by August, will have grossed about $100,000 each from their songs, including "G'by Now" and "To Each His Own." They are pleased and astonished at the world-wide success of "Buttons and Bows." Bob Hope sings it to June Russell in "The Paleface."

First Song Rejected

The picture's producer wanted a song that would be a switch on the prairie-prodding animosity of the usual western ballad. Ray and Jay had written "Shoshanah," a comedy song about Indians, which the producer turned down. Decided they went back to their little office to try again.

Ray, who writes most of their lyrics, thought of the alliterative title, "Buttons and Bows." Jay, who composes most of their melodies, got the last half of the chorus first:

"We couldn't get an opening phrase," Jay said. "We were crazy for three weeks. We worked two nights till eleven."

Then Ray got the start. They had a natural cadence that helps the creative legion, and melody and lyrics went onto swift completion.

The song gets equal billing with Hope and Russell on theatre marquees, in England, some ads have proclaimed, "It's the 'Buttons and Bows' movie," and the title even is naming the stars.

Dinah Shore's record of the tune has sold approximately 1,500,000 copies—her first record to exceed 1,000,000. Gracie Fields recorded a music-hall treatment, half cockney and half cowboy. A Danish sheet music version translates the title, "Nylon of Hope."

U. S. clothing manufacturers have come out with aprons, pajamas, nightties, slips and panties stamped with the buttons and bows design. A Kansas City suit consists of two bows, with buttons down the side.

NO AUXILIARY FORMED

PEN PALS MEET

Bullet Lodged In Head 43 Years

Bakersville, N.C., April 27 — (AP) — Thomas Burleson, 65, yesterday exhibited a bullet which he said dropped out after remaining in his head 43 years.

Burleson said he was shot in the jaw in 1906 and that the bullet was deflected upward through the roof of his mouth, and lodged beneath an eye, presumably in a sinus. He said the wound healed without the bullet being removed.

Recently, he continued, the pellet dripped into the back of his mouth through a nasal passage. Burleson said the .38-calibre bullet had given him little trouble in the 43 years.

Care of War Graves Is Tremendous Task

By NORMAN CREBBENS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London (CP)—Supply and erection of 375,000 headstones for the graves of Commonwealth fighting men who died in the Second World War are being carried out by the Imperial War Graves Commission.

The graves are found in many countries of the world, including Canada and the United States, and the erection of headstones is not expected to be completed until 1953.

Checking of the records provided by service departments in Britain and in the Dominions has entailed writing to 295,000 relatives, Admiral Sir Martin Dunbar-Nasmith, V.C., vice-chairman of the War Graves Commission, told a press conference.

"So far 211,000 have replied, enabling us to put in hand, through contractors, the engraving of headstones to replace temporary crosses. Between 40,000 and 50,000 have been completed."

In some cemeteries overseas local stone is being used, but by far the largest number of headstones are being made at Portland stone.

"The task of engraving them is such that a mechanical process has been devised and brought to a fine standard of precision," Brig F. Higginson, commission secretary said.

1,000 Weekly

"With the aid of this process, 1,000 engravings are being completed each week."

He emphasized that the care of nearly 1,000,000 graves of both world wars, scattered throughout all parts of the world, now is the responsibility of the commission. There are eight Canadian military cemeteries in Holland, Belgium and France.

Erection of headstones on Second World War graves in Canada and the United States was being carried out by the commission's Canadian agency directed by Col. H. C. Osborne, Toronto, assisted by the end of 1948 was 5,971.

The commission's expenditure during 1948 totalled £439,568 ($1,718,272) on First World War graves and £ 526,977 on those of the Second World War. The money was provided by United Kingdom and Dominion grants.

Admiral Dunbar-Nasmith, who recently inspected thousands of graves in France, Belgium, Holland, Italy and North Africa, said a new charter granted in 1948 provided each Commonwealth government should be represented on the commission and share in control of its affairs.

"This arrangement is proving satisfactory," he said.

LUXURY LINER SINKS

Rio De Janeiro, April 27 (AP) —The British luxury liner Magdalena sank yesterday off Brazil.

The 17,500-ton ship of the Royal Mail Line went down off Itaipu Beach in Guanabara Bay.

It was being towed toward Rio De Janeiro by tugs which had refloated the vessel after it ran aground. The liner's 320 passengers had been taken ashore by Brazilian navy boats.

Half Million Cost of Strike To Halifax Port

By DAVE McINTOSH
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Halifax, April 21 — (CP) —The Canadian deep-sea shipping strike, today in its 27th day, has cost the port of Halifax at least $500,000. This is the "conservative" estimate of shipping and port officials.

The $500,000 figure takes in dozens of cost items: seamen's, stevedores' and freight handlers' wages, revenue lost by ships' chandlers, tug companies, railroads and, of course, the shipping firms themselves. These are most directly affected.

There are other lost revenues that cannot be gauged at all, for the strike, called by the Canadian Seamen's Union, has driven away business.

Vessels that might have gone into the shipyards here for overhaul have sailed to other ports to get the job done. Three colliers in the yards when the strike began are still there. This has affected coal deliveries to Newfoundland. Men in the yards have been laid off.

The strike caught Halifax just at the end of its busy winter shipping season; otherwise the loss might have been far greater.

Seven ships were tied up here when the walkout began March 31. Five have been manned and sailed by the Seafarers' International Union, two have been sold and four still are strike-bound. The sale was not a result of the strike but merely co-incidental.

It costs a shipping firm about $1,000 a day just to keep a vessel in port. That adds up to about $2,00,000 for the companies affected here. Then there is the lost revenue from cargoes not carried.

And simple, awkward things run into money. For instance, when the Sunprince sailed she left 500 tons of her cargo on Pier 2. This had to be moved to Pier 40 for storage, Cost: $3,000.

Jap Cabinet Minister Runs Candy Store

By WILLIAM JORDEN

Tokyo (AP)—Ichiro Honda is something of a symbol in post-war Japan.

The 54-year-old Honda is a member of the Diet. Recently he was appointed cabinet minister without portfolio. He is expected to handle reorganization of Japan's bureaucracy, which will entail firing thousands of surplus government employees.

Yet Honda himself runs a candy store to try to make ends meet.

He and his wife live upstairs over the store in Tokyo's Fukagawa section. Sharing the cramped quarters are his son, two daughters and a grandson.

Like a good many people, Honda is struggling just to break even. His salary in the Diet equals about $100 a year, so he has to keep store to live.

"It means I don't have to borrow from friends or relatives," he said, implying that his store made it unnecessary to turn down bribes that have been the downfall of many a post-war politician.

Honda has had better training for an austere life than many politicians. From a poor family, he worked his way through school and college, finally getting a law degree from Chuo University.

Successful Politician

He got into politics as a minor city official. Twenty years ago he organized an association to fight high rents, and this got him elected three times to the Tokyo city assembly.

In 1941 he entered national politics and did something that was considered almost impossible — won election to the Diet without support of the late Premier Hideki Tojo's imperial rule assistance association. He has been a house member ever since.

When American bombers ravaged his political stronghold Fukagawa ward, Honda went back to his old home in Nagasaki prefecture. He quickly picked up a new following there. He has been elected from Nagasaki in three post-war elections. On the basis of this record, he is regarded as one of the smoothest operators in Japanese politics.

Now this mild-mannered man with the greying moustache has been handed one of the thorniest problems facing the government. In attempting to streamline the government's bureaucratic structure and save money, he is expected to have to take the responsibility for running several thousand people out of their jobs.

Honda doesn't seem to mind the burden. In the early morning and late afternoon he still tends store by sitting out in front, reading the papers and talking to passers-by. Now and then he gets up to sell a peanut bar or a paper airplane to one of the children who pass his door on the way to school.

Say William Rennie Seeds Limited: Sweet peas should be planted as early as the end of May. However, the sooner they're in the ground, it helps to rush them overnight before planting. Soak the seeds in water for about twenty-four hours. Then gather through manure in small quantities which should be worked into the ground before planting; about four inches below the surface.

26-MAN CREW OF SEALER RESCUED FROM ICE FLOE

Canada's Political Pulse Quickens As Election Nears

Record Number Expected To Enter as Candidates

Ottawa, April 27 (CP) — The political pulse has been quickened today with an election in the offing.

All parties stepped up the tempo of organization work across the country as balloting drew up for June 27.

While parliament quarrels for dissolution by Saturday or even earlier, party organizers were laying down plans for the final series of nomination meetings, campaign tours and assorted kinds of political fence-mending that precede a contest.

Indications were that an all-time record number of candidates would throw their hats in the election. There might be 1,000 or better.

Polishing by a record 1,000 were last year's electoral redistribution which, with the entry of Newfoundland, boosted the number of Commons seats from 245 to 262.

The Liberals, holding 134 seats as dissolution approached, were expected to run candidates in all ridings.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said yesterday his party hoped to go after every electoral seat, including the seven new ones in Newfoundland. The Progressive Conservatives now have 69 members.

C.C.F. In 200 Ridings

The C.C.F., with 33 Commons members at large, has indicated it expects to place men in at least 200 ridings. The Social Credit group, now holding 13 seats, plans to run for some 100 constituencies.

That would boost the total to more than 800, and it undoubtedly will be smaller heavily beyond that by the various types of independents.

Biggest question mark at this stage appeared to be whether, in the wake of the narrow over-all victory held by the Liberals for the last few sessions, new parties can win the working majority in the House without the support of other groups.

All groups have expressed themselves as against the idea of coalition, and yesterday Mr. Drew told a press conference he he didn't think it would be necessary to consider the question of coalescing.

That was as far as he would go when he was asked whether he thought his party would come up with enough members to operate without outside help.

Mr. Drew, while welcoming the calling of an electoral test, criticized of the fact that the government had failed to offer for debate before the budget, declaring the members of parliament were not being given the chance to examine the administration's proposed expenditures.

Govt. Running Away Claim

"The course being followed guided entirely by political expediency," the opposition leader said, "and it is an affront to every member of parliament who wants to discharge his responsibility to vote supplies with knowledge of the purpose for which that money is to be spent.

"It is obvious that the government is running away from an accounting to parliament and from an examination of its accounts by the elected members of parliament and, as a result, from an accounting to the people of Canada."

Mr. Drew said the main issue of the campaign was the choice between democracy and democracy," or among Progressive Conservatives, "standing in a hurry", and "Socialists in low gear"—the latter phrase his description of Liberal government members.

(Prime Minister Laurent referred to a Saskatchewan audience a few days ago as "Liberals in a hurry." Mr. Drew has since adopted this as applying to C.C.F. members, whose government in Saskatchewan is largely from Saskatchewan.)

Mr. Drew said his party was simply Progressive Conservative. It was neither in a hurry nor in low gear.

Another major issue, Mr. Drew said, would be the "determined effort of the present government to centralize power in Ottawa and deny parliament its rights and responsibilities."

$25,000 CACHE OF STOLEN GOODS IS RECOVERED

Articles Taken from Many Break - ins Stored in Summer Cottage

Toronto, April 27 — (CP) — A joint raid by R.C.M.P. officers and Provincial and Toronto police Tuesday night uncovered a $25,000 cache of stolen goods in a large cottage at suburban Oakview beach.

Gordon Barrett, owner of the cottage, was arrested in Bradford, Ont., early today and was charged with theft and receiving stolen goods.

Police said the cache represented loot stolen during the last two years by a gang of house breakers who operated within a 150-mile radius of Oakview beach.

The cottage was described by officers as "jammed" with stoves, refrigerators, furniture, tools, plumbing fixtures, building materials and "odds and ends of everything."

A large quantity of the loot has already been identified, police said, adding that the gang had already disposed of some $13,000 worth of stolen articles.

Corporal A. Ayres of the Provincial Police said most of the loot had been stolen from summer hotels, cottages and garages. A 24-hour police guard is being maintained in the Oakview beach area, he said.

Police searched the building yesterday after tracing the licence number of a three-ton truck reported at the scene of a break-in in the Peterborough district.

CRITICAL BATTLE RAGING 50 MILES WEST OF SHANGHAI

Soochow Still in Hands Of Nationalist Forces

Shanghai, April 27 (AP) — Critical battle for Soochow (Wuhsien) raged 50 miles west of Shanghai today.

One unconfirmed report said the Reds had taken the important junction city, but most reports placed toward Shanghai or wheel to Hangchow, 85 miles south of Shanghai.

Nationalist sources insisted Soochow was still in their hands. Another report said advance Red units had passed Soochow and were on the outskirts of Kunshan.

At least two shiploads of Nationalist soldiers and equipment sailed out of Shanghai today, likely they were headed for Formosa where Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's followers have established a bastion.

Foreign and Chinese newspapers said Chiang had arrived in Shanghai.

Possible use of Hangchow for a sea escape route for the government's 300,000 men reported in that area depends on shipping. Hangchow airport is not capable for heavy shipping and only light craft would be able to use the port.

With Nanking and a large part of the city in the hands of the Yangtze in the hands of the Communists, the government had fled to Canton in the south.

(Reports were current in Tokyo that Chinese and some foreign business men were putting considerable pressure on the government's Wousing garrison at Shanghai in an attempt to prevent a battle that would damage the world's fourth largest city.)

The majority of Chinese troops and American nationals in Shanghai have decided to remain and take their chances if the Communists capture the city.

Ice Cream May Cost Consumer A Little More

Ottawa, April 27 (CP)—A government Order-In-Council increasing the federal excise tax on ice cream has been passed, it was announced in the House of Commons day night. The result may mean a boost in the price of the dairy product.

Ice cream producers believe added revenue from the excise tax on product will mean a total increase in consumer prices of about one cent. This estimation is based on the total 1948 production of 25,000,000 gallons.

The costs likely will be passed along to the consumer and it appeared possible that the increase would be from one to two cents on every ice-cream brick.

Announcement of the Order-In-Council likely will be made this week-end.

It will mean that under the National Dairy Act, ice cream will have to contain a minimum of 13 per cent butter-fat. This is the same content that existed before the Second World War.

During the war, butter-fat became scarce and the content was reduced to 9.5 per cent. But with increased supplies of butter-fat now adequate, the former standard is decided it was about time the consumer got it again.

The only way ice cream producers believe they can avoid passing along the costs increase to the consumer would be for the government to reduce the 15 per-cent sales tax on the product.

Ice cream also was a food product.

ENCOURAGE PRESERVATION OF OLD BUILDINGS

Toronto, April 27 — (CP) — Members of the Architectural Conservancy of Ontario got down to serious business yesterday, deciding to buy certain old houses here, with the purpose of preserving them, and urging persons to preserve good samples of old, native buildings. Students paid for tour and studied design.

Bearded Man of 33 Dug Out Of Cubicle Sealed by Mother On Outbreak of War in 1939

By JOHN H. WINANT

New York, April 27 — (AP) — A shaggy-bearded man of 33, dug out after 10 years of fantastic solitude in a dank cubbyhole, yearned today to return to his tomb-like cubicle in which his mother sealed him when war broke out in 1939.

Shoeless, filthy, his clothes in rags, Paul Makushak, one-time college athlete, moved his wobbly legs and blinked into the unaccustomed glare of electric lights.

Wants to go Back

"I liked it in there," he said. "I'd like to go back. I'm happy about the outside world." Police took him to a hospital.

The man told his strange story of voluntary exile since 1939 — when his mother sealed him from the world with a wall of wood and plaster at the outbreak of the Second World War.

Makushak spent the 10 years in a tiny walled-off cubicle built in the cellar of a littered third-floor bedroom in a brownstone house in the Bedford-Stuyvesant section of Brooklyn.

His father, who runs a tailor shop in the same building, said he never knew his son was inmosttage, in his house.

The cubicle, about three feet wide and five feet long or scarcely big enough to hold Makushak when he stretched on the floor by his sleep, was dark, dampness and lice said, because his mother presumably wanted him to escape Paul was in Canada.

Makushak, however, was vague about his "draft."

"The draft" he replied to questioning. "I don't know about the draft. That was in 1917, wasn't it?"

The story of Makushak's imprisonment came to the attention of police Wednesday night after the mother, Mrs. Pearl-old Mrs. Anna Makushak, entered a hospital.

She asked a neighborhood woman to go and care for her son — whose only contact with the world was a hole in the top of his tomb through which he was fed.

The neighbor, unidentified, told police about him.

Police beshed down the thin plaster wall that sealed Makushak off, and lifted him back into the world.

He was dressed in heavy woolen clothing.

Glasses Wired

His beard flared out around his face. A four-inch curls, and he wore glasses that were held together with wire.

Makushak's shorthand lay on a makeshift shelf. Makushak said he lived by practice sheet on hand to while away the time.

A Bible lay at arm's reach, on the floor, with a pair of cracked and battered radio was on the floor, with a pair of cracked spheone which.

Makushak's father, Peter, 69, lives in the same building. He said he last saw his son as a youth of 23. The wife, he said, told him Paul was in Canada.

Chinese Communists are Same Breed as Russian Cousins Says Press Correspondent

(Editor's note: Harold K. Milks, Associated Press correspondent in China, has just returned on leave after 38 months in China. He covered at close range the decisive stages of the conflict in Manchuria which paved the way for the Communist sweep across the Yangtze River last week. As a firsthand observer of the China scene, Milks analyzes the causes of the Nationalist collapse and the picture which now confronts Communist victory in the accompanying article.)

By HAROLD K. MILKS

New York, April 27 (AP) — Recent events in China add up to a conclusion that the Chinese Communists are of the same breed as their Russian cousins.

Rejection by the Chinese Communists of all proposals in favor of conquest has the appearance of being closely timed to the international situation. It is a race to capture, consolidate and construct all China ahead of a possible world conflict.

It is another illustration that these Reds, far from being bent on world revolution, are playing their cards skilfully to suit support of their Soviet partners.

Developments of the last week in China have been political and economic problems for the west. The open Communist flaunting of usual diplomatic privileges, as in the case of their invasion of the bedroom of the United States Ambassador, J. Leighton Stuart, and the Communist banishment of British warships may easily have repercussions in other parts of the Far East.

These are the two questions asked by correspondents returning from the China scene:

1. Why did Nationalist China, with its huge armies, its American army of aid, its dollar backing, fail to halt the Reds.

2. Are China's Communists true Soviet Communists or a separate type all their own?

Many Reasons For Failure

There are many reasons why China's military machine, with its American arms and its dollar backing, failed to halt the Reds.

A basic cause was its failure to establish more than a semblance of effective government instead of a loosely-bound and always-tottering federation.

Another, probably more important, is the lack in China of Communist patriotism as we know it here. It has been fittingly said that China needs fewer than anything a national hero.

The failure of military leaders to fight effectively was also a cause. Nationalist collapse and final debacle.

There is still another reason for the Red victory. Chinese in every part of life are tired of war and the effects of the uncontrolled inflation which accompanied it. They are tired of accepting as pay worthless paper money which daily became even more worthless. They are tired of conflict. They want peace and simply have quit fighting.

China's Communists today are as true followers of the Moscow philosophy as are the top leaders of countries under Soviet domination in Europe.

Communist control has produced a supporting move in Red China.

It is certain that China's Communists will follow Moscow slavishly in support of a general program of world Communism, and there never was any they take with moves by Moscow.

Western Europe Much Improved In Past Year

Paris, April 27 (CP) George McGhee, Texas publisher, arrived in an interview today that western Europe is in a much better condition now than a year ago. Mr. McCullagh has been studying the economic and political situation in The Netherlands, western Germany, Italy, Switzerland and France.

He said the psychological factor is the improvement was the Atlantic pact and the success of the Berlin airlift.

The Canadian publisher said he had talked with high-ranking leaders and with the little people on his tour.

"The impression one gets is of a substantial improvement in the economy. A lot of it appears superficial, but application of hard work and faith is bringing Europe back.

"Prospects for peace are good as there is far less appreciation that a year ago," he said.

McCullagh will leave for London during the week.

GLOBE PRINTING COMPANY BILL RUNS INTO SNAG

Fails to Pass Before Hour for Private Members Had Expired

Ottawa, April 27 (CP) — A bill authorizing the Globe Printing Company of Toronto to increase the annual rental value of its real estate holdings from $30,000 to $100,000 ran into a snag in the Commons Tuesday night and failed to pass before the hour for private measures had expired.

Part of the time was spent discussing a $500,000 one-hundred sponsored by C.C.F. members, who expressed belief that the company, publishers of the Globe and Mail, would use the measure to name new Toronto Daily Star.

Gordon Graydon (PC-Peel) denied that the bill would be used to take over any new business. He said it was to be building now occupied by the Globe Printing Company is in the name of the Mail Printing Company. He said the bill was to put the building and the business under one roof.

By a standing vote of 36-27, members defeated a C.C.F. amendment which would have allowed those companies to have a rental of annual rentals only from $30,000 to $45,000. The amendment was opposed by Mr. Graydon (PC-Saskatoon City), drew support from C.C.F. members and from a scattering of Liberals.

Peter Aylesworth (Reform-C.C.F.-Ontario) moved that the bill be shelved for a month. The amendment, which would have had the effect of killing the measure for this session, was defeated by a vote of 123 to 39, with the C.C.F. drawing support from about a dozen Liberals.

Ross Thatcher (CCF — Moose Jaw) broke with his party colleagues and voted against the amendment.

There will be another hour for private bills Friday and the measure may then come up for further discussion.

Might Change Mind

Mr. Knight said it was co-incidental that the Globe had passed an act under which the Toronto Star Ltd. was formed and operated. "For charity purposes, will they sell 90 per cent of its shares?"

He said counsel for the Globe Printing Company had stated before a Commons committee that the company had sold the land to permit the company to purchase the building now occupying but did not own. However, the counsel had admitted it would be located on the land. The company's charge its mind and to use the land for its own purposes, he said.

The counsel had stated it was not the intention of the company to move from its present location.

Mr. Graydon said there had been a thorough examination of the bill by the Commons. There was nothing "sinister" in it. He could not understand why it would justify the suspicions of C.C.F. members.

The bill was before the Senate before the Charlottetown was before the Legislature.

Believed Increase Justified

Mr. Graydon said he assessed value of the building occupied by the Globe Printing Company and the actual value was estimated at $1,000,000. He said, because of the view of present prices, the increased rental value requested was justified.

Mr. Williams said he was quite prepared to accept Mr. Graydon's word, but he had difficulty in his mind dissecting the measure from the Charities Act passed by the Ontario Legislature.

The measure was being introduced in an unsavory atmosphere. There was a rival newspaper and publisher, who had been unfriendly to some of the Toronto newspapers. The newspapers were supporters of those who had sponsored the Ontario bill and one before the Commons.

Mr. Williams said that ever since the Globe and Toronto Mail had been able to carry on publishing activities unhampered. He said he wished to pay that tribute to them. The fact many said the C.C.F. never gave any credit to private enterprise.

Hunters Adrift 30 Hours After Ship is Crushed

Men Are Reached as Rising Winds Due to Strike Area

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

St. John's, April 27 (CP) — The 26-man crew of the ice-destroyed sealer Wimoda took four hours today to walk three miles over a treacherous icepack off Labrador to reach safety on the deck of the sealing vessel Newfoundlander. All hunters are safe and well.

The rescue ship worked its way within three miles of the hunters, who had been 30 hours after the 170-ton Wimoda was crushed in grinding ice off Belle Isle. Fog-shrouded Belle Isle separating Newfoundland and Labrador.

The Newfoundlander could get no farther through the heaving ice and the stranded hunters began the dangerous three-mile trek over the shifting floes.

The men reached the rescue ship just before rising winds were due to strike the area. Such winds might have carried the floes in the men were riding, out into the open sea.

Talk Ashore by Radiophone

Tuesday night, the men crouched in darkness and talked over a radiotelephone with Belle Isle ship-to-shore station. A lookout on one of the sealers said they made it onto the floe without a mishap.

Terra Nova and Linda May reached they were stranded in rescue attempts during the night. The ships backtracked cautiously in the wake of Wimoda's path in the heavy ice.

Capt. Wilfred Barbour of Terra Nova reported his own vessel was jammed and attacks on ice west of Belle Isle were useless without a wind-shift.

He added: "Wimoda's crew is fairly comfortable on the floe of the ice-pan. (They) have kept radio telephone and the generator going since Tuesday."

Halifax weather office said 20-mile-an-hour winds were expected in the area later today and conditions would "be rather poor."

Car and Truck Output Highest In a Decade

Detroit, April 27 — (AP) — Is the automobile industry putting too much emphasis on production?

Right now car and truck output is at the highest level in more than a decade. Many industry experts believe output is geared to meet demand and that a few makes in the lower-price bracket.

Up until eight or 10 months ago the industry had a huge backlog of unfilled orders. But something happened.

Whatever it was it shook out a substantial part of the unfilled orders. Production caught up with a lot more. Now at least some dealers are getting more cars than they want.

One price cuts that have been made so far this year in the United States were encouraging to the extent.

However, for most buyers the price cuts didn't amount to much. Neither did they stimulate demand to any extent beyond normal seasonal expansion.

NO ONE INJURED

Chicago, April 27 (AP) — A mile and a half tunnel under almost 20 workmen were constructing a sewer tunnel 46 feet underground No one was injured seriously.

The workers — many of them stunned — made their way to the surface unassisted.

Authorities said a sudden release of air pressure in the tunnel apparently caused a wall to collapse.

DISSOLUTION TO RULE OUT BILLS STILL STANDING

Most of Them Sponsored by Private Members of the Commons

Ottawa, April 27 (CP)— A familiar requiem was sounded in parliament today when Minister St. Laurent's announcement of week-end dissolution.

It was the annual obituary of those lost causes entombed in legislation sponsored by private members of the Commons.

Many have survived from session to session. But this time many will die permanently, for it is not likely all their sponsors will be back after the general election.

This year, as tradition nears, 32 proposed statutes remain on the Commons order paper. Besides that, there are 44 resolutions calling on the Commons to advise the government to do everything from deepening a river to getting out of the British Commonwealth.

All of them have been sidetracked, as usual, by the press of government business.

Only one moved towards enactment is a bill sponsored by Stan. C. Howard, former air minister to cut down on electioneering expenses. It needs only third reading to become law. None of the others has got beyond second reading.

The perennial bill to establish a national flag is sponsored this year by Roland Beaudry (L-Montreal St. James).

William Stoddickson (L-Kenora-Rainy River) has one to change the Canadian voting system by introducing the single transferable vote, which tends to prevent election of minority candidates.

Barring of the Communist party would be provided in a trimmed-down amendment sponsored by Wilfrid Lacroix (L-Quebec Montmorency).

The resolutions — which merely call on the House to express an opinion — cover an even broader area.

Peter Dion (L-Temiscamingue) proposes a proposal that the government select a Canadian name for next governor-general (The man he has in mind is former Prime Minister Mackenzie King.)

Gordon Knox (L-Halifax) and Mr. Dion, in two, call for the return of federal ports decentralized.

Ralph Maybank (L-Canada) to pull out of the Commonwealth, and he submits a proposed petition to the King's Privy Council.

The Commons' only woman member, Mrs. Gladys Strum (CCF—Qu'Appelle)—calls for legislation to provide equal pay for equal work as between men and women.

CBC Appoints TV Co-ordinator

Ottawa, April 26 (CP) — The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation today appointed a television co-ordinator and a regional representative for Newfoundland.

Dr. Augustin Frigon, CBC general manager and Alphonse Ouimet, assistant chief engineer for the CBC, named as TV co-ordinator, co-ordinator during "preliminary stage experimental TV television operations in Canada."

William F. Galgay, former general manager of the Broadcasting Corporation of Newfoundland which was taken over by the CBC under the terms of union, was appointed regional representative. Mr. Galgay has been in radio work in St. John's since 1936.

Mr. Ouimet has been assistant chief engineer since 1941 and has been handling television research since 1932.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Creating the Illusion of Beauty

Lucky is the girl who has handsome ancestors. Good looks are handed down to her all she has to do is to take care of them by cultivating health habits, doing a certain number of beauty chores.

There's no denying that ambrosial locks, the peaches-and-cream complexion perfectly formed lips and a chic figure combine to make life gayer and sweeter, since splendid appearance is a sort of passport. But if a girl has been short-changed on these blessings, there's no sense in her weeping her eyes out. She can, if she is smart, create an illusion of beauty. All she has to do is to cultivate a sweet nature and use her head. It is as easy as that.

Gentle manners, a musical voice, poise, grace, graciousness, good taste in dress, and an alert mentality will win out every time, cast the pretty dollies in the shade. There you have the material that makes for charm and attractiveness. Any woman who isn't an old sour-puss can develop charm.

The face registers the radiance of pleasant thoughts

Vitality and animation are marvelous assets. They are based on physical well-being and a well-trained mind. The first rule in the pulchritude race is to take care of your health, keep fit and strong.

The woman who so organizes her life that she does not overdo, but has a surplus of energy stowed away, shows vitality in the sparkle of her eyes, the healthy coloring of her complexion. She is a fresh-air fiend, isn't afraid of exercise, so her muscles are resilient. She has grace and ease of movement. She seldom awakens in the morning feeling low. She is eager to start the day's activities.

Her step is brisk. Her brain hums like the neat, self-starting, six cylinder motor that it is. She is less likely to be irritated over trifles than is the woman who is always tired, whose health is below standard.

Unlike the high-strung woman who seeks exciting pleasures that wear her to a frazzle, this woman is ever on the hunt for restful recreations that finds them in outdoor life, in hobbies, good books, good music.

Beauty is more likely to demonstrate its presence by facial expression than perfection of features. A nice smile, a pretty pose of head or hands, a graceful walk —all the have a strong appeal.

The face is the screen upon which is registered the radiance of pleasant thoughts. Cultivate them. Be tolerant of and friendly to your fellow creatures. It is the only way to live happily with oneself.

GOOD MANNERS

Bride-to-be says her "thank you" at shower

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

What would be some suitable words of "Thank you" for the bride-to-be to say at the shower given in her honor?—M. M.

When each present is given to her, she opens it at once, exactly reads the enclosed card, looks directly and appreciatively at the the giver, and says (1) a general thank-you, and then (2) some enthusiastic comment about the gift and about definite features of it (its beauty, its special suitability or usefulness for her or for her new home, its color, its effective design or other, graceful comments that will make the giver feel that she has happily, chosen "just the right shower present"). For example, "Janet, dear, what a wonderful gift Thank you so much, so much. How did you know that what I have been yearning for is just this kind of plastic tray for my dressing-table? It is a marvel a while one, just this convenient size, and with just these compartments. Thank you for your goodness to me, and for your thoughtful present." The important point for the guest of honor to keep unecnscingly in mind at a shower given for her is to take her time to say enough warm-hearted words of gracious appreciation. It's grim to watch a bride-to-be who dashes through some hurried, casual words about the present-in-hand, the while looking eagerly to see what the next present might be! (And the really appreciative bride-to-be writes a thank-you note to each giver, a day or so after the shower.)

Processional with three ushers, three bridesmaids

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please tell me the proper order of the bridal procession at a church wedding when there are three ushers, three bridesmaids, and a maid of honor.—L. M.

There are several correct procedures. (1) The ushers may walk in single file, then the bridesmaids, in single; next, the maid of honor, alone; last, the bride and her father. (2) Or one usher may walk first, alone, the two other ushers following, together; then one bridesmaid alone, the other two bridesmaids following together. (3) Or two ushers may walk together first in the procession, followed by the other usher alone; then two bridesmaids together, followed by the one bridesmaid.

Pouring wine into glass

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I think that when the maid or host pours the wine at our dinnertable, the glass should not be lifted from the table. My husband insists that it is correct to lift the glass from the table, pour the wine into it, and then return the glass to the table. Which of us is right?—Elberta W.

You are right. The wine should be poured carefully and gently into the glass as it stands on the table.

Fashion Flashes

COME SUMMER and we'll be seeing charming suits of linen. White linen is used for a softly tailored suit, its shawl collar and split cuffs faced with black wool. With it a blouse of handkerchief linen printed in black and white, with a self-tie neckline bow.

WELL REPRESENTED in the newest fashion picture is the after-five dress of pastel lace. Pale beige lace over brown taffeta is the theme of this ankle-length frock with draped cap sleeves, and a huge dark brown taffeta bow masking the base of the deep V-neckline and almost covering the bodice. Worn with tiny calot of matching brown taffeta.

HAVE YOU NOTICED the growing popularity of men's wear gray flannel as a suiting? Handsome in a suit on softly tailored lines, the fitted jacket with a tapering double-breasted treatment and slanted pockets at the hips with wide tabs. Small collar high, notched revers.

LATER ON when the sun really does its stuff, the big straw hat will really come into its own. Ready for that day is a handsome hat of natural Canton straw in a wide, lacy weave. The wide, off-the-face brim turned up in back, and in front has a big, flat royal blue velvet bow on the under side.

A BIG HAND at a recent collection went to a magnificent evening costume of black velvet, moulded through the torso, was of white silk jersey, and fullness flaring out below the knees. With it a cape of flame and gold fan falling from a heavily hand beaded yoke of gold and silver beads.

JUST THE THING for a good travel hat is a cloche of gray felt. Ombred pink-to-gray wide chiffon is closely stitched all over the hat and then falls loose into long wide scarves, perfect for draping to individual taste.

Silk Print Shirtmaker

By PRUNELLA WOOD

THE SHIRTMAKER is a tenacious American fashion, frequently provocative, as it is in this crepe model which uses pure silk for a functional model. Nothing simpler could be cut than this short-sleeved tailor-made dress with skirt and shirt pleats, a self-fabric bowtie, and a neat self-fabric belt.

But add swank town accessories to it, send it out to lunch, and all viable kinship is lost with its uniform cousins for strictly working hours. The print with its horizontal wavy blaze motif is black combined with beige, a fresh opportunity for this season's many chamois and caramel color hats and so on.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Don't try to solve complicated Problems Alone

Too many people try to solve complicated problems all by themselves. In almost every case, there is someone, somewhere, who can give a person good advice that will help him to solve a problem, however complex it may seem.

One of my correspondents tells me that she has been married for over thirteen years, has had six children, four of whom are living, and that she has never received affection, support or anything else from her husband that a wife has a right to expect in a normal marriage.

"During my last four pregnancies," she writes, "he walked out on me on each occasion, leaving me big bills at store and everywhere else, and no money for rent, food or heat. Three times I took him back, but the fourth time I told him I would never take him back if he left again. It is now over two years that he has been out of the house, and he is serving his ninth term for non-support.

"Now he is begging me to give him another chance. He told a friend of my mother's that if I didn't give him another chance he would make life miserable for me. I have found a home that is going to try and frame me by getting two men together in court to say they lived with me. He has promised them $25 each if they will do this. I have never done anything wrong, or anything that would make my children ashamed of me.

"But I am worried, as his people have turned on me. They have money and that's what counts. When I meet them on the street they call me all kinds of names and tell people I am no good. They make fun of my children's clothes, though the school teacher and school nurse tell me that my children are dressed very nice and are very clean and neat.

"Please tell me, should I take him back and end this fighting? Maybe then my children and I won't have to listen to his people's talk every time we turn around. Would it solve my problems and give me peace of mind if I took him back? He is not drinking, and his mother had him arrested two weeks ago."

I don't think this woman should consider taking her husband back for one moment. He is obviously a good-for-nothing, and far from solving her trouble and sorrow, in her years of need if she were to live with him again, there is no doubt but that it would only add to her increasing unhappiness and distress for her.

I think that this wife is one of the people to whom I referred in the beginning, who try too much to work out this problems alone. What she should do is to consult some social worker in the Family Relations court where she got the legal separation she spoke of in another part of her letter, or else go to some other social welfare organization and talk over the entire problem with one of the people there.

Johnny Sain and Larry Jansen Two Biggest Early-Season Pitching Flops of the Majors

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

Boston Braves' Johnny Sain and Larry Jansen of New York Giants are being lobbed as the two biggest early-season pitching flops of 1949.

Counted on to carry their teams this year following superlative '48 seasons, both have been terrific disappointments to their respective managers. Each has started three times with nary a victory to show for their efforts.

Sain, a 24-game winner last year, currently owns an inglorious won-and-lost record.

Jansen has been charged with only one defeat, but the Giants haven't won any of the games Jansen has started.

Both had extremely rough sledding Tuesday. Sain managed to go the distance, but he and the Braves were handed a 9-3 shellacking by Brooklyn Dodgers at Ebbets Field. The big right-hander was tagged for nine hits including home runs by Gene Hermanski and Pee Wee Reese.

Preacher Roe spaced seven hits for his first victory for the Dodgers, who regained the league lead, half a game in front of idle Pittsburgh at the Giants. Hermanski got two hits and also made the fielding gem of the game. He made the first triple play of the season, coming in fast to make a running catch of Alvin Dark's short fly. "A Hermanski-Jackie Robinson-Gil Hodges relay caught the tripled killing.

Has Not Gone Distance

Jansen still hasn't pitched a complete game. He lasted only six innings Tuesday as the Philadelphia Phils came from behind five times to nip the Giants 12-11 in 11 innings. After the Giants had taken a .11-9 lead in the top of the 11th, the Phils came roaring back with three runs climaxed by Del Ennis' home run, with a man on base.

Rookie Gerry Coleman slammed his first major league home run in the eighth inning to give New York Yankees a 5-4 victory over Philadelphia Athletics.

Coleman's round-tripper, one of his four hits, came off Alex Kellner who had re-placed starter Phil Marchildon in the first inning. The Canadian right-hander had complained of pain in his right shoulder while serving up to the first batter.

The victory was the American League-leading Yankees' seventh in eight starts.

Detroit Tigers moved into second place, a game and a half from the top, by taking both ends of a doubleheader from the White Sox in Chicago, 6-2 and 7-5. The Tigers had to go 10 innings to win the second game.

Johnny Groth, Detroit's sensational rookie, doubled home the runs in the extra frame that gave relief pitcher Dizzy Trout the triumph. Vic Wertz clinched the second game with a three-run homer.

Manager Lou Boudreau hit the first home run of the season and right-hander Bob Lemon scattered six hits to register his first shutout as Cleveland Indians nipped St. Louis Browns 1-0.

Zale Retires After Long, Brilliant Career in Ring

Chicago, April 27 — (AP) — Tony Zale, with enough gumption to admit that he is over the hill, has retired from the ring after a long, brilliant, rough career.

In making his decision, the man of steel whose age has made him a bit rusty, surrendered a $60,000 guarantee for a return bout with Marcel Cerdan. The Frenchman won Zale's middleweight boxing crown on a 12th round technical knockout in Jersey City last Sept. 21.

The two battlers had been rematched at New York's Polo Grounds June 21.

The Tournament of Champions prompted Zale now place to give veteran Steve Belloise or possibly battle — scarred Jake La Motta a chance at Cerdan in either June or September. A bout between Ray Robinson and Kid Gavilan for the welterweight title may be on the same card.

Zale will be 36 next month and is father of two young daughters.

"I looked bad against Cerdan," said Zale, a clean-living family man whose bloody scraps with Rocky Graziano made ring history. "I realize I've passed my peak. It was to satisfy my pride that I wanted to meet Cerdan again. But now I'm satisfied to rest on my past."

It took some convincing to bring out Zale's decision by co-managers Jack Pfau and Art Winch. They passed up a neat managerial cut from the Cerdan rematch to hand Zale retire "for his health and his family."

The two managers did the same with Joey Medill, Earl Mastro, Solly Shuman and Barney Ross in the past.

Zale held the middleweight championship from 1940 to 1948 except for a brief time in 1947 when he lost to Graziano in the second of their three fierce encounters.

Zale's three battles with Graziano paid him $268,866, a money record for middleweights. Zale extended his earnings to $388,- 823 by pocketing $120,000 guarantee for risking his title against Cerdan.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The pyramid club business is sweeping the city like a new broom. There are a lot of our personal friends who will not agree with us—but we still are of the opinion that it is a cracker jack idea. Benefit from the old chestnut letter racket. Go ahead, help yourselves to the easy money. All you have to do is get two other "suckers" to join up—and you are in. So you think.

The "first come—first served" is a familiar adage and that definitely applies to this old-new get-rich-quick-phony idea of the pyramid racket. For that is what it is. The idea will die as suddenly as it was born and you Johnny-Come-Latelies will be left holding the bag.

Do you realize that the far-reaching ramifications of this new painless extraction racket will encompass over 100,000 people in the city of Belleville with a population of 30,000 or less? Get wise, suckers. It's popularity will be on the wane within the next two weeks. The wiseabbiters who cashed in on the initial 6 at will lay off with smug smirks of "Thank You Sucker"—and you guys and gals who enter in the last heat of this easy financial race will be left holding the well-known bag.

SAY:—Does anybody want to join a Pyramid Club?

MEMO TO THE PYRAMID CLUB OR CLUBS

Listen, Listen, Here It Is 1133-J.

In the first case 'zone guys and gals who have a yen for sucker money, please go your own way—but by all means inform me when I don't want to join any Pyramid Club neither does my wife.

Being a member of the Fourth Estate, and being more or less on newspaper duty 24 hours of the day, of necessity we are forced to answer the telephone when it rings.

There are a lot of other fans-thinking people of this city, getting tired of rushing to the phone when it rings and hearing a pig-request voice asking us if we want to join a "Pyramid Club."

We, being of the newspaper clique, expect when the phone rings either to hear from friends; get an assignment from the sports editor, the city editor, or we have been the various police departments of the city as to crime, accidents or what have you. We are getting sick of these pestilential appeals from the sucker clan to join their coin rainfestation club. We don't like it. And please lay off us, willya?

N.B. For the information of jokers or otherwise, we have cut off the phone and made arrangements to have the news room to contact us personally in case of assignment.

Rumor has it that a softball team from Belleville will take part in the Softball Tournament being held in Peterborough on May 24th. Some $300 plus will be the purse—and he winner and the lads hereabouts figure they may as well take some of the Peterborough bonanza. The Belleville boys figure that such a team as Jim Hunter, Al Adams, Pal Marsele, Don Boyle forming the pitching staff; Vern Cross, first baser; Herbie Hean, 2nd base; Red Carson, shortstop; Jackie Wardaugh, 3rd base and in the outfield such outer-pasture stars as Genereux, Cross and Tim Tighe—together with other former ace munchball stars of the city, will represent the city.

The management of the Houston Lumber Company softball team yesterday denied rumors to the effect that they were forwarding an entry to the Peterborough Tournament. That means that Doc Boyle will definitely be available for the city team.

A few years ago Belleville entered the Peles tourney and but for the pilfering antics of the local umpire (and he admitted it afterwards under a barrage of words) the Quinte squad would have walloped them with a pocketful of Peterborough bucks. They defeated the best Toronto had and then came up against a team (Yeah, guess where from?) Peles Field, Peterborough, and were edged by a single run. And was Pat Calladine's face red after that battle. Best to the misses, Pat.

(I'll dare you to print that, Perdue.)

Digressing from sports for the nonce, the boys of the 34th Battery (Active) hereabouts are seriously considering taking in the reunion of the 31st Battery at Shawinigan Falls, Que., on May 5th. If sufficient are interested the gunner sweats will charter a bus and take in the fun. Anybody interested should contact Jim "Jock" Matheson at the City Hall Weigh Scales, Pinnacle Street. Should be a rousing party, eh?

Canadian Sport Snapshots

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Vancouver, April 27 — (CP) — Aroused by a "Mr. British Columbia" contest staged here recently, Eric (Vancouver Province) Whitehead passed on his readers the story of a real man which somebody passed on to him.

Apparently, he wrote, the grand-daughter of this all was a French-Canadian known as Louis Cyr who was "either a great weight-lifter or his friends were terrible liars."

Nobody says why he did it, Whitehead related, but Oct. 1, 1888, Louis hoisted 3,641 pounds in a Quebec village.

Another Cyr Louis had in his repertoire was placing of a table on his chest. Glasses and stood 20 men (where they could find room to stand wasn't mentioned.) Then Louis would get up.

A performance where Louis lifted 565 pounds off the finger is clouded as far as Whitehead is concerned — the finger wasn't specifically identified.

Vancouver plus did it right.

Muscles, the records say, aren't a male monopoly either. There was a girl known as Madam Elsie Whitehead said who used to crawl under a plank and lift six eight men.

Another identified as the "Singing Strong Lady," would support a platform, piano and a gentleman in that order. She'd rise up singing as the gentleman played accompaniment and bow out with a spirited buck and wing.

More Winners

It won't be the professionals' fault if British Columbia doesn't produce a champion with another junior golf champion this year, says Bill (Vancouver Province) Good.

He reports that Vancouver's golfing youth are being taken in hand for promotional purposes—in hopes next July will see B.C. retain the crown young Bill Mawhinney won last year.

Rouyn Flashes Even Series With Thurso Kings

Ottawa, April 27 (CP)—In a surprising last-period rally, Hilltoppers Flashes came from behind to shade Thurso Lumber Kings' 5-4 Thursday night and square their best-of-five eastern Canada Intermediate semi-final series at two games each. The deciding match will be played here today.

The Flashes had to come from behind a three-goal Thurso lead to knot the count at the 16:20 mark of the final frame. They scored the winning marker with less than one minute remaining in the game.

The winner of this series will advance against the Ontario team of either Port Colborne or Gananoque in the eastern Canada intermediate finale for the title.

Norm Oulmond registered the tying marker. The winning counter was scored from the stick of Neil Connolly. Other Rouyn scorers were Vince Thomson, Roger Vallieres and Ray Baril.

Rheal Payer paced the Lumber Kings. Lower Ottawa Valley champions, with two goals, Rheal Letang and Roger Chenier accounted for the others.

Senators, Caps Formidable Foes Say Observers

Ottawa, April 27 (CP)— Finding a common denominator for two hockey teams that haven't played within 750 miles of each other all season is an involved task.

However, with Regina Caps and Ottawa Senators—Allan Cup finalists—some sort of comparison can be based on the opinions of veteran sport observers.

Word on the Caps, who arrived here early today for opening of the best-of-seven series Thursday night, is that they are just a shade better than Edmonton Flyers who won the Canadian Senior championship last year.

The consensus among Ottawa followers is that Senators probably are a better balanced team when they lost to the Edmonton club in the hard-fought Allan Cup series a season ago.

Toss in the fact that both clubs are well-seasoned with experienced veterans, add a slight advantage for Ottawa playing on home ice and you have the makings of a nip-and-tuck series.

Currently, Senators rate as slim 6 to 5 favorites around the cup rink, but that's before anyone here has seen the Caps in action.

The Caps, with an impressive netminder in Bev Bentley, and with several fine forwards like Reverend Schnarr and Mel Hall backed up by such stellar rearguards as Gus Kyle, reached the playoffs in somewhat similar style to the Senators.

They came up against a younger and fast-skating team in Fort Frances Canadians and were extended to five games to win out.

Senators, at the same time, with an average age of about 27, faced the same type of club in Toronto Marlboros when they eliminated 4-2 in a see-saw series. Besides speaking with the younger Dukes, Ottawa showed a smooth, goal-getting finesse that stamped the team as definitely Allan Cup calibre.

Hockey Officials Are Co-operative In Investigation

(By The Canadian Press)

The Canadian Education Association said Tuesday night at Toronto that professional hockey officials had been co-operative into their investigation of student participating in professional sports.

In a statement of the National Council of Physical Fitness, the association expressed regret over publicity on the effect of professional athletics on high school students.

"It appears that the hockey situation, with regard to secondary school students, is fairly serious in Ontario, and to some extent in Montreal," the report said.

Dr. G. E. Hall, President of the University of Western Ontario urged that high schools and hockey organizations throughout the Dominion agree that no student shall play outside of his school without permission of the principal and athletic directorate.

Addressing members of the Kiwanis Club of Kitchener, he reviewed cases of 70 young hockey players whose high school careers had been changed because of hockey affiliations. "I am not criticizing professional sport in hockey as a game in its technique, but I am virtually concerned about a system that is definitely injuring our secondary school sport."

Conny Smythe, managing director of Toronto Maple Leafs is sure the National Hockey League will play a 70-game schedule next year. He's so confident, he said Tuesday in Toronto, that six of his players already had signed 70-game contract for next season and he has made arrangements to consume the other seven who've signed already or forty games are approved by the N.H.L. governors, who voted down the 10-game increase earlier this year.

With Freddie Thomas and Frank Marchand showing the way, Assumption College Purple Raiders Tuesday night hung on to an early lead to defeat Montreal YMCA 62-59 in the opening game of the eastern Canadian senior A basketball finals at Windsor. Second contest of the best-of-three series will be played also at Windsor tonight.

Toronto Central Y.M.C.A. became Eastern Canadian Junior Basketball champions Tuesday night with a 72-61 win over St. Stephen, N.B., Legionnaires. The series score was 135-101, Toronto having won the opener 63-40 Monday night. Both games were played in the New Memorial gymnasium in Calais, Maine, border town near St. Stephen.

Joe Cardinal, 183 1-4, of Oshawa, scored an unanimous decision over Rocky Johns, 147 1-2 of Albany, N.Y., in a six round bout on a boxing card at Buffalo New York, Tuesday night.

Hard-hitting Bucko McDonald, who led his Sundridge Beavers this season to their second straight Ontario Hockey Association Intermediate B title, Tuesday at North Bay was voted the most valuable player in his team. The Liberal member of parliament for Parry Sound was chosen by the North Bay and district hockey association's executive.

Dalziel Celtic soccer team left Belfast Tuesday on the second stage of their trip to Canada and the United States, leaving behind them a disappointed men in 21-year-old Jimmy Jones, $40,000 centre forward, still nursing a leg broken in a riot which followed a match last Dec. 26, he was advised by doctors not to travel.

The horse was brought onto the ice as part of the wild celebration touched off by the victory. Don Newcombe Pitches Second Straight Shutout

(By The Associated Press)

Brooklyn President Branch Rickey once hung a $500,000 price tag on pitcher Don Newcombe and then slashed it to $300,000. Today it's probably back to $500,000.

The husky Negro right-hander working on the Dodgers' Montreal plantation in the International League, pitched his second straight three-hit shutout Tuesday.

Newcombe, who at first balked at joining the Royals again for whom he won 17 games including a no-hitter last year, blanked Newark Bears, 4-0. He fanned 13 and walked three.

Jersey City Giants edged Buffalo Bisons 5-4 in a home-run duel. A three-run homer by Wes Westrum in the seventh'and one by Hank Thompson with the bases empty in the eighth turned the tide in favor of the Giants.

Cy Block, losing pitcher Jake Mooty and Booker Triplett homered to account for all of Buffalo's runs.

Wes Ball yeweet the distance for Jersey City to hang up his third straight league win.

Baltimore Orioles zipped Toronto Maple Leafs 8-7 in 10 innings with Al Chlocki breaking up the game with a bone run.

Ed Sandick and Dick Somers for Toronto. The Leafs blew a 5-1 lead in the ninth, the Orioles scoring five times to send the game into extra frames. Frank Marcano's two-run homer was the big blow of the Oriole uprising.

Olympic Games To be Expended When Next Held

Rome, April 27 — (AP) — The program for the 1952 Olympic Games will be expanded, rather than trimmed down.

That was settled Tuesday by the International Olympic Committee. Next important item on the agenda is the selection of the site for the 1956 games. Finland has host the next summer games in 1952.

The committee is hopeful that a decision will be reached by Friday. Among those making spirited bids for the award are Detroit, Melbourne, Buenos Aires and Mexico City.

Secret discussions of the last two days regarding a proposal to cut the 1952 program resulted in the I.O.C. voting it down. Actually, two, new sports were added but otherwise only minor changes of an administrative nature were made.

The latter sports to be added at Oslo in 1952 are curling, dropped after the 1924, and the northern ski game of orientation, a Scandinavian suggestion.

Some countries sought reimbursement allowances for athletes losing pay in their jobs while representing their state at the games. However the I.O.C. stood on its present pure amateur policy and refused to permit any participants receive reimbursements.

Brandon Favored To Take First Game of Series

Winnipeg, April 27 — (CP) — Fans and the betting fraternity here are calling Brandon Wheat Kings to take the first game of the best-of-seven Dominion junior hockey final against Montreal Royals tomorrow night.

Six will get you five if you are betting on the Wheaties, with the odd bookie laying seven-to-five. However, odds on the series vary, with many bookies keeping off until they've had a "look see" at the unfamiliar Royals.

The general opinion seems to be that Brandon met tougher opposition in the west than Royals did in the east. But there are those who believe the Montreal squad must be good to knock-off Barrie Flyers, 1947-48 eastern champions, in four straight.

Two factors give Brandon an edge in the first game: they've played most of the season on Winnipeg ice; and they won't be worn from the long train ride the Royals had.

Little to Choose

As for the teams themselves, there's little to choose, with Brandon somewhat slightly edged in goal.

The brilliant Ray Frederick, a Fort Frances, Ont. youngster playing his final year of junior hockey, has been a standout all season for the Wheat Kings. Coach Lorne or Calgary Buffaloes, whom Brandon knocked off in the western final four games to one, says Frederick is "80 per cent of the Brandon team."

While this statement is considered a slight exaggeration, Frederick is considered one of the best netminders to come out of the west in years.

However, the Quebec team is definitely not weak in goal, either, and will be well served by Bob Bleau.

Both defence aggregations pack weight and the forward lines, the teams are considered fairly equal. Glen Sonmor, shifty Brandon winger, was a terrific scoring punch while the chips are down. Gordie Labrecque Rayson, formerly of Regina Pats, is Montreal's top scoring threat.

Brown Bomber Makes Debut As Promoter

Detroit, April 27 — (AP) — Joe Louis tonight makes his debut as promoter.

The former heavyweight champion will start his new career by staging a boxing show in his home town.

Three 10-rounders, a six-round preliminary and a four - round exhibition featuring the world featherweight champion, Willie Pep of Hartford, Conn., are on the program at Olympia Stadium.

As a promoter, Joe didn't disregard the build-up.

With Louis at ringside will be another former heavyweight champion, Jack Dempsey. Dempsey will second his protege, Ellis Ask of Finland, who opposes Pep in the exhibition.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

The Kibitzer

Expert play shies away from finesses whenever possible. Search for endplays is given preference. Why? Because where an endplay exists the taking of a finesse is unnecessary.

An endplay becomes most effective after a series of preparations. Declarer leads up to it by first stripping as many suits as possible. An opponent is then thrown into the lead.

By this time the thrown-in opponent does not have much choice in return leads. He is stripped down to where he must lead some suit that may be of help to the declarer.

These were the thoughts of south at a doubled contract of four hearts in this deal:

NORTH
♦J 7 4
♣A 9 8 4

WEST
♠J 9 8 2
♥K J 2
♦K Q 5
♣K Q 10 6

EAST
♥A Q 10 4 3 2
♦A 10 8 2

SOUTH
♦9 6 3
♣J 7 5 3 2

Opening lead from west was club queen. When the dummy spread it was quite clear to declarer in the black suits.

If all the possible finessing in red suits turned out bad, four tricks could be lost. So declarer sped toward laying the groundwork for endplays as much as possible.

The ace of clubs took the club king. A spade was grabbed by dummy ace and a heart to dummy return was ruffed by south. Dummy was entered with the ace of trumps and a return spade was ruffed by south.

South led a small diamond that went caught with the queen. The club return was ruffed with trump by south. Diamond ace was cashed and a small spade finished lead was pulled in with the west king.

The club return from west was ruffed by east and overruffed by south with heart ace. Now the last diamond was led from south. West must ruff with heart jack to win and is endplayed.

With nothing but two trumps left, west must return one. This gives both last tricks to south with queen and ace of hearts. All you have to do is know how and when.

Farm Family On Broadcast For 10 Years

By JEAN THOMPSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

There's an unusual anniversary coming up the first Monday in May. The Craigs of Briarwood Farm will begin their 11th year as the farm family on CBC's noon-hour farm broadcast for Ontario and Quebec.

That a serial should be going after 10 years is not so remarkable. But that the original actors and the original script-writer have put on some 2,400 programs —five days a week, 50 weeks a year for 10 years, at the same time every day — there's a record worth noting.

Fact and fiction have been subtly blended in the story of the Craigs. The history of the Craigs has unfolded at Craigs' Briarwood Farm as located at some indefinite spot in eastern Ontario. But when script-writer Dean Hughes bought a farm near Unionville, Ont., he called it Briarwood.

The daily life of the Craigs, while carefully related to farm routine, is fictional. But when Grace Webster, who plays Martha Craig, broke her leg two years ago, Martha did the same thing in the script, and the studio was moved to the actress's bedside until she could reappear in the studio again.

Frank Peddle, a Toronto lawyer, is Thomas Craig, George Murray, radio singer and actor is his son Bill Craig, while daughter Janice Craig is petite Allen Hill, stage and radio actress.

The idea of a radio farm family was originated in 1939 by Orville Shugg, former supervisor of farm broadcasts for CBC. He objected to promote better farming practices, and to entertain at the same time.

One of the astonishing things about the program is the way its popularity has grown over the years the decade. Dean Hughes likes to think it is contributing something toward better understanding between country and city folk.

Other broadcasts of serious interest in Canada have their farm families, too. There are the Lambs of Prince Gillians, on the Prairies the Jackmans with the Ontario Cruets and Carsons. While following the broadcasts of the Craig family, the lives of the other radio families are typical of the regions they represent.

Names of the 1949 winners in the "Singing Stars of Tomorrow" competition will be announced soon by them. Turning up the record we find that all of them know a thing or two about singing, "if at first you don't succeed . . ."

Louise Roy, St. Boniface, Man., soprano who won this year's $1,000 scholarship, lost for the second award to women in 1947 and was runner-up finalist in 1945.

Morley Margolis, Winnipeg baritone and 1949 winner of first place for men, was CFRB's semi-finalist in the 1948 contest. The judges of each performance of honorary and carried no award.

This year's second girl winner, awarded a $500 scholarship, is Jean Marshall, young Toronto soprano who was a contestant in previous years.

Winner of the second award for men two years in succession was Ernest Adams, Toronto baritone, who won a $250 scholarship in 1946, and a $500 scholarship in 1949.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, April 27 — (AP)— Here's how the state of Hollywood looks on this mid-spring day.

Another Hollywood landmark has bitten the dust, figuratively speaking. This time it's Claudette Colbert's bangs. She has abandoned them for her role as a Japanese prison-camp inmate in "Three Came Back." It will be the first time in 17 years she has appeared without them on the screen.

Charlie Chaplin and Mary Pickford, who have livened the film business these many years are losing their stormy control of United Artists, almost sold out. But they reneged at the last moment and assure lively years for U. A. are assured.

Lots of Work

Another edict of fall production ahead came out of resctivated Warner Brothers, and two horse operas were put into the works there. At least one star, Alexis Smith, was on suspension.

Some of Selznick Studio's property was on the auction block this week, and David O. was soon to be off for Europe to see his potential bride, Jennifer Jones.

In Washington there were talks about getting a better deal for American films in Britain. The prospect brought a new wave of optimism about economic conditions in Hollywood. But despite a few days of sunshine, fog had set in, and many folks found it was still chilly standing in line for their unemployment cheques.

Old Troupers

Recently I had talks with Gloria Swanson and Erich Von Stroheim and it was a pleasure. These troupers listened with interest and talked provocatively on a variety of subjects.

To me it was a welcome contrast to some of the young upstarts who have been thrust into stardom. Some of them consider interviews as something to be endured and babble small talk aimlessly.

WE'LL MEET AGAIN

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

"Gay, my dear, look at me. I love Diana. I loved Jerry's mother but that was a long time ago. Now I'm in love with your lovely mother. My idea to ask her to live with Jerry wasn't entirely unselfish. I'll go down for weekends and I know in time that she will love me. I won't surry her. You're young, Gay, very young. Diana and I are young, too."

"You told me once you had always wanted a daughter, Gordon, so I hope someday I am your daughter."

She found Diana in tears when she got home several nights later.

"I wrote to Patti and she's horrified," Diana said. "She says she'll never be able to hold her head up again if I accept. Gordon's son, she called me. She says that Richard is disgusted with both of us and threatens to leave Washington because he's so ashamed."

"Did he offer any help?" Gay asked. "He didn't, but we don't mean his help, Mother. Of course, you're going and you'll take the sorities with you. Patti's hysterical threats don't mean anything. She'll still give delightful parties in her big house and lead the youngster merced set."

"That was nothing to do, darling! You've never spent a summer in the city in your life. My conscience will kill me, thinking of you."

Gay smiled, pulled Macduff's black ear. "Oh, I'll be fine. You will see. I'll get down to see you on weekends and Jerry and I will go swimming."

Two days later she went with Diana to the train, determined that their parting should be cheerful. Gordon, accompanying Diana, was conscious of the strain on Gay's face.

"Tell me all about Mrs. Brent's charity ball," Diana said. "I do hope the scotties stand the trip well. Poor darlings, they're so frightened. Gay, if you're unhappy, I'll come back. You know I will. If only you were as safe and protected as Patti!"

She kissed her mother, gripped Gordon's hand, and turned away. People on the street were a misty blur as she walked. "If only you were as safe and protected as Patti." All mothers thought that. But there were high mad heights of love that Gay wanted. "I want heights," she thought. "I don't want a refuge."

The next day was the eve of Lucia's wedding and the charity ball. She could not sit in the latest studio bereft of Diana and the scotties, and think of all that had been lost and the years of futility ahead. She went to see Penny and Mac and found them occupying one large chair by the window and Mac called me. She says that Richard is disgusted with both of us and threatens to leave Washington because he's so ashamed."

He grinned to take the sting from his words.

"When I've had luck, I'll tell you. Oh, I'll sell it. It's not going to lick me." Mac, courageous and confident again. "The opening night of this play will be the biggest opening this town ever saw."

"Perhaps," Penny said hopefully, "this play will bring Chris back."

Mac looked at Gay. "Do you want him to come back?"

She picked up her gloves and said, "Yes, before it's too late."

Gay spent three hours in a beauty shop the next morning being groomed for the part Mardi and had assigned her in Mrs. Brent's charity ball. Looking at herself the operator made each red curl perfect against her head, she thought, and spent quite a lot of people to look at me. I just want to be lovely for one man, the man I love."

At eight o'clock that night she was in a bedroom at Mrs. Brent's town house. A little French maid was there to dress her and the exquisite wedding gown lay on the bed. The other manikins were dressing in an adjoining room. Nita had not said anything but her glance had a bladelike sharpness. Music from the vast ballroom below sifted upward.

Society came to Mrs. Brent's ball because an invitation from her was a command they could not ignore.

There was dancing to a famous orchestra. A baritone, famous on two continents, sang. A blues singer sang her song of heartbreak and a humorist made dry jokes about the government. All for sweet charity. But what society remembered the most of all was Gay Van Avery as a manikin. Some said, "She won't go through with it before all of us." Others said loyally, "She will. Gay has courage."

Even in a ballroom so crowded, Leila Van Avery's severe expression was conspicuous for her radiance. Friends paused to say how lovely she looked. "Here is the big day for you."

Alan said, "Tomorrow night we'll be out at sea."

"I hated to have your bachelor dinner cut short, Alan," said Gay. "But we simply had to come."

"Don't worry, that's refuge."

She kissed her mother, gripped Gordon's hand, and turned away. People on the street were a misty blur as she walked. "If only you were as safe and protected as Patti." All mothers thought that. But there were high mad heights of love that Gay wanted. "I want heights," she thought. "I don't want a refuge."

"Who was it, Julie?"

"I'm not Julie," said Alan.

She turned quickly. "Alan, you must not . . ."

She was a picture standing there, he thought, framed against a dark background. What was it, he wondered, that drove him back to her when he had good reason to him that Lucia's money was more to be desired than a slim princess of a girl with startling hair?

Gay's eyes were steady. "You are being married tomorrow, Alan."

"And you are a bride tonight. My bride. You've always been."

He came closer.

"Don't, Alan, no," she said. "This isn't my dress. You must go, Alan. I'm not a guest here as you are. This is part of my business day. As it is, it isn't easy for me to go down there and face people I know."

The sorry about that night. My rotten temper." He touched her, but his touch lacked the old magic to stir her. "I'm going to be married tomorrow," he said solemnly, "but when I come back from my honeymoon, I'm going to do something for you. This is not going to be over, Gay. I'm going to keep on seeing you, married or not."

She drew away and lifted her chin. She did not love him now. All feeling for him was suddenly swept away by the ugly exhilaration of his words. He flashed an intimate smile at her.

"There was a time when you touched me or smiled at me like that," she said, "that I would have followed you to the end of the earth. What have you done to my love, Alan? I'll tell you. You've degraded it and made it cheap and ugly! Tonight, this minute, you destroyed it! I'm not in love with you now. I'm free of you. I've wanted to be free of you a long time because I know you never really loved me. I was simply a conquest! She nodded and said, low, "You put a price on everything. Even on a woman's love. Oh, I understand very well. When you are married to Lucia and have control of her money you still want to see the shopworn charms the manikin who fascinates you! You're not Alan. You're one of a thousand men who take shopping. You can't afford me! Well you can't now! When you touch me, it's a stranger's touch. When you smile at me, I feel nothing. Please go, Alan. I'm not flattering myself this time, Alan."

"You'll be sorry you said that," he said quiet airplanes, and some day I'm going to own a whole fleet of them flying every place in the world and back, and you can have all the rides you want without a tickit, and anyways every plane is going to serve free ice cream before and after every meel, he said.

Sounding like a good excuse for not buying anything from the Happy Days man, and I said, I dont give a darn about ice cream either. Anything that sweet has no business being that cold, that's a way I feel about it: I'm more intristed in candy, because candy is even sweeter without being so dam cold, and I'll have a candy factory in every big city there is, so wherever you move to you can go rite in and help yourself to all you want, because I'll give you a letter to the manager, and I may even make a special kind with ice cream in the middle just private for you, I said.

Which just then the Happy Days man drove passed slow on account of us not stopping him, and Mary Watkins said, Oh, keep your old airplanes and keep your old candy factories and keep your old ice cream too. I'm going in the house, she said.

Which she did.

Widow of Philippines First President Slain

Manila, April 28 (AP) — Mrs. Aurora Quezon, widow of the Philippines' first President, her daughter and grandson were killed today in a bloody machine-gun ambuscade that brought death to 10 persons.

Ten others were wounded.

President Elpidio Quirino notified of the ambush in the mountains of Northern Luzon ordered an immediate campaign against the killers, whom he identified as bandits.

Incomplete reports here said the party was moving through a narrow gorge of the Sierra Madre mountains, 88 miles from Manila, when a burst of machine-gun fire riddled the first two automobiles. They carried Mrs. Quezon and her immediate party.

Troopers Return Fire

Constabulary troopers returned the fire. There was a sharp fight in which the leader was killed, three dead and seven wounded.

Killed were Mrs. Quezon; her daughter, Maria Aurora Quezon; and Felipe Buencamino, husband of Mrs. Quezon's youngest daughter, Zenaida.

Also dead were Mayor Policarpo Bernardo of Quezon City, Maj. Profirio San Augustin and his brother Maj. Antonio San Augustin, both noted guerilla fighters during the war with Japan, and lieutenant and three constabulary privates.

There were reports that the bodies had been looted of jewelry and valuables. Quirino said this was indication that the attackers were bandits and not hukbalahaps, Communist-directed peasantl.

Mrs. Quezon was beloved by Filipinos for her charity work with children, for leading the anti-tuberculosis movement for Filipino women and as chairman of the Philippine Red Cross.

Applause Greets Announcement By St. Laurent

Ottawa, April 28. (CP)—The Commons greet with thunderous applause Wednesday night Prime Minister St. Laurent's announcement that India has decided to remain as a full partner in the British Commonwealth of Nations.

Mr. St. Laurent read the text of the London statement detailing the results of the deliberations of the commonwealth prime ministers on the constitutional question.

He said he was sure all Canadians would rejoice in this new demonstration of the traditional capacity of the commonwealth to strengthen its unity of purpose, while adopting its organization and procedures to changed circumstances."

"Everyone will rejoice in the fact that, notwithstanding the exercise by the people of India of their right to determine the form of their democratic government, it has been found possible to have India remain as a member of the Commonwealth, and to continue the association of those nations whose flags give to them the same concept of a proper way of living and of democratic processes designed to further the welfare of the men and women of their respective nations."

Hon. Drew Brown, Progressive Conservative leader, said the outcome of the London conference constituted "one of the most momentous decisions" in many years and marked the first time in the long commonwealth history that an eastern nation has joined the commonwealth as a full and free partner.

"It may well mark the beginning of a new period of growth and development of the general institution of free men that the world has ever known."

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, said the development did not constitute the "liquidation" of the British Empire "but the creation of something far greater than the Empire has ever been."

MALIK PROMISES RUSSIA WILL LIFT BLOCKADE

Council of Foreign Ministers is Requested

New York, April 28 (CP)—A top-level British source today revealed that Russia's Jakob A. Malik verbal assurances the Berlin blockade will be lifted if a council of foreign ministers is called.

Tass News Agency report said these were the conditions: Simultaneously lifting by east and west of transport restrictions and setting a date for a meeting of the foreign ministers.

The source said there was no expectation here the blockade would be lifted within three or four days as reports from the American capital suggested.

He said there probably would first be a meeting here of representatives of the four big powers to decide on dates for lifting the blockade and convening the council of foreign ministers.

Statesmen of many countries expressed hope that the east and west may be on the verge of negotiations that will end the present deadlock, might bring the cold war to an end.

A dispatch from Eddy Gilmore, Associated Press correspondent in Moscow, said diplomats there considered Russia and the three western powers may have made a agreed in a new stage of mutual relations.

Dr. Philip C. Jessup, American ambassador-at-large, submitted yesterday the request that the Russians say officially and in writing what they have in mind for settling the Berlin blockade, as main cold-war irritant.

Unusual Secrecy

Jessup's 52-minute meeting yesterday with the soviet deputy foreign ministers, Andrei A. Gromyko and Jakob A. Malik, was surrounded by unusual secrecy.

Reports said Malik told Jessup that Russia would not ask the western allies to change their plans to set up a west German republic, independent of the Soviet zone. There had been a lot of speculation that the Kremlin hgd given the new overtures in an effort to block formation of the west German state.

Thus far the Russians have stood publicly on an announcement by their official news agency, Tass, that they have offered to lift the blockade if the westerners will lift theirs and call a foreign ministers issue to four-power discussion.

Before the Tass announcement, the Soviet Union had insisted that the four-power meeting precede the lifting of the blockade, a condition which the west rejected.

Duke of Edinburgh Describes Himself As Member of a Lost Generation

Bangor, Wales, April 28 (CP)— Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh, described himself as a member of a "lost generation" today.

Accepting the honorary post of chancellor of the University College, he said "the war cut short any chance there was of acquiring a higher education.

"The immense strain upon the resources of all the universities at the present moment is largely due to this lost generation trying to make up for what it missed between 1939 and 1945."

First official act of the 27-year-old Prince as Chancellor was to bestow an honorary degree of Doctor of Music on his wife, Princess Elizabeth. He said he hoped it would enrich her "precious life."

Prime Minister Attlee received an honorary doctorate of civil law. He calmly halted him as "the clear exponent and the vigorous champion of our western way against all its detractors, striving ever to mend what they would end."

While the Royal couple drove to the college a group of young men greeted Prince Philip's accession to the Chancellory with banners saying:

"Is this a joke? A Welsh chancellor for the Welsh University."

New Ontario Premier

Leslie M. Frost, 54-year-old Lindsay lawyer, Provincial Treasurer and Minister of Mines was elected Progressive Conservative Leader and Premier at a convention held in Toronto. He was named on the first ballot against three other candidates.

Transfusions Used To Replace Blood Of Baby Completely

Toronto, April 28 — (CP) — A day-old baby boy today was reported in "fairly good" condition in hospital following transfusions completely replacing his blood.

John Joe Griffin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Griffiths, was rushed to the Hospital for Sick Children Wednesday night in an ambulance that took only 59-minutes to make the 57-mile trip from Barrie.

Doctors had given the baby little chance for survival. Suffering a blood malady, he was in an incubator since birth and was kept alive by administering oxygen continuously.

An emergency donor was waiting at the hospital. The child's two RH negative blood in which anti-bodies were destroying the red cells completely, hospital officials said.

The baby weighed six pounds 10 ounces when born yesterday to Mrs. Griffith, 23-year-old war bride from Surrey, England, who married her R.C.A.F. husband overseas. The couple has another four-year-old daughter.

The mother remained in Barrie and is reported doing well.

Princess Has No Gold Coins To Give Diving Boys Told

Naples, April 28 (Reuters) — There was brilliant sunshine and a clear blue sky today when Princess Margaret arrived here by plane to start a month's private visit to Italy.

Sir Victor Mallet, British ambassador to Italy was waiting at Capodichino airfield when the two-engined Viking—part of the King's flight—landed.

The 19-year-old Princess will spend one night here in a hotel suite overlooking the slopes of Vesuvius.

She leaves for Capri today by motor launch. Later she will visit Sorrento, Rome, Florence, Venice and Siena.

At her own wish she will be treated as a private visitor. She will stay in hotels during a her tour, except in Rome where she will stay at the British embassy.

Rome newspapers warned the "Scrugnizzi" (waterfront boys) of Naples not to expect Princess Margaret to follow Neapolitan tradition by throwing gold coins into the bay for them to retrieve.

The Princess was carrying only £50 ($200)—the official British tourist allowance—the papers said, and would have no money to spare.

Most of the newspapers stressed the point that Princess Margaret was coming to Italy because she wanted to, not "as a matter of high policy."

The Princess, in a blue-grey dress and white straw hat, stepped from the plane she was surrounded by about 50 photographers and 100 reporters.

She was presented with a bouquet of red roses and carnations from the mayor of Naples and officers and men of Naples' naval base.

Reeves and Mayors Pay Tribute to Late Miss Henderson

Hamilton, April 28 — (CP) Resolution in tribute to the late Miss Jean Frances Henderson, county council member for 16 years, was passed at the Ontario Association of Mayors and Reeves convention today by Reeve Jim Shipley, of Teck township, and was passed unanimously.

Mayor Sam Lawrence, president of the association, conducted the morning session. Committee to consider resolutions will be Mayor Ralph Steel, of Chatham; Mayor Gordon Rife, of Guelph; and Reeve Barry Atkinson, Sandwich township.

COMMONS ROLLS SWIFTLY AHEAD TO DISSOLUTION

Three Sittings Daily Order of Government

Ottawa, April 28 — (CP) — The Commons rolled swiftly ahead in its pre-dissolution drive yesterday, with all parties seeking to accumulate election ammunition along the way.

After an opening tangle of procedural questions, the Chamber quickly adopted a government bill to increase old - age pensions from $30 to $40 a month, virtually completed a bill to permit the building of oil and gas pipe-lines in Western Canada and reopened the lingering budget debate.

Running through the debates, short-lived though they were, was a flurry of skirmishing for positions which might influence the voters in the June general election campaign.

Against Hours

This was apparent right from the start when George Drew, Progressive-Conservative leader, and other party chieftains walloped the government for introduction of a motion to extend the sitting hours of the Chamber from now until dissolution, probably Friday night.

M. J. Coldwell, C. C. F. leader, and Solon Low, Social Credit party head, agreed that the government should have disposed of certain important bills on the order paper before going to the country.

Police Injure Five Students

Calcutta, April 28 — (Reuters) — Five students of the Calcutta University were injured today when police opened fire to disperse a procession.

The students were protesting against police who Wednesday fired on a women's procession, killing seven women and wounding seven others.

Wednesday's procession followed a meeting addressed by a women's Communist organization to express sympathy with Communist prisoners on a hunger strike in West Bengal jails. The procession had been banned, and hand grenades were thrown as the police moved to disperse it.

MARRIAGE REFORM PASSED

New Delhi (CP) — The Indian Parliament has passed three bills concerning marriage reform. The first raises the marriageable age of girls from 14 to 15 years (marriageable age of boys remaining at 18); the second validates many marriages between Hindus, Sikhs and Jains and the third raises the age of consent from 14 to 16 in respect of extramartial offences.

Speculate in Ontario Political Circles On Possible Cabinet Changes

Toronto, April 28 — (CP) — Speculation on possible cabinet changes occupied political circles today in the wake of Leslie M. Frost's election yesterday as Ontario Progressive Conservative leader.

The present cabinet, headed by Premier Kennedy, met this morning but Mr. Frost, provincial treasurer and minister of mines, was not present. He is to meet with Mr. Kennedy later in the day when they are expected to decide when the new premier will appoint a minister and head of the government.

Mr. Frost presented to government circles that all members of the cabinet will submit their resignations to give Mr. Frost a free hand in choosing his ministers. It is also reported that this is purely formal procedure and does not signify any wholesale changes. It is also reported that the resignation of Hon. Russell T. Kelley, Minister of Health, will not be included because of his illness.

Find Only 60 P.C. Of S. S. Scholars Attend Regularly

Toronto, April 28 — (CP) — Only 60 per cent of the boys and girls enrolled in United Church Sunday Schools attend regularly, the church's Board of Christian Education learned yesterday.

Rev. Alvin Cooper of Toronto, associate secretary of the board, said 50 per cent of the church's Sunday Schools across Canada have less than 30 members. Seventy per cent of them have less than 50 and some 40 per cent, more than 100.

Lindsay Lawyer Named PC Leader On First Ballot

Receives 834 of 1,462 Votes Cast by the Delegates

Toronto, April 28 (CP) — Leslie Frost, an easy winner in Wednesday's Ontario Progressive Conservative leadership convention will become premier of Ontario, probably next week.

The 54-year-old lawyer from the Eastern Ontario town of Lindsay said he would meet today with Premier Kennedy who is still government leader. He had not had time to consider cabinet changes, Mr. Frost said.

The vote which ended the three day convention gave the provincial treasurer and mines minister 834 of the 1,462 votes cast and a whopping majority over the three Toronto lawyers who ran against him. Attorney-General Blackwell received 442; Kelso Roberts, former member of the legislature, 121; and Dana Porter, Education Minister 63.

"I got into this leadership race only two weeks ago and I haven't had time since to think about anything else," Mr. Frost told newspaper men who asked about his plans.

There is speculation that he will make W. S. Gemmell of Sudbury, mines minister. Another question concerned the intentions of Mr. Blackwell, who resigned as Attorney General last year and then agreed to remain in the cabinet for a time.

Ever Mr. Frost, favored candidate in pre-convention speculation, was surprised to win a clear majority on the first ballot. The number of votes polled by each candidate was then announced to the convention but chairman Alex McKenzie told the delegates Mr. Frost had won.

South Africa Will Not Leave Commonwealth

London, April 28 (Reuters) — South Africa has no intention of leaving the Commonwealth, Fellow Minister Daniel F. Malan said today in a radio broadcast.

She desires to maintain her Commonwealth association "as long as there is any vestige left of her rights—even her right to secede," he said.

Welcoming the west European union and the Atlantic Pact, Malan said:

"In the world situation as we know it today, the sympathies of South Africa lie with the west."

Nickel Research Greatly Expands Use of Metal

By FORBES RHUDE
(Canadian Press Business Editor)

One of Canada's great mining empires is International Nickel Company of Canada, Ltd., which held its annual meeting yesterday.

In deference to current thinking, perhaps it should be called a Commonwealth, for it operates in Canada, Britain and the United States and sells its products over the world.

If one man might be called "Mr. Nickel" of today, it is Robert C. Stanley, who has been with the company most of its life and has presided over its years of greatest expansion.

Nickel, before the turn of the century, was somewhat of a nuisance. It was complicated the production of copper, with which it is associated in its Canadian ore. Then it was discovered that a tough nickel-steel could be made, especially valuable for armament and it was a vital metal of the First World War.

With peace came the problem of finding new markets to the increased production, and there was where Mr. Stanley took over. He had joined the company in 1901 and in 1937 he became chairman of the board and president.

A new use for nickel was created to find new industrial uses for metal, and production of 50,084,000 in 1922 was about eight times that much in 1945, its record year.

The United States alone in 1948 used 177,000,000 pounds, whereas before 1939 it had never used more than 91,000,000 pounds.

Many Metals Recovered

While International Nickel is usually thought of in terms of the metal that gives it its name, nickel companies only 22.6 per cent of its 1948 sales volume of $197,021,736.

Refined copper accounted for 27.22 per cent; rolled metals 27.76, platinum group metals, gold and silver 1.27; and other metals 2.35. For, in addition to producing 66 per cent of the world's nickel, the company is the leading producer of platinum and palladium and is fifth among world copper producers.

A stately Regina orchestral music box with plastering inadvance any cabinet of 1890 vintage heard chiming out tunes of the gay nineties, is creating more than a little interest these day at the Front Street jewelry store of Paul Mercier.

The music box, owned by a prominent local family was brought to Mr. Mercier for repair when the mechanism failed to operate in the manner in which it was intended.

Console Model

The Regina orchestral music box is the "console" model of the Reginaphone, a table model machine which apparently operated in a manner something between an early phonograph and a player piano. Steel discs or records for the music box are 27 inches in diameter and are slotted in the manner of player piano music rolls.

The discs revolve vertically but in the same manner as a phonograph record, the slotted openings operating the mechanism which creates music similar to the harpsichord. A simple turn of a lever brought in a banjo effect at will. One turn of the disc completes the tune.

The modern "juke" boxes have nothing on the old time Regina music box. The machine would automatically play twelve records while repeats of the same records could also be played.

Literature with the machine indicated that extra "tune discs" bearing tunes of the old masters and popular music, could be obtained at $1.75 each.

And, like the "juke" box, the machine "could also be fitted to catch the nickels and dimes of the general public. Then the drop of a coin would set the machine in operation to play any one of the 12 discs in the music box.

Patents Dated 1893

Although the music box was bought locally after the turn of the century, the last patents on the machine were dated 1893 it was purchased from the Regina Company in New York, through a Montreal agent.

The company by the way which handled the machines in the gay nineties has ceased to carry them. In fact present employees of the firm informed Mr. Mercier when he enquired for parts that they did not realize the firm had ever carried them.

Today the firm handles pressure cookers.

Income Taxpayers Have Just Two Days More to File Returns

With only two more days for income returns to be filed, but approximately one-half of the expected number of returns have been filed at the Belleville district office, it was stated today by local income tax office officials.

To date there have been but 16,000 returns filed for the Belleville district comprising the counties of Hastings, Prince Edward, Northumberland and Peterborough. Total returns expected to be filed are in the neighborhood of 60,000.

However, in order to give the general public every opportunity of filing their returns before the midnight, April 30th, and thus save the penalty for late filing, the Belleville office will remain open all day on Saturday. Income tax returns will be accepted from nine in the morning until six o'clock in the evening.

Minister of National Revenue, the Hon. J. L. Ilsley has announced there are an estimated 3,632,000 returns to be received from all income tax payers across Canada. As of April 20th only 1,400,965 returns have been filed.

As the deadline for filing tax returns draws near, the mail at the Belleville office is increasing daily. Wednesday five huge bags of mail containing approximately 5,000 tax returns were received.

In addition are the returns taken personally to the Belleville office.

With approximately 60,000 people in the Belleville district of the above four counties, it is estimated that about one in every three persons file an income tax return. Population for the four county district is estimated at 180,000.

Lima Beans Will Be Grown in Waupoos Area

Farmers in the Waupoos area in Prince Edward County will this year grow green Lima beans for canning, it has been learned.

Eighty-five acres of the beans will be contracted and will be packed by the Waupoos Canning Company, it is to be hoped for pack in Eastern Ontario. New equipment will be used for planting and harvesting.

Lima beans are one of the big cash canning crops in certain districts of the United States.

An acre of lima beans is stated to yield about three quarters of a ton, compared with a ton of peas. Peas bring $60 per ton while Lima beans bring $100. The beans are grown in rows 30 inches apart on warm, well drained land. Planting is done in the period May 24 to June 10.

Medium to good weighty steers sold at $20-$22. Medium quality fed yearlings brought $19.50-$21.25. A few stockers went for $16-$19.50.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, April 28 (CP)— Calgary and Edmonton featured dull trading here today, advancing 45 cents to $5.50, a gain of 85 cents in two days.

Volume for the first three hours was 381,000 shares, about 64,000 shares more than yesterday's similar period.

Papers continued to lead the industrial list in a slightly broader decline.

Golds were steady in early dealings but began to back down in mid-session. Seniors showed fractional losses and junior producers began to lose their earlier advantages.

Noranda and International Nickel were down fractions in base metals.

POLICE BLOTTER

City police continue to crack down on motorists who persist in the Emily and Bleecker Avenue with a dozen or more drivers being checked within the past 24 hours for different offences.

Speeding and failure to stop at "stop" streets are the most numerous offences, but motorists checked for any infraction are having summons issued. Almost all the drivers pay up before the matter comes into court.

Thefts of milk bottles seem to have marred a freshly-poured concrete floor by walking through the soft cement. A new finish job was required by the contractor.

A Point Anne motorist was charged with careless driving when police were informed that on three occasions he had prevented another vehicle from passing, while driving on Dundas Street, East. On each occasion as the following vehicle attempted to pass, the motorist was stated to have pulled to the left side of the street.

A Dundas Street service station operator reported a box of clothing had been stolen from his place of business.

Funeral Directors of Quinte District Convene in City; W. Hicks, Picton, President

Members of the Bay of Quinte Funeral Directors' Association, which includes the district from Picketing to Kingston, south of Highway No. 7 and including Peterborough, Lindsay and Prince Edward County held their second annual convention under the chairmanship of Ralph Weaver, Trenton, at the Hotel Quinte, on Wednesday. The afternoon session was devoted to a discussion concerning the profession and in the evening a banquet was held at which E. D'Arcy Finn, executive editor of the Ottawa Citizen, was the principal speaker.

Clayton Maxwell of Trenton was the song leader with an orchestra led by Phil Huddleston and three members of the Committee providing the "music." Winston Hicks of Picton becomes president of the association for the ensuing year with E. McFadden vice president and Vernon Lindsay, Kingston, "Army" Armstrong, Oshawa, and Max Kay of Peterborough as directors.

Toast to Ladies

Ralph Weaver presided at the banquet as chairman and the toast to the ladies was proposed by Jack Whalen, president of the Ontario Funeral Directors' Association and the reply was given by Mrs. W. Dickens of Bowmanville. Mr. Whalen, in a heart-to-heart talk with the delegates, asked them to consider their employees with respect to labor relations. Ross Beckett, chairman of the Board of Examiners, continued the subject of labor relations, admitting it was a ticklish question and that employers and employees should talk over in an amicable way the matter of wages and hours because he stated there must be loyalty between the parties or trouble will certainly ensue.

The speaker of the night was introduced by Keith Campbell of Ottawa stating that the speaker was so well thought of that he has been president of the Ottawa Curling Club for eight years. He stated that Mr. Finn was the writer of the column in the Citizen "Once Over Lightly" that is read by a great number each day because it brings a little sunshine into a drab world. Mr. Finn, a jovial Irishman with a ready quip, was in his element as he stated "this is the best "wake" I have ever attended.

"I did intend to speak to you men tonight on "The Margarine Issue in the Forthcoming Election" but I thought that would be over your heads, so I am going to talk about your profession as it effects the lives of others. You are the finest fellows in the world to the newspapermen, that are in constant contact with you, except when the paper mentions the wrong ambulance was at the scene of an accident," said Mr. Finn. He stated that great strides had been made in the profession, the most notable being the "Cosmetic Technique," which has revolutionized the whole industry. Mr. Finn also claimed that science was doing its best to have everyone live to a ripe old age and this may give the Funeral Directors many less years and probably they would have to go into the business of "planting" or "transportation" at which they are quite capable.

"Science" said the speaker "has invented the motor car and the level crossing and what a blessing they have been for funeral directors. The atom bomb has also been invented and if that implement ever comes into actual use it will be a "plenic" for you boys." Mr. Finn stated there were four essential phases in life, medical, clerical, educational and final administration and in the last phase you men of the profession are associated with the tragic period of death. "You have been faithful to your trust and you are admired and respected in the community and I hope that you will continue to uphold the dignity of your profession," stated the speaker. He claimed that the greatest thing in life was spreading happiness and this should be spread not at Christmas and New Years but on every day of the year.

Turning to his career in the newspaper he stated that it had always been his aim to spread a little sunshine along the road and his greatest delight was to have finished fifty years in the publication field on August of last year. The thanks of the meeting was tendered by the new president, Winston Hicks of Picton. Harry Hughlin of Kitchener, Bert Dafoe of Peterborough and Ron Templer of Toronto were the winners of the prizes drawn for.

CLEAN-UP

Clean-up time draws on space and the growth and the increased coloring of the grass shows how much the spring has moved forward. It has advanced so rapidly that many are at work clearing away many of the marks or vestiges of the late winter. From the time of the freeze-up to May-time there is no small collection of dust, dirt and articles thrown away, scraps of paper thrown on lawns and boulevards and other refuse which steadily gathers when the winter season reigns. Work to clear away this and to clear up premises in general will soon be in full swing in all parts of the city.

Careless throwing of pieces of wrappers and other scraps of paper on roads, boulevards and lawns has no legitimate excuse. To clear away these bits of refuse is a most annoying task to those who like to keep their lawns in a condition that will enhance the beauty of the homes and the streets. A call could very well go out to everyone and be heard by everyone in the listening lawns, boulevards, sidewalks and roads with paper scraps.

MOSCOW'S PROPOSALS

World interest has been aroused again by the announcement that Soviet proposals have been made for a meeting of the Foreign Ministers of Britain, France, United States and Russia with the suggestion that the Berlin blockade and trade be lifted by Russia in advance of such a meeting, if the counter blockade were to be removed. The situation arouses hope. The Western Powers have made it a point of their stand that the blockade of Berlin should be removed before negotiations take place over Berlin and the whole question of settlements respecting Germany.

The Allied position in Germany has been encouraging to the British and American peoples for the success of the Berlin airlift has manifested itself in no uncertain manner. Russia should see the futility of her retarding policy by this time which has been so persistent in spite of all the efforts made by the Western Powers to bring about an understanding. The march of recent events, the success of the Marshall Aid Plan, the airlift into Berlin which has been carried successfully through the winter and the reality of the North Atlantic Pact should signify that the West is proceeding on its way successfully despite Moscow's course of action.

BELGIAN BORDER

There are about 10,000 Germans who a few days ago became residents of a part of Belgium when the 27 square miles of boundary land were annexed to Belgian territory on the revision of the border.

Those Germans will not be badly off in the Belgian state. They will have their privileges as citizens of Belgium. On the other hand who could have imagined the state of any Belgians, had the Nazis triumphed. It would not have been a mere few square miles but the whole country of all the people which would have been forcibly made German if Hitlerism had not utterly failed.

What horrors the world missed when Hitlerism and Nazism fell can only be known in the imagination for the Nazis with their utterly selfish motives would have enslaved the world and tyranny would have run rampant.

Germans should realize from the considerate manner in which they have been treated since the Allied victory that not only the Allies but the Germans themselves were indeed fortunate that Germany was crushed and she must now be learning a good deal about the spirit of the democratic powers.

TRAFFIC TRAGEDIES

There was a decline in the number of fatal traffic accidents in March, the total of deaths being 35 as contrasted with 58 in the previous month. But the first quarter of the year shows a total of 147 deaths as compared with 130 in traffic in the same period last year. The total of casualties of traffic for the first three months is the highest in any year since the year 1941 when the traffic deaths numbered 155 in Ontario.

Some fundamentals of the traffic deaths gives an indication of the most fertile sources of these tragedies. In 28 cases the victims were in cars which left the road and ran into fixed objects, these figures contrasting with the 16 traffic deaths from this cause last year. There were 25 victims of two-car crashes as against 16 in 1948. Collisions with pedestrians claimed 64 victims, compared with 40 in 1948. One of the striking facts is the total of persons who were the victims of collisions with railway trains. There were 21 of these deaths. 25 persons were victims of two-car collisions while in the first quarter of 1948 the number was 16.

THE LOST ASSET

He took care of his money, for money is wealth,
But never once thought to take care of his health.
His bank account thrived,
since he made sure of that,
But he never once thought
he was growing too fat.

The future, he knew, would have gray in the skies,
To be ready for rainfall a man must be wise.

So to stack up the dollars
he carefully slaved,
Forgetting entirely that strength can be saved.

He did without sleep for the fortune desired;
Forced himself to keep on when his body had tired,
But he got little comfort from all of his wealth
When he found to obtain it he'd squandered his health.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

Most Canadian communities are just now having a touch with their corner boys. That is a more just description of them than hoodlum, gangster and so forth. They are the familiar, commonplace corner boys who were a problem in ancient Athens, medieval London, modern Paris or New York.

Mentally, they are low-grade youngsters, or they would have something more entertaining or profitable to do than loaf in gangs around corners, looking for fights with odds invariably of ten against two. Some of them are destined to be criminals; some will become petty grafters, chiselers, bullies. But most of them, on reaching maturity, will settle down into dull, grim, stupid niches in the community. A man is only a boy with larger, and usually older, clothes. By eighteen years of age a boy generally reveals what he has in store.

Our Canadian civilization offers little scope for these low-grade mentalities. You have only to visit the Caledonia Market in London, or any of the markets in the Old Countries, to realize this. As you promenade through the seething Caledonian Market, you behold, to your utter astonishment, a man standing on his head in the gutter.

Red-faced, the hat squashed, legs sticking stiffly vertical, there he artist poses, minute after minute, quarter hour after quarter hour. You are supposed to toss a penny in his hat. Standing on his head is his contribution to society. It isn't much. But, by golly, it is something.

All over the market, you will see similar contributions. A man will be using one gallon earthenware vinegar jugs as roller skates, doing a vaudeville act all by himself, amidst the seething crowd, rolling skillfully hither and yon in the hope of a few empty jugs. A penny for him, too.

In the theatre queues, the buskers. Along the streets, the singers, the pitchmen, the vendors of everyone. Those are the corner boys, grown up.

Says Cancer Deaths In Proportion to Milk Consumption

Ridgetown, Ont., April 28 (CP) — Dr. S. Banks Nelson of Hamilton, a Presbyterian minister for 55 years, said Tuesday that where there was no milk there was no cancer and that the ratio of cancer deaths was in proportion to the ratio of milk consumption. Dr. Nelson said the cancer-milk percentages had been gathered by the Hamilton city health doctor now deceased, who admitted the relationship but wouldn't publicize it because, "he said it was as much as his job was worth."

CANNING EXPERIMENT

Experiments in canned whale meat for human consumption have been tried by a British Columbia firm to determine the costs of handling and canning.

GETTING OUT OF SHANGHAI

With the vanguard of victorious Communist armies nearing, an old woman trudges out of Shanghai, carrying her few possessions. A mass exodus to the countryside is reported from the beleaguered city as Red troops cut off the Nationalist escape routes. Business is at a standstill and the money market is chaotic. There are believed to be about 250 Canadian, mostly missionaries, in the Yangtze basin region. Meanwhile, John Cabot, U.S. consul-general in Shanghai, warned the city's 2,500 American residents that they should expect no protection if they decide to remain when Chinese Communists are moving.

Mackenzie's Cohorts: Russia May Feel Cold War's Effects Very Keenly

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press News Analyst

Russia's offer to call off the Berlin blockade continues to hold the limelight in international speculation. The reason is of course that such a move might tend to—what's the whisper?—an ending of the "cold war."

Both sides are proceeding with the utmost caution.

The United States did make a positive move yesterday. This was delivery of a note by Philip C. Jessup, ambassador-at-large, to the Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister, Jakob A. Malik, in New York, asking the Russians for a formal statement as to when and on what conditions they would lift the blockade.

Mean Business

Back of this note is the real hope that the Russians mean business.

Obviously it isn't love of the hated capitalistic democracies which has impelled Moscow to make this offer. As I pointed out in yesterday's column, it could be that the Russian bear is feeling the chill of the cold war in his bones. He may really want easement of the struggle.

Certainly the indications are that the Communist drive to sweep across western Europe to the English Channel reached a dead end some time ago. The signing of the Atlantic pact put the finishing touches on a barrier which they couldn't hope to breach.

New Factor

There is, it seems to me, another new factor which may have had something to do with Moscow's move. That is the sweeping successes of the Chinese Communist armies against the Nationalists.

The Red offensive in China has created a new crisis which is causing the western Allies deep concern. Communism has established a new base there in Asia which might distract some of the attention of the western powers from the European theatre and so make it more difficult of consolidating its position there.

In any event, whatever may be the motive behind the Russian stance now regarding the blockade, there is unmistakable fact which we shouldn't overlook:

While the tactics of the Communist revolution are bound to vary according to circumstances, and strong-arm methods may be abandoned in certain fields, the global drive will continue.

Woman Dentist and Ballet Dancer Arrive

Oshawa, April 28 — (CP)—A woman dentist and a ballet dancer are among new arrivals from Europe now staying at the Department of Labor's camp here for displaced persons.

The dentist is Klaudija Siegmanis; a graduate of the University of Riga, in Latvia; the dancer is Amalija Sims, member of a ballet company in Riga when Russians occupied the city. Both must work for a year as domestics before entering other employment. Both have one child and both lost their husbands in the war.

SENTENCED TO DIE IN CHAIR

Tulia, Okla., April 28 (AP)—Melburn Mott, 23, Wednesday night was convicted of murdering his six-year-old daughter, Mary, and sentenced to die in the electric chair. He was charged with killing the child as she slept in the home of his estranged wife.

Whitehall Notebook: Young Bachelor Chief Spokesman Of Foreign Office

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, April 27 (CP)— New responsibilities are crowding fast on youthful Christopher Mayhew, the central figure in recent searching debates on whether Britain really needs hydrogen bombs and dollars.

As chief foreign-office spokesman in the Commons, Mayhew is getting his first taste of parliamentary battle conditions.

He's strictly on his own. While Foreign Secretary Bevin and State Minister McNeill both often out of the country, the tall, bandanna-like undersecretary shoulders the full burden of replying to debates and answering questions on the order paper.

On tricky supplementary questions, he took cues from McNeil, then in London.

At 34, Mayhew is one of Britain's youngest diplomats. He is considered one of labor's bright young men.

He is still a bachelor, but told a reporter jocularly that he wants to get married.

"I can't face another election campaign as a bachelor," he said. The result is too many letters from women, each proposing marriage.

In his first commons debate, Mayhew likes to sing. At Brighton recently, the London Philharmonic Choir was singing the last movement of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony. Mayhew mingled with the choristers and sang (in German).

The reception to his New York speech Feb. 22, in which he said that Britain had passed the recovery stage, was less enthusiastic. United States Senators wanted to know why British and American aid if her-recovery was complete.

Later, fuller reports indicated Mayhew had been talking about recovery in relative rather than an economic sense.

Anyway, the storm subsided. Marshall aid continued, and Mayhew's Commons critic supplied a postscript derived from a couplet from Shakespeare's "Hamlet:"

"There's a divinity that shapes our ends.

Carry Invalid Man From Burning House

Oshawa, April 28 — (CP) — A 70-year-old invalid wrapped in blankets was carried from his flaming home by relatives early Thursday and taken to safety as blaze caused $1,200 damage.

Mrs. Nick Drewniak, 64, woke up smelling smoke and called her daughter who summoned firemen. Neighbors helped carry out much of the furniture and visiting relatives carried elderly Nick Drewniak to safety.

129,818 M.P.H. FOR HELICOPTER, NEW RECORD

Cleveland, April 28 — (AP)— Harold E. Thompson of Stratford, Conn., yesterday set a world helicopter speed record—129,818 miles an hour. The previous record was 124.2 miles an hour was set June 28, 1948, at Wilmington, England, by Sqdn. Ldr. B. H. Addicott, R.A.F.

PRE-SUMMER HIKE IN THE NUDE

Hamilton, April 28 (CP)— A two-year-old boy yesterday got the "summer bug" early. During the warm sunny day, the youngster, in the nude, took a three block hike while his unsuspecting mother was busy at home. A kindly citizen decided it wasn't quite warm enough for him. Police took over from there.

NEVER MIND YOUR COLON

Interference irritates the delicate mucous membrane linng the colon, causing it to secrete large amounts of mucus. The more you interfere the more mucus the mucous membrane secretes in a natural attempt to protect itself from your crude scrubbing. Thus you establish a vicious circle—and your "mucous colitis" becomes self-perpetuating.

It is my belief that the chief cause of colon derangement and colon degeneration is nutritional deficiency and that the interference habit is an important contributing factor. By interference I mean the use of physical stimulants.

By bold and unwavering promotion mineral oil was popularized as an "internal bath" and so-called mineral oil is the residue left after benzine, gasoline, kerosene, naphtha etc. have been distilled from crude petroleum (coal oil). In its more refined form mineral oil is soft petroleum (amber or white petroleum jelly). The theory on which the use of mineral oil was based was pretty far-fetched and the few refuts a day would oil the entire surface of the colon and thus reduce the chance of assimilating what mineral oil unavoidably would provide. For this reason mineral oil as an "internal bath" or as a laxative is not a medicine indeed, even for one who is not sick but who is in poor nutrition.

Malnutrition affects chiefly the well-to-do and the great middle class in America. Poverty by wealth has nothing to do with the question. The nutritional condition of the family depends on (1) the intelligence of common sense of the lady of the family in selecting food and/or (2) the amount of food the family grows or raises for its own use.

Few if any families were as poor as the Brady family when I was a kid in Canandaigua, but I don't believe any family anywhere had better living than we had—food we raised ourselves in our garden patch or on shares for other people. With seven or eight in the family we did well for years on $40 a month, paid for our home, had no mortgage and — well, we were pretty fortunate, not because we owned about a third of our own home, but because we lived in a village and not in a city. There we had have a bearing on the question of nutrition.

One of the most constant results of food deficient in vitamins is colitis. It is so frequent that it may rank as a cardinal sign of vitaminic deficiency. I quote these remarks from Sir Robert McCarrison's Studies in Deficiency Disease. The deficiency or deficiencies to which McCarrison refers have resulted "from the long-continued use of deficient foods from childhood onwards."

Such foods are refined white flour, white bread, cake, pastry, refined white sugar and all kinds of sweets made with refined white sugar, bleached white corn meal, white rice, and nowadays dehydrated "instant food" and doctored milk.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Every Kid Should Have One

Our children, aged 4 and 6, weigh 50 lbs. Every time they see one their eyes light up and they get so excited. At what time have we told the younger one (4) has a sensitive nose and fur or dander is the cause of it? Perhaps it does not believe this. (Mrs. M. K.)

Answer—I don't think it develops no trouble from casual contact with absorbed cat dander if it probably right. Every youngster six years old or older should have a cat or dog. Also a rabbit. Training on handling or playing with the dog and cat should be to wash the hands with soap and water after eating and before eating or drinking. But what's a round worm between friends?

Peptic Ulcer Not Hereditary

Are stomach ulcers inherited. My husband has a stomach ulcer and our two children complain of stomach aches often. (Mrs. P. C.)

Answer—No. I'd bet fifty-fifty neither you nor your husband had stomach ache more often than the other youngsters when you were kids.

Ivy Poisoning

Can anything be taken to make one less sensitive to ivy poisoning? E. W. K.)

Answer—No, homeopathically graduated doses of an extremely dilute solution of ivy tow or extract of ivy leaves for several weeks prior to the season. Sand stamped self addressed envelope for pamphlet on Ivy poisoning. A clipping of it not required.

Strength for the Day

BLIND IN A DAY OF LIGHT

The Wright Brothers who invented the airplane ran a bicycle shop in Dayton, Ohio. It would seem to say that if these queer fellows would just stick to repairing bicycles there would be no more arguments with flying machines they would be a lot better off.

When the famous test was made, proved that an airplane could really be made to fly, Mr. Wilbur Wright wired an aunt of his in Dayton telling her what had happened. This elderly woman was great store by her two nephews and she realized when she received the incredible news that something of an epochal nature had taken place. Therefore she rushed to the newspaper office with the message that a man had made an airplane flight. The telegram ended with the words, "We expect to be home for Christmas." The newspaper gave the telegram one inch of space and the headline read: "Local Bicycle Merchants Expect Visit at Christmas."

One of the greatest events of history was described in that brief telegram and nobody in the home town of the Wright Brothers realized its significance except one wise old lady. We may be maintaining a similar lack of appreciation today as we confront certain events in the modern world. Maybe the coming centuries will call us blind as we live today at the neighbors of the great inventors.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

EARTH, WIND, AND SUN

Of all the seasons of the year spring is the best. What I like about it is that the awakening of all life in nature is demonstrated. The early rains have softened the earth and appeased the hunger of roots and seeds. Life begins again.

It is at this springtime that we see the little sprouts shoving their life to the open earth and to meet the sunlight and to be strengthened by the wind's flow back and forth. Nature is full of such movements. Her laws are simple, yet effective. Many of the ways of man are not only duplicated in nature, but are originated there.

The more that we establish a study of the life of nature the more and learn its relationship with the winds and the sun, the more we are formed to become as the flower should regulate our own human lives. First there is organization in nature. Things don't just happen. There is a law of growth and it does not vary from year to year, in principle. What our fathers learned we may learn.

Thoreau was insistent upon simplicity in the organization of our lives, for he saw it worked as magnificently in nature. The more we complicate life, the more confused we become. I still contend that the fewer laws a nation, or community, has the better it will be governed. The greatest law ever enunciated is in the New Testament, known as the Golden Rule. If that were followed there would be better people of the earth would have no need of governments. We are the substance of their hope for security and happiness. There is a community in all things in nature. There is co-operation.

Let us study our dwelling place. It gives to us the substance of life, of winds and sun, make all life possible. What an arrangement of color, fragrance, and species to which we have fallen heir! Why so many varieties of earth. Nature is generous and is so great an abundance! How our ancestors have been careless and fruitful each of us should be as human nature, but are originated there. Let us care for the instilling and spreading of all the knowledge of life to day.

How greatly we are debtors to the earth (our mother) and to the winds and sun — givers of all the things that sustain life.

MUST NOT DRIVE OVER BEACH PARK

Orillia, April 28 (CP)— Motorists who had a habit of driving their vehicles over the Couchiching Beach Park will think twice this summer. Yesterday the Orillia Parks Board's suggestion of a by-law covering these offences was passed at a council meeting. Trosting park benches into the lake will also be taboo, officials said.

EATING HABITS OF ONTARIO PEOPLE CRITICIZED

One-sixth of adults in Ontario are overweight, according to E. W. McHenry, professor of public health nutrition of the University of Toronto, who severely criticized the eating habits of Ontario people. Too much poundage is harmful and decreases life expectancy, he said. They go for the more expensive items like meat, candy, cakes and pastry, instead of concentrating on less expensive and more healthy foods like milk, fruits and vegetables. But none of us would like to get our sauce in the way this "guinea pig" goose is getting his. The bird is being given an experimental injection by nurses, Marjorie Fairer and Patricia Clarke, of Philadelphia's Wolfe clinic. Through such experiments on wild geese it was determined that Americans ate eat too much of the wrong food for good health. Physicians of the clinic and hospital of Philadelphia reported their findings at the annual meeting of the Medical Society of New Jersey in Atlantic City, N.J., this week. —Central Press Canadian.

INDIA CONTINUES AS FULL MEMBER COMMONWEALTH

United Kingdom Will Co-operate in Pursuit of Peace, Liberty, Progress

London, April 28 — (CP) — India's continued membership in the Commonwealth after she becomes a sovereign republic, under a constitution expected to take effect next August, was assured today in a historic declaration by the eight members of the world's oldest family of nations.

In 212 words the United Kingdom, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, India, Pakistan and Ceylon jointly pledged themselves "to remain united as free and equal members of the commonwealth of Nations, freely co-operating in the pursuit of peace, liberty and progress."

The eight-power declaration was the fruit of the Commonwealth conference of seven prime ministers and L. B. Pearson, Canada's minister for external affairs.

It produced a way out of one of the most formidable constitutional problems in Commonwealth history — how a monarchy and a republic can exist in the same framework.

Will Recognize Crown

India will continue as a full member of the Commonwealth. The declaration says that the Asiatic sub-continent of 300,000,000 people will recognize the crown as "the symbol of the free association" of the Commonwealth's independent member nations "and as such the head of the Commonwealth." But India will not acknowledge allegiance to the King.

Britain, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, Pakistan and Ceylon continue as constitutional monarchies owing allegiance to the King.

India will continue to enjoy all the rights and benefits of Commonwealth membership.

Could Become Republics

Ceylon, Pakistan and South Africa could declare themselves republics and take advantage of the new status devised for India but none has indicated any intention of doing so.

The declaration left the way open for Ireland to apply for re-entry. Ireland severed its last ties with the Crown Easter Monday.

The Liberal News Chronicle said "something of this nature may lie behind Costello's invitation to Commonwealth prime ministers to visit Dublin."

The constitutional problem presented by India was the only matter discussed at the plenary sessions of the ministers, but such topics as Pacific defence and meat supplies for the United Kingdom were taken up by individual ministers at private meetings.

STUDY STAMP DESIGNS

Oslo — (CP) — Sixty entries in nation-wide competition to determine the design of three new Norwegian stamps soon to be issued in commemoration of the world postal organization's 75th anniversary are being studied by judges. Prizes will be given for winning designs.

CHAMPION SHORTHORN

Holbeach, Lincolnshire, England — (CP) — A 10-year-old Shorthorn cow, owned by Miss I. D. Stanton, has given 14,000 gallons of milk in 305 days to win the British championship of her breed. The cow's yield is so generous that she is milked three times daily instead of twice.

Noted Canadian Flier to Get Two Awards

Washington, April 28 (CP) — The Canadian airman who spotted a Japanese fleet off Ceylon in 1942, and flashed a warning which resulted in heavy enemy losses, will be honored at an investiture here Friday.

Group Capt. Leonard Joseph Birchall, 33, now assistant air attache at the Canadian embassy, will receive the Distinguished Flying Cross and the award of Officer of the Order of the British Empire.

Six other awards—one posthumous—will be made by Ambassador Hume Wrong in a ceremony at the Canadian embassy.

It was seven years ago this month that Birchall, in a flying boat on patrol in the Indian Ocean, caught sight of the Japanese naval force approaching Ceylon. After signalling the warning to his base, he was shot down and captured. He spent 3 1-2 years as a prisoner of war.

Timely Warning

The citation accompanying his DFC says: "His timely warning enabled preparations to be made which resulted in considerable losses to the enemy."

As senior officer in the prison camps to which he was confined, the second citation reads, Birchall "continually displayed the utmost concern for the welfare of his fellow prisoners."

Christian Church In China May Go Underground

Peterborough, April 28 (CP)—The Christian Church in China may be forced underground for a time, the Rev. Tene J. Chiu, a Chinese Presbyterian minister in Canada for studies, Wednesday told the Toronto and Kingston Synodical Society of the Womens Missionary Society at St. Paul's Church. The church is not unprepared to meet the situation, Mr. Chiu said when addressing the three day annual meeting.

In the program of the Church in China, they are making special emphasis of the Christian Home Movement Mr. Chiu said. All Church literature was designed to help the Christians revive their home religion. Promising young leaders were being singled out more and more for training in the hope that they would one day lead the church.

Mr. Chiu said that today the Church of China was going through the fourth great crisis in the 19th century Every time it had come through stronger than before.

The Communists were trying to make an east-west issue of the present struggle in China, Mr. Chiu declared, whereas it was a social, economic and religious revolution.

Miss Laura Pelton executive secretary of overseas missions who recently returned from a tour of the East, described missionary work in China, Japan, Formosa and India. In India the Church had one of the most difficult mission fields in the world, Miss Pelton said. There were people who were rooted in the relentless Hinduism whose thoughts and actions were governed by the superstitions and fatalistic beliefs of their religion.

Case of Treasures May be Brought Before Assembly

Ottawa, April 28 (CP)— The case of the priceless art treasures, long-sought in Canada by Communist Poland, may turn into a verbal duel before the United Nations or the permanent court of International Justice at The Hague.

This turn of events presented itself as Eugeniusz Jan Milinkiel, the Polish Minister to Canada, told newspaper men that by no case will his country consider taking the art-treasures "dispute" before the Canadian courts. It was an "international" affair, he said, and one strictly between the Canadian federal and the Polish governments.

Although the greater part of the art works, which Poland brought to Canada for safekeeping in 1940, had been confiscated by the provincial government in Quebec in 1945, Mr. Milinkiel said he had never approached the Quebec government or its Premier, Maurice Duplessis, about the treasures.

Holds Press Conference

The Polish Minister held a press conference to clear up and explain a 3,000-word note he had handed to the federal government the week previously, in which Poland threatened to take steps to obtain "moral and material satisfaction" if the treasures were not returned.

This "moral and material satisfaction," the minister said, did not mean that Poland would accept "monetary compensation" from the Canadian federal government in place of the treasures.

The treasures, which had been taken from the public museum at Krakow—the 16th century home of Polish kings—were "priceless."

Instead, Poland was considering bringing the "dispute" before the United Nations in a resolution which its delegate—Julius Katz-Suchy—would introduce, demanding the return of the treasures.

Or, alternatively, Poland may consider bringing charges against Canada before the permanent court of International Justice which sits at The Hague.

The issue of the treasures, the minister said, "cannot be measured by the common yardstick. This is a problem of vital importance for the Polish nation as a whole."

Mr. Davis chose as his subject "Juvenile Delinquency" and divided his address under four headings— causes, results, prevention and cost and used charts to illustrate his talk. "A delinquent child", he said in speaker, "is an unhappy child, and understanding by those who are responsible for child training is very important. Delinquency becomes a difficult proposition in later stages, and is an economic and human waste." Mr. Davis brought out many interesting and important facts regarding juvenile delinquency.

On behalf of the Guild, Mrs. C. Templar thanked Mr. Davis for his very fine address. A social hour closed with refreshments served by Mrs. Bell's group.

ST. ANDREW'S W.M.S.

Mrs. Hoard read a story on the life of the first Canadian Missionary, Dr. John Geddie. When he landed there were no Christians here and when he left there were no heathens. Dr. Geddie's old communion cooker was cut as a shining tribute to the early Presbyterian Church of Nova Scotia.

The program was in charge of Mrs. Ken Day. Miss Gena Spry gave a splendid paper: "Indifference today is one of the greatest evils. No one ever dries up Jesus. No one is paid "hush" Jesus rose from the tomb to save us all. Mrs. V. Matthews favored with a piano solo.

Mrs. Ken Day read a story "The Easter Egg". At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by Miss Gena Spry, Mrs. Earl Foy and Mrs. Ken Day. Mrs. Roy Eggleton spoke words of gratitude to the hostess and her helpers for the refreshments and the excellent program.

Cooking School Features Value Of Modern Equipment in Kitchen

On Wednesday afternoon in the auditorium of Belleville Collegiate Institute Miss Elaine Colletti, Home Economist of Moffat Limited, Weston, Ontario, in the premiere three days of the Moffat Cooking School, appearing under the Belleville Home and School Association, gave a demonstration to large and attentive audience of the fair sex; the niceties of the culinary art and especially planned modern school lunches might be dainty as well as appetizing, and explained the nutritive value of the food eaten.

Mrs. W. R. McCormick, president of the Home and School Association, in a few well chosen words introduced Miss Colletti to the assembled ladies, who, in her immaculate white uniform, with the attractive and completely planned modern kitchen, with its snowy white stove, refrigerator, sink, and cupboards as a background, made a charming picture, indeed.

Miss Colletti's first program was the preparation of school lunch boxes. These were examined in a pretty shade of green, and had compartments for sandwiches for one, two or three; for salads, or fruits. A lunch should be a well-balanced meal, Miss Colletti told us, look at. The salad could be of cabbage, nicely grated, and dressed up with sprigs of water cress, or any of a number of salads might be used. Fruit is a nutritive value as well as attractiveness. Sandwiches, too, would vary from day to day so as not to become monotonous. So many variations could be made.

While Miss Colletti's assistant made the sandwiches, the hostess she demonstrated the making of "Lemon Jelly Roll". This was the "highlight" recipe of the afternoon.

Economy Jelly Roll

The ingredients used consisted of: 3/4 cup sifted Maple Leaf cake flour; 1 1/4 tsps. baking powder; from 2 to 3 eggs; 1 tsp. lemon juice; 3/4 cup granulated sugar; 1 tsp. grated lemon rind; salt.

First the oven was turned on to 400 degrees F. (hot oven). Then, a jelly roll pan (10 1/2 x 15 x 1/2 inches was used, (but a baking sheet might be used as well) Greased, and lined with waxed paper to within one-half inch of the sides. Greased again, and lightly floured.

The dry ingredients, flour, baking powder and salt were sifted together, and then poured back into the sifter, and the milk heated in the double boiler. The eggs were beaten until light, fluffy and lemon-colored which took about three to four minutes. The sugar was then added, a little at a time, and the beating continued until light. The lemon rind was then added.

The dry ingredients were sifted into the egg and sugar mixture, by folding in with a light motion, but not stirred or beaten. Then was added to the hot milk, and mixed until the butter is melted, and this was then poured into the first mixture, and folded just enough to blend (prevention and cost and used charts to illustrate his talk. "A delinquent child", he said in speaker, "is an unhappy child, and understanding by those who are responsible for child training is very important. Delinquency becomes a difficult proposition in later stages, and is an economic and human waste." Mr. Davis brought out many interesting and important facts regarding juvenile delinquency.

On behalf of the Guild, Mrs. C. Templar thanked Mr. Davis for his very fine address. A social hour closed with refreshments served by Mrs. Bell's group.

Card Party, Dance Will Aid C.P.T. Fund

On Monday evening a successful card party and dance was held under the auspices of the various Oddfellows lodges in aid of the Oddfellows and Rebekahs Cancer Fund, which is a worthy fund.

A large crowd gathered in the upper hall for euchre which was greatly enjoyed. The prize winners were: Ladies' first prize lst, Bessie Boldrick; 2nd, Mrs. Ron Wallace; 3rd, Mrs. C. Gilroy. Men's 1st, Mr. H. Brenton; 2nd, Mr. L. Pollitt; 3rd, Mr. Carl Buker; lone hand, Mr. J. Pollitt.

A dance was also held in the lower hall. Round and square dances being enjoyed by all. Prizes were also given for the dancing: spot dance, Evelyn Youker and Bud Plumpton; flashlight dance, C. O'Hara, and Mrs. E. Buker; mystery dance, Audrey Williams, and Mr. Ackley; mystery dance, A. Charlton and E. Youker.

Door prize was won by Mrs. Florence Pollitt.

The financial success was most gratifying and appreciated by the committee in charge, which was largely due to the generosity of the Belleville merchants, who so graciously donated the prizes, given away during the evening; also to those merchants who contributed toward the refreshments, making it such a satisfying in this worthy cause.

Refreshments were served during the course of the evening.

Mrs. Leslie Frost Born and Raised In Lindsay

Toronto, April 28, (CP)—Mrs. Leslie Frost, a trim, grey-haired "small town girl", was unruffled Wednesday when she found herself the wife of Ontario's next premier.

In a grey suit and navy hat, she smiled for photographers, handed out rose from her bouquet to friends and described the whole day as "wonderful, wonderful."

Gertrude Jane Frost was one of the first to congratulate her husband when he was elected to head the provincial government at the Progressive Conservative convention.

"Les really does deserve it," she told reporters later, "I have to listen to all the awful things people say about my husband, but I think he's wonderful."

Born and raised in Lindsay, Mrs. Frost is the daughter of the late John Carew, former Progressive Conservative member of the legislature for Victoria—the same seat her husband now holds.

She says she married a "struggling young lawyer" 23 years ago after working two years in her father's lumber yard office, and has lived a quiet, interesting life as a "small town matron."

"I've no children, cats, dogs or canaries, but I think the thing I'm most proud of is that every child in Lindsay knows us and calls me 'Aunt Dot,'" she said.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beekman

Christening gift not necessary from guest

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

(1) When one is invited to a christening, is it necessary to bring a gift? My husband and I are very close friends of the baby's grandparents, and we have already given this baby several separate gifts. (2) Would it be in bad taste for the christening day morning service, for friends to the house for refreshments after the christening?

L. N.

(1) Customarily each godparent gives the child a christening present . . . guests may, but this isn't expected and certainly not when gifts already have been given to the child. (2) When the christening is held after the Sunday morning service, the guests are not usually invited to the home for refreshments. However, if the child's parents or a relative or friend of the family wish to plan this gathering, it is entirely proper and is a memorable occasion.

Groom's mother shouldn't give shower

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

Would I be considered correct if I give a shower for my prospective daughter-in-law? She is to be married next month, and no one has given her a shower or is planning to give her one, and since she is such a fine girl, I hate to have her think that no one cares enough to give her a shower. (2) Also, I have heard that it is proper for the prospective groom's mother to give a shower, but not for the bride's mother.)

M. N.

In the final judgment about this, it is up to you to decide what you consider the best taste . . . for it is taste, not necessarily rules, that govern this. Personally I think that when a member of the bride's family or the groom's family gives a shower, it is not usually a help giving the appearance of a planned promotion, a very unattractively obvious bid for presents. (I have never been able to see that there is the slightest difference whether it is a member of the bride's family or of the groom's family who plans the shower . . . and wonder why this distinction seems valid under any circumstances.) Also, may I say that your reason for giving the shower is the best of reasons if the bride is willing to take the trouble to give her a shower, and have your giving it point up and emphasize this fact?

Engagement ring should be given at private interview

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

In the near future I am planning to make my engagement known, and for the occasion we are inviting my fiance's mother and father to our house. Where should my fiance give the engagement ring at the dinner table before the guests, or in the living-room where we would be alone?

G. D.

Your fiance should give you your engagement ring at any time before the dinner at which the engagement is to be announced. It should be given in private, when you two are "alone together."

Rainbow Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

We are planning a rainbow wedding. The bridal attendants will be the maid of honor, two bridesmaids, and one junior bridesmaid. Do the maid of honor and the bridesmaids dress alike, or in a rainbow wedding should there be some difference in their costumes?

A. F. C.

It is not customary to attempt to have a rainbow wedding with only two or three bridesmaids, since the point is to have many of a number of different colors or different shades of one color. However, if you wish to attempt a rainbow wedding with this number of bridal attendants, you might have the maid of honor and the bridesmaids wear dresses of the same style, but in different colors or shades that harmonize. (The junior bridesmaid's dress would be in a style similar to the dresses of the adult bridesmaids, but adapted to her age.)

Pouches under the eyes

One has to be an earth angel, with the patience of a saint, to accept horrid little hammocks under the eyes without complaining. They make the most re-

The victim of eye-pouches has to endure many questions spectacles lady look displeased. Why these affliction? It just isn't fair.

The victim of these blemishes has to bear with interested relatives who ask if she is sure that she hasn't Bright's disease, or is it her heart? These inquiries do not add to her happiness. She recalls old photographs showing that grandpa had puffs under his keen old eyes, and several old aunts had them, so it is plain to be seen that she has come into a disfiguring inheritance. If they are with her all the time, there is not much to be done about them.

The come-and-go kind may be due to various causes. A sleepless night will bring them. A "good cry" or a worrying spell will cause the tissues to swell and make themselves obnoxious. Fatigue is a common cause. The thing to do is to take note of one's physical and mental state when they are present. A checkup may lead to the discovery that one has broken a health law and is paying the penalty. Most women, when it comes to beauty ills, seek quick cures, seldom endeavor to find the cause.

If you find that you have puffy tissues under your eyes, and the big date is on, and you would have relief from them, you will find it in hot and cold applications, followed by light massage with a thin cream.

Take a large, heavy washcloth — pieces of gauze aren't thick enough or large enough to cover sufficient territory—and dip it in steaming hot water. Squeeze almost dry and hold the compress close to the flesh. Repeat five or six times, or until the flesh is red and glowing.

Have at hand a small bowl containing water in which ice cubes float. You have parboiled your face, now you are going to do a little refrigerating. The change from hot to cold will cause the flesh to contract. The little hammocks will take the hint, decide to go into retirement.

Use a fine, soft towel for drying. Get our your massage cream and, using the palms of your hands, ring the tissues around the eyes, in case you are thrifty-minded, with one finger, sweep it over the upper lid slowly and softly, combing hair under the eye. Do this several times follow along with a light downward motion.

Remove the cream with tissues. Dip the washcloth in ice cold water, place over the eyes and its shape for fifteen or twenty minutes. Cover the pads with a dry towel, so they will stay moist during this period of relaxation.

FUNCTIONAL TOUCHES accent many of the new accessories, even the jewelry variety. For instance, a handsome black satin bib is a member of the bridal party on either side, all the better to carry your gloves and evening hankie, my dear.

FLOWERS at your feet is the next thing, now that there is a line of nylons decorated with washable, hand-painted flowers. Tiny pink rosebuds and violets complement the pastel shades, and there are tiny colorful butterflies to set off a pretty ankle.

NOVELTIES abound in smart dance frocks designed for summer and resort wear. Starched white eyelet embroidery makes a charming contrast for black of ankle length worn over a slinder strapped foundation of water-blue satin.

THERE'S NO CHECKING the checked fabric. With her suit of ting and plaid jacket of white checked woollen ,one woman wears a top coat of huge bold checks in the same colors.

A GOOD BUY for Spring wear is a well-tailored jacket of good quality American broadtail processed lamb. These coats are available in various lengths and styles and in a wide shades of gray, brown, ivory, white and black, and some navy. Navy blue is used for a fine, soft, 24-inch length, with a high, double-breasted closing and bracelet sleeves.

WEARABLE hats abound this year, thank goodness, with the accent on hats that are flattering and pretty rather than smart. Natural leghorn straw is used for a hat with a fetching curving brim, softly tilted up one side and dipping down on the opposite side, where it is marked by a huge bow of gold satin drawn through a slit in the crown.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

She Hates Her Mother

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am disgusted at home. My parents won't let me go anywhere. What can they do if I should leave home and go to another state to work? I am a high school graduate, seventeen years old.

I hate my mother bitterly for what she does.

"Dot".

Dear "Dot":

Perhaps it very hard for a girl when her parents cannot see that she is old enough to have dates and go out a reasonable amount. Many girls have the same problem.

I think it would be most unwise, however, for you, at 17, to leave home. It would be much better for you to wait a year or two before taking any such drastic step, and in the meantime try to put up with the situation as well as you can.

Isn't there someone in your town to whom you could go and tell your this whole problem? I am sure, for example, that if you were to go to your local YWCA, or the one in the town nearest to you, they can't come right in your own community—you would find someone who could help you listen, and advise you. Won't you do this I am sure it would help.

Wants This Boy to Stop Chasing Her

Dear Miss aFirfax:

I am 15, and in the second year of high school. There is a boy who has been chasing me around, wanting to date me. Most every place I go I see that boy. He has given me a brother a box of candy for me, and I don't know whether to accept it or not, because I can't want to go with him and I feel I should not take his candy when I never have any time to go with him.

How can I get this boy to leave me alone, without hurting his feelings? He has already told him I don't want to date him and he still keeps after me?

"Puzzled"

Dear "Puzzled":

Since this boy tried to get in touch with you through your brother by giving him the candy for you, why don't you ask your brother if he will tell him to leave you alone? Boys have a language by their own between themselves, and your brother should be able to get it across to this boy that you are not interested in him without hurting his feelings too much. Get your brother on your side and see if he won't help you out.

Credit Managers Denounce Gossip

Vancouver (CP)— Women can make good in the commercial credit field if they suppress—or possess— certain female characteristics.

So says a number of United States and Canadian women credit managers who attended the recent Northwest Credit Conference here.

"Any gossip or loose talk generally will put the lid on the life of a credit clerk. No one wants to broadcast their affairs far and wide."

LONDON IS SCENE FOR EXPERIMENTS IN ROAD SAFETY

By MICHAEL O'MARA
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London — (CP) — Men are worse-behaved pedestrians than women, in London anyway.

That was the word of experts during pedestrian-safety week, in which police made extra effort to ensure safety at the crossroads.

No compulsion was used, on the orders of Transport Minister Barnes who said:

"In road safety we shall make greater progress if we get willing co-operation and common sense from the public."

All accidents, he suggested, could be traced to a moment of irritation or impatience. But, he believed, safety campaigns were taking effect. In 10 years, London's casualty figures had fallen by half.

Nevertheless, 130,000 had been killed and 2,500,000 injured on Britain's roads in the last two decades. The country could not afford such losses."

"London is a real headache to me, and that is why we are making London a laboratory for road-safety experiments," he said.

Flagrant Violations

Barnes' experts, touring the West End of city by automobile, reported:

"It was noticed that men crossed the roads anywhere and seldom bothered about using the proper crossings.

"Women were distinctly better and children, on the whole, best."

Women, however, were guilty of jay-walking noted in London streets during the week. A newspaper reporter said he had watched two girls walk from the foot of Lower Regent Street to the head of the Haymarket without once setting foot on a sidewalk or using a marked pedestrian crossing. The distance is several blocks and the route includes the fringe of busy Piccadilly Circus.

Transport Ministry observers said that in 38 miles of London street they checked the average number of vehicles was 1,300 an hour moving at an average speed of 11.1 miles an hour.

Blackest spot was King William Street in the heart of the business district where cars and trucks crawled at 4.2 m.p.h.

In Oxford Street, major thoroughfare in the West End shopping belt, east-bound vehicles went at 8.1 m.p.h. but going west speed was cut to 6.6 m.p.h.

Reading Vitalized In Primary Schools

Vancouver (CP)—A little girl of seven in grade two at a Vancouver school can already read faster and better than many grown-ups.

She's one of hundreds throughout the city, doing just as well or better, and thinking nothing about it.

Reading has been quietly revolutionized within recent years in Vancouver primary schools. The 20,000 children in primary grades are trained from the outset to read with the eyes and the mind, not with the tongue and the ear.

They don't even learn to identify the letters of the alphabet until their second year at school. Instead, they learn to recognize whole words, phrases and sentence and to picture in their minds the objects referred to.

The result was summed up by Miss Elsie Roy, primary supervisor for the Vancouver school board. "Reading, the passkey to every subject, used to be a dead thing. Now we vitalize it for the children, through reality, through socialized self-expression. The results are gratifying.

INGREDIENTS OF CONCRETE

Concrete and cement are not synonymous — cement is just one of the ingredients of concrete.

BABY'S UPSET STOMACH QUICKLY CORRECTED

BABY'S little "Tummy" ill often easily corrected. Mrs. Ernest Bolger, of Lot 7, Bolger Bay Road, via R.R. No. 2, Alvear, of London, Ont., tell you: "Baby's Own Tablets are a great help in the cure of upset stomach, during teething troubles and constipation. They are a sweet medicine and quickly do away with poisons and promote restful comfort."

And Mrs. H. C. Hall, (same town) writes: "I found my baby shortly after being started ever colicky and fretful. Baby's Own Tablets relieved and saved baby's life. Cannot praise them too much." Sold by druggists or send 25 cents to The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Theme Song Isn't Lucky Says Writer

This isn't intended as a kiss-of-death touch to Brandon Wheat Kings as they tune up for their Memorial Cup series with Montreal Royals, but it's time somebody steered them clear of their "Four Leaf Clover" theme song. It just isn't lucky.

The Wheat Kings might recall that this was the marching song of a group of midwestern Republicans last year who plumped for Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio as president of the United States. Well, the "Clover" was trampled on in the semi-finals by a non-musical eastern outfit backing Tom Dewey.

Now that Brandon has been warned, the players might consider substituting their, song for the "Missouri Waltz," an illiting little number which everybody, particularly Harry Truman, knows is of championship calibre.

Music and Sport

This brings up the interesting question of music and sport, or musical athletes. The viewers with-alarm might say flats and sharps don't belong with skates and pucks, balls and bats, gloves and rosin.

Take boxing, for instance. Dublin's Jack Doyle, a dashing handsome warbler, mixed crooning with his boxing business or vice versa. The gals swooned when he entered the ring and heavyweight Don Lee usually followed suit after a few rounds.

Buddy Baer, a whapping six-foot-five now touring the night clubs, is billed as the only singer to knock down Joe Louis. But the publicity doesn't say what Joe did to Buddy's brother. (He murdered him.)

Then there's Rinty Monaghan, the Belfast screamer, who also is the world's flyweight boxing champion. "When Irish eyes are Smiling" doesn't need a plug but Rinty does a fair job on it from the ring, particularly after he's played the rock-a-bye tune on his opponent.

Toronto L/I Arthur King, British Empire lightweight champion, is some shucks with the gloves on and he bangs out a pretty good boogie-woogie on the piano with them off.

Russia-born Johnny Gottselig and Windy O'Neil, the Descenzo, Ont., keyboard artist, are hockey's musically-inclined candidates. Johnny, the Chicago Black Hawk left-winger from 1928 to 1941, can make a mandolin talk and Windy, who had a couple of seasons with Toronto Maple Leafs, is the life of any party with his high-class piano playing.

But you must hand it to sporty promoters as the real music-lovers—particularly if the tune is played at the turnstiles.

FIRST CUP OF TEA

The Chinese emperor, Shen Nung, who reigned about 3,000 B.C., is credited with making the first cup of tea.

Puppet Play Marks Goethe Bicentenary

Winnipeg (CP)—Nearly 200 years ago a boy named Johann Wolfgang von Goethe was given a puppet stage. Playing with its tiny figures, he formed the plot "Faust."

Recently, in Wiesbaden, Germany, an artist completed eight puppets and sent them to Herta Hartmanshenn, lecturer in German at the University of Manitoba here.

Members of the German Club celebrated the bicentenary of Goethe's birth by presenting the puppet play from which "Faust" grew.

Miss Hartmanshenn, who before the Second World War lectured at Victoria College, University of Toronto, said the puppet stage was considered a form of art, "not child's play as it is here."

"To introduce it, I thought we could do worse than put on an English version of 'Faust.'"

The puppets were made for her by a friend, Miss Elsbeth Wyss, especially for the play. They will remain in Winnipeg. The figures—"never call them dolls," says Miss Hartmanshenn — include such classical characters as Gretchen of Fairns and Mephistopheles.

Plans Folk Plays

Miss Hartmanshenn, who owned her first puppets at the age of 12, plans to stage several German folk plays and fairy tales.

"We have been rehearsing for four weeks," she said.

Puppets, worked with the fingers, are not as hard to operate as marionettes, which are guided by strings.

"At first you tend to move the figures too violently, but that soon passes."

Miss Hartmanshenn is convinced that puppets — in the right hands—could become popular in Canada "once people learn that they are not just for children. There are so many kinds of plays you can put on with them.

"Why, in early Egypt they used to stage puppet mystery plays"

Packard Forced To Close Plant

Detroit, April 25 (AP)— Packard Motor Car Company announced Wednesday it will be forced to close its assembly plants tomorrow night because of a shortage of brake equipment.

Packard is the third car-maker to be forced down by the strike in the Bendix Aviation Corporation plant at South Bend, Ind. The others are Nash and Kaiser-Fraser.

The Packard closing will affect 5,000 workers and bring to approximately 34,000 the number of workers directly and indirectly affected by the Bendix stoppage.

The Bendix dispute centres largely around the dismissal of 41 workers accused by the management of slowing down output.

Columbus, Ga. — (AP) — Policeman W. H. Adkins was pounding his downtown beat as usual in the pre-dawn darkness.

As he had done dozens of times, he checked the alley door of the Armed Services YMCA building. But this time the handle turned and the door opened.

There, staring at him from inside the room, was a "big, burly man, ready to jump me."

Adkins drew his gun. The prowler" drew his. Both fired. A full-length mirror and the prowler — Adkins' reflection — crashed to the floor.

Ipswich, England — (AP) — For four days the Ipswich fire brigade tried to dislodge Tinker, a black-and-white Persian cat, from the top of a 100-foot pine tree.

Dense foliage made it impossible to use ladders. The firemen shot 15,000 gallons of water at the tree in an effort to drive Tinker from her perch.

Then it was decided to cut down the tree. But along came young A. R. Garnham.

"Pooh," said Garnham. "I'll climb it."

He did. He popped Tinker into a sack and made a safe descent. Tinker, waterlogged but happy, celebrated with a big meal.

Los Angeles (AP)— Here's one postman who doesn't ring twice. His trouble is he didn't ring at all.

Postman William E. Lilley, 45, arraigned yesterday on a charge of delaying and detention of mail, explained he suffered from the mailman's occupation — sore feet.

"I would just get tired and take some of the letters home," he added. "I never opened any and I fully intended to deliver them in the due course of time."

In lieu of $1,500 Lilley was sent to jail to rest his aching arches.

Inspectors said they found nearly 5,000 unopened letters in Lilley's home.

Cincinnati (AP)—Charles McGlees, 25, became disgusted with a used car he bought for $295 recently. So he let it coast down a steep incline into the Ohio river.

"That was the fastest that pile of junk has gone since I bought it," he told police.

The 1947 model car was abandoned in 20 feet of water. Capt. John Beatty, river salvage expert, pulled it out late yesterday. He said he intends to keep it.

Ocean Park, Calif. (AP)—Most people talk gloomily about the national debt. But mere talk isn't enough for David Epstein, a 76-year-old bellhop. He's paying off his share in installments.

Two years ago Epstein read that each American's share of the national debt is $1,700.

"So I mailed a cheque for $100 to President Truman," Epstein said, "I got a nice letter of thanks from the treasury department, so I sent another in 1948. I wrote the third cheque yesterday. I intend to keep sending them until I pay off the $1,700.

Why does he do it?

"I immigrated here from Lithuania 58 years ago. I made a new life for myself. I love America and freedom and want to pay my share."

Bedridden British Get Wireless Sets

London — (CP) — People all over Britain who are confined to bed are getting radio sets free.

Their fairy godmother is the Wireless for the Bedridden Society with headquarters in London. It has installed more than 500 sets during the last year.

Recently St. Pancras (London) borough council agreed to pay half the cost of supplying sets to sick people in the district. The society will pay the other half.

"The sets are loaned," said George Fielder, organizing secretary. "We look after their maintenance and pay for the first licence."

THOUGHT OWN REFLECTION WAS A PROWLER

Columbus, Ga., April 28 (AP) — Patrolman W. H. Adkins, who shot at his own reflection in a mirror Monday, has been suspended from the force pending a hearing before the Board of Public Safety. He fired the shot in a downtown building after he mistook his image for a prowler.

Frost supporters lost no time in carrying in signs congratulating the new PC leader and premier-designate. Scene above was photographed minutes after results of balloting were announced and delegates staged spontaneous demonstration on convention floor. Bagpipers led parade of sign-carriers to platform, but some of them wander off through the crowd, unable to reach the packed platform.

Norwegian Pilot Establishes Record for North Penetration With Single-Engined Plane

Churchill, Man., April 28 — (CP) — Men at the Federal Transport Department station at Arctic Bay, 1,000 miles north of this Hudson Bay port, were discussing single-engined aircraft, speculating if such planes could ever reach them.

An hour later a Norseman plane landed at the outpost to establish what is believed to be a record for northern penetration by a single-engined aircraft. At the controls was Ingebrigtsen.

It was more by accident than design that the Norwegian-born former R.C.A.F. pilot established the record. At the time he was flying the eastern Arctic patrol on its annual inspection involving the health and welfare of Eskimos. The flight called for a visit to Arctic Bay, so Ingebrigtsen flew there.

Behind the flight, however, lay years of experience in northern flying and a knowledge of Arctic conditions brought to bear on hood spent mainly in the shadows, and ringed by the ice-capped Arctic Ocean.

Born in Norway 25 years ago Ingebrigtsen came to Canada with his parents at the age of three, settling at Churchill when he was 11. Possessed with an urge to fly, he set about earning money for lessons.

Enlisted in R.C.A.F.

Finally it was Winnipeg and flying school, followed by enlistment in the R.C.A.F. in 1942. His three years in the service were spent mainly on the West Coast, flying big planes out over the Pacific.

Upon return to Churchill he became part of "Operation Muskox," the Canadian Army's winter snowmobile trek from Churchill across the sub-Arctic to Edmonton. Finally freed for civilian duties, he became a full-fledged bush pilot, purchasing a small aircraft and flying anywhere in the northland on contract.

Once, commissioned to fly a small girl to hospital, he battled a head-on Arctic gale, his aircraft taking three hours to fly 150 miles.

Several other mercy flights also are listed in his log.

While Ingebrigtsen has had his share of mercy flights, he isn't worried over the possibility that some day he might be the object of such a flight. Apart from his knowledge of northern flying he has gas caches strategically placed. Should lack of gas or other trouble force him down he wouldn't have far to go for supplies, even in an area embracing hundreds of thousands of square miles.

WILL OPEN AIRPORT

Ottawa, April 28 (CP) — The Mohawk Airport at Desoronto is to be opened as a summer training camp for R.C.A.F. auxiliary squadrons, Defence Minister Claxton Wednesday advised the Commons.

He had been asked about the future of the field by Frank Lennard (PC-Wentworth).

GIVEN SEVEN DAYS

Napanee, April 28 (CP)—Frank Murray of Read, in East Hastings County, a truck driver and father of eight children aged three to 13, Wednesday was convicted of drunk driving and leaving the scene of an accident. He was sent t- ~~ail~~ seven days and assessed costs of $34.50 on the first charge and had his licence suspended and truck impounded for three months. The second offence

Parties Marshal Their High Cards For Election

Ottawa, April 28 — (CP) — All parties are marshalling their high cards for the general election.

The government has some aces up its sleeve.

Some of these may provide for aid to a politically - dangerous area. Others may be withheld for a while to spur party wheelhorses into renewed efforts before June 27, now the generally-accepted election date.

Into the second category fall senatorships, and the government now has 14 of these plums to be filled, apart from the six assigned to Newfoundland.

The government plans to fill a batch of these shortly, it is understood, though some of them may be withheld because of the need of harvesting all available seats to shore up the majority the party expects to get in the general election.

Some Commons members slated for senatorships eventually are considered as Indians good for carrying their riding in a general election.

Another immediate appointment probably would be Gordon Isnor (L — Halifax) except for the fact that the government fears it needs his strong personal pull to carry the double riding of Halifax.

Liberal informants say an upper chamber seat might be kept open for Mr. Isnor.

Outside parliament, the most generally-expected appointment to the Senate was that of former Premier John Hart of British Columbia, now Speaker of the B. C. legislature. Mr. Hart's appointment is regarded as sure.

Other rumored moves to the Red Chamber are those of Hon. J. J. Hayes Doone, New Brunswick provincial treasurer, and William A. Fraser of Cobourg.

The government has a few more weapons in reserve. The government has a few more weapons in reserve.

Stone and Clay Used for Crafts In Newfoundland

St. John's, Nfld. — (CP) — Labradorite, the rock which the Eskimos call "fire-stone," may eventually form the basis of a new industry in Canada's 10th province.

At the National Handicrafts Centre in downtown St. John's they're turning gout rings and other forms of jewelry set with this stone which has the appearance of marble, but in weight is only slightly heavier than plastic.

"It is the first time labradorite has been cut in this country," said Frank Templeman, director of the centre. "Germany used to be the only place in which the work could be done."

About a year ago the centre hired W. B. Taylor of St. John's to experiment with cutting the rock found only on a remote island off the coast of Labrador.

The experiment proved such a success that the centre now is turning out the finished stone in increasing quantities.

Clay, suitable for pottery-making, also has been found in Newfoundland, and is being converted into plate and ornaments by the handicrafts students.

Established three years ago, the centre operated under the Commission government's department of education. Mr. Templeman said he did not know what changes, if any, would occur as a resulting of Confederation. Organized to develop handicraft in Newfoundland, it now has a teaching staff of six, conducting classes for 300 day and night students.

Training for Outports

While business and professional men make up a large percentage of the night students, several also are training to become field workers in the outports.

"At present we have workers in the Green Bay and Jackson's Cove area, around Milton and Shoal Harbor and Bonavista Bay," said Mr. Templeman, who is a graduate of Acadia University, Wolfville, N.S., and a former education officer with the R.C.A.F.

"We're hoping eventually to send out workers to the larger centres," he said.

Leatherwork, weaving and all the other handicrafts are taught at the centre which has its quarters in a large building in downtown St. John's. Instruction also is given in cooking and sewing.

"The end of this month we are opening one of the largest handicraft exhibitions ever held in St. John's," said Mr. Templeman

Nonia (Newfoundland Outport Nursing Industrial Association) another St. John's handicrafts centre well known for its weaving and woollen products, will be among the contributors.

They also are hoping to have some handicrafts from New Brunswick in the show," said Mr. Templeman.

He added that the centre is planning to take part in the Canadian International Trade Fair at Toronto next month.

Garson to Refer To Collins Bay 'Pen' Disturbance

Ottawa, April 27 — (CP) — Justice Minister Garson will make a statement in the Commons today on the Easter Monday disturbances at Collins Bay penitentiary, Kingston. Meanwhile, spokesmen declined to comment on a report that 300 convicts had been denied privileges and 12 "paddled" for protesting about the food at the jail farm. Reports at the time of the disturbance were that only 40 prisoners took part in the demonstration and it was disclosed that only those directly involved were likely to be punished.

War-Damaged Church May be Pulled Down

London — (CP) — Unless the sum of £8,000 ($32,000) is raised quickly, the war-damaged church of St. George the Martyr in Queen Square, Holborn, will be pulled down and the parish amalgamated with another church that does not exist.

The church bthat doesn't exist is St. Bartholomew's, Grays Inn Road. Not only is there no church but was destroyed during the war —but there is no incumbent, or a house in the parish to live in. The few members of the congregation go to St. George's or other churches.

Rev. R. Mercer Wilson, rector of St. George's, said he is "aggrieved" over a decision of the Diocesan Reorganization Committee to pull down his church unless £8,000 is found.

"The committee are thinking only of the financial aspect and ignoring the human element," he said.

"My church will cost £11,000 to repair. Only £3,000 of this is recoverable from the War Damage Commission, as there was dry rot in the timbers before the war.

"On the other hand, St. Bartholomew's can be rebuilt entirely as war damage at the cost of the commission. My case is that my church is a most important one and should receive consideration.

"St. George's can be restored; it is standing, although the rain does fall on me sometimes when I am in the pulpit."

Cupboards Disgorge Songs of Long Ago

Liverpool, England — (CP) — Much rummaging is going on in attics and music cupboards in a search for old song sheets.

Long-forgotten songs of as far back as 1840 are being unearthed and sorted into the nucleus of a library of "Grandma's Musical Favorites."

Organizers are members of the Liverpool Union of Girls' and Mixed Clubs, who plan to sing to the old folk in their clubs and institutions. Others, in twos or threes, will visit elderly ladies who are bed-ridden in their own homes.

"Old people love to hear songs that were popular in their youth," said Isobel Buxton, director. "Many of the songs we have collected lasted only a short while and have been out of print for years.

"As we could not buy them, I appealed to local residents to turn out their cupboards and attics. The response has been staggering."

Dies in Hospital After Routine Jump

Winnipeg, April 20 (CP)— A 20-year-old member of the Princess Patricia Canadian Light Infantry died in hospital today following a routine night training jump from the parachute tower at the Shilo, Man., army training camp.

Army authorities gave his name as Pte. Peter M. H. Russell of Galiano Island, B.C.

After landing, he walked away but complained of not feeling well. Rushed to hospital, he died an hour later.

A court of inquiry has been convened to investigate cause of death.

Ask Abolition Of Rent Controls

Toronto, April 27 (CP)—Abolition of rent controls, lower property taxes and more economies in the city government were demanded in resolutions passed Tuesday night at the 15th annual meting of the Toronto Property Owners' Association.

The association criticized increases in municipal taxes brought about by continued demands for higher teachers wages, subsidized housing, social services and the "unreasonable requests" of civic employees.

Wilthleigh, Devonshire, England —(CP) — Persons from the western side of the village have been getting married in the wrong church since 1924. The rector of nearby Templeton, found an order-in-council of July, 1924, transferring part of Wilthleigh ecclesiastical parish to Templeton.

Restore Montreal's Chateau De Ramezay

Montreal — (CP) — Montreal's oldest house, the Chateau de Ramezay is to get a face-lifting as a result of a $215,000 Restoration Fund campaign in May launched by the Antiquarian and Numismatic Society.

The chateau, built in 1705 by Claude de Ramezay, the city's 11th governor, was turned into a national museum in 1895 and now is the home of the Antiquarian Society.

The museum contains a valuable collection of objects dating to the earliest times of New France and occupation by the English, and one of the finest collections of coins on the continent.

The society plans to repair the building which last year admitted 32,000 visitors. Part of the money will go for repairs and restoration of parts of the old chateau, for preservation of equipment and the collection it contains. About $50,000 will be used to add new pieces to the collection.

The chateau until recent years was connected historically with every major event in the city.

After the cession of New France to Britain in 1760 the chateau was bought by an Englishman who in turn sold it to the government. Then it became known as the Chateau de Montcalm and the home of the city's governors until 1849.

It was here Benjamin Franklin and other representatives of the Continental Congress, met French Canadian leaders in 1776 in an attempt to influence them to join the American Revolution.

W. Jones on Wednesday evening of conference week. This service is to conclude in time for those present to attend the ordination service which is to be held at eight o'clock.

GOING HOME—Simeonl Ferark, five-year-old Eskimo boy, right, smiles happily at the prospect of returning to his Chesterfield Inlet home after seven weeks' treatment for poliomyelitis in a Winnipeg hospital. His six-year-old companion, George Tanniak, does not seem impressed at making the 1,000-mile plane ride following his first visit to civilization. Four doctors on their way to examine other stricken Eskimos were aboard the plane which carried the two boys back to their home. (CP Photo)

The congregation of Sand Hill Church on the Bay circuit was given permission to sell their church the proceeds to be used in the upkeep of the cemetery which lies across the road from the church.

The congregation of Centre Church in Belleville was given permission to rent their church five days a week for public school purposes for five years.

Missionary Ralfy

A Missionary Rally is to be held at Bridge Street United Church, Belleville, on Friday, May 6th beginning at 4.30 with a session especially interesting to children and an evening session for the older folk. A mission car of the type to be used in foreign mission work will be on display. The church hopes to reach a missionary objective of $3,000,000 by 1950 which means an annual increase of $4,500 for each of the next two years. It plans to secure 100,000 new envelope subscribers by that date.

Rev. David H. Gallagher was nominated by presbytery to succeed Rev. Dr. Jessie Arnup, as secretary of the Board of Overseas Missions when the date for the retirement of Dr. Arnup arrives. An intinerary of pulpit exchanges in the interest of Christian mission is to be worked out and presented to the next regular meeting of presbytery.

Crews Forced To Abandon Two Strikebound Ships

By The Canadian Press

Canadian Seamen's Union (T. L. C.) crews were forced Wednesday to abandon two strikebound ships, one in Antwerp, the other in Long Beach, California, while in Halifax the rival Seafarers International Union (A.F.L.) put a crew aboard the freighter Dufferin Bell.

In Montreal, the Canadian National Steamships announced all its principal ships now are manned by the S.I.U. sailing of the Lady Rodney marked resumption of the C.N.S. West Indies service, interrupted by the C.S.U. general strike called March 3.

The deep-sea shipping tie-up, precipitated when Canadian shipowners signed an agreement with the S.I.U., also got brief mention in the House of Commons at Ottawa where Labor Minister Mitchell said he was "not going to be a decoy duck" for the Communist party.

Belgian police stood by in Antwerp as 27 C.S.U. men from the steamship Marchport were put ashore by their captain.

In Long Beach, a United States judge ordered 28 strikers on the Canadian freighter Arnjohn to surrender immediate possession on the vessel to its owners, the Argonaut Navigation Company. They struck April 20.

Injunction Ends Picketing

The Dufferin Bell is the sixth vessel, left idle in Halifax by the C.S.U. since the strike started, that has been taken over by the rival union. Wednesday night a 30-man crew went aboard.

In Victoria, a restraining injunction ended C.S.U. picketing of two eastern-owned freighters, the S.I.U.-manned freighters Seaside and Silverside.

At Saint John, N.B., W. L. Carlin, president of the International Longshoremen's Association (A. F. L.) Local issued a denial of a statement by Joseph Ryan, I.L.A. president in New York, that Halifax longshoremen were supporting the S.I.U. in the strike.

Carlin said Ryan was mistaken in saying longshoremen in Montreal, Halifax and the west coast were supporting the S.I.U.

Refused to Cross Lines

He said Halifax longshoremen have refused to cross C.S.U. picket lines, and he claimed also that west coast locals were supporting the striking C.S.U.

The C.S.U. in Montreal announced it had signed contracts for the manning of three lake vessels listed as subsidiaries of the McColl Frontenac Oil Co. The agreement called for a $10 increase, raising the monthly basic rate of pay to $185 and other benefits.

The union also announced it had reached an agreement with the Anticosti Shipping Company of Montreal to man one of its vessels. The contract called for no wage increase.

In Capetown, the crew of the Canadian freighter Cargill went on strike after the vessel docked in the South African port yesterday. The crew is the third on strike in Capetown where more than 100 Canadian seamen now are idle.

Shining on Top of Ontario—Leslie Frost waves to the delegates who chose him as Ontario's next Premier. T. L. Kennedy, the man under the hat, and his two fellow-admirers hoisted the new Conservative Party leader up shortly after the convention finished its business by picking the provincial treasurer to succeed Mr. Kennedy. Mr. Patrick is Deputy Speaker of Legislature and MPP for Middlesex north.

MOST CANADIAN PROVINCES READY TO PAY SHARE

Federal Government Raises Basic Pension

(By The Canadian Press)

Most Canadian provinces are ready to pay their share to increase old-age pensions $10 a month.

A Canadian Press survey showed that legislation to supplement latest federal moves to boost the pensions is before the legislature in New Brunswick and has been passed in Ontario. Manitoba has undertaken to pay its 25 per cent of the increase.

Premier Joseph Smallwood of Newfoundland said residents of his province "would contribute their share "as soon as we are able" — probably as soon as the legislature can be set up there to pass the legislation. Quebec has been paying for a month, since May 1 and in the past has boosted its share along with the federal government.

Under the federal legislation, passed Wednesday night, the federal government offers to pay 75 per cent of the cost of old-age pensions of up to $40 a month. At present it pays 75 per cent of pensions of up to $30 a month.

The Ontario legislature at its recent session increased the basic old-age pension to $32.50 from $30 a boost sufficient to cover pensions on the new basis. In addition, the Ontario government pays a monthly bonus of up to $10 in cases of special need.

No Provision Made

Saskatchewan now pays 25 per cent, $7.50, of the $30 pensions, plus a supplementary allowance of $5. On the new basis of $40 the allowance is continued, it would pay $15 monthly.

Alberta's health and welfare minister, Dr. W. W. Cross, said the federal measure would cost Alberta $500,000 for its share of the $10-a-month increase and another $500,000 if pensions were paid to women at 65 years. He added that the additional $1,000,000 has not been provided for in this year's estimates.

It is estimated that the proposed increase would cost British Columbia an additional $900,000 a year. That province now pays its 27,000 pensioners a $10 monthly bonus, bringing their present basic monthly rate to $40.

Nova Scotia now pays 25 per cent of a $30 monthly pension.

In Ottawa, it was learned that an old-age pensions agreement between that province and the federal government to give island pensioners a $10 a month allowance, with the new province's treasury paying 25 per cent of the cost, will be completed within a few days. The agreement will place residents of the island on the same basis, so far as federal contributions are concerned, as residents of the older provinces have been for some time now. To make the pension $40 a month would cost Newfoundland an extra $2.50 a month for each pensioner.

Meanwhile all parties are going into a spurt of organization.—Central Press Canadian.

Toronto Man Dies in Plane On Way Home

Toronto, April 28 (CP)—A 57-year-old Toronto man died in his wife's arms Wednesday night aboard a chartered aircraft bringing him home from a battle Creek, Mich., hospital to die.

Hyman Bolter, who doctors said was suffering from incurable cancer, died before the plane reached nearby Malton Airport.

His doctor, Dr. S. M. Linson, said the trip was a "nightmare."

Two physicians at Chicago air services promised to make the flight, then cancelled it because they were refused clearance to fly to Canada, he said.

A fourth air service was three hours late picking up the party, then raised the price of the trip from $275 to $650 in mid-air, he said. The pilots told them they "they would turn back if the price wasn't satisfactory."

Had it not been for delays, he said, Mr. Molter would have reached Toronto alive.

"He was dying," the doctor said. "But with more than 25 years to live alive for his family."

He said he did not know who told the air lines they could not get clearance to Canada. The pilots originally came to Chicago and were not available for comment.

Dr. Linson said he originally motored to Battle Creek and from early yesterday morning until late yesterday afternoon tried to charter a plane for Toronto.

"Each one delayed a flight like that is beyond reason," he said.

Mayor Detroit," he said, "the pilots told them they had not been able to get the aircraft they had originally arranged for, and the one they were using would cost more money. Mrs. Bolter wrote a cheque in mid-air for the extra money."

"The aircraft they used was three hours late picking them up at Battle Creek," he said.

BRITISH SEIZE CONTROL OF THREE LOCKS IN SECTOR

Russians Make Vain Attempt to Take Over

Berlin, April 28 (CP)—Armed British military police in jeeps and an armored car seized control today of three canal locks in the British sector after the Russians made a vain attempt to take over the locks.

The Russians claim control of Berlin's waterways. They ordered their lock keeper to prevent craft from entering or leaving the locks without showing registration with the Soviet water control. The Russians gave a similar order yesterday but rescinded it after a British protest.

After the new Russian order, 24 British military police, led by a Major, drew up at the Charlottenburg lock, all armed with revolvers.

The British Major served a virtual order on the Russian Colonel from Soviet military headquarters, saying British authorities would not tolerate any Soviet interference with barge traffic in the British sector.

However, subsequent negotiations appeared to have been conducted in a friendly spirit. The Russian Colonel said he would bring back a reply from his Karlshorst headquarters later in the day.

The east-west "cold war" had flared up again when a group of Soviet zone gunners seized the locks, situated in the British and French sectors of the city, and halted four barges on their way to Gatow airport to pick up air-lift supplies.

Technically, the canals passing through west Berlin form part of the inland waterways system of the Soviet zone and are under control of the Soviet military administration.

"Nevertheless," a British spokesman said, "we do not recognize any Russian right to interfere with barges carrying air-lift freight from Gatow airport to warehouses in the western sectors, particularly since they do not go anywhere near Soviet territory."

Drew Withdraws Statement After Expulsion Threat

Charges Claxton Attempted To "Mislead" the House

Ottawa, April 28 (CP)—Under threat of expulsion from the Chamber, George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, today in the Commons withdrew a charge that Defence Minister Claxton had been attempting to "mislead" the House.

Mr. Drew retracted the statement after Prime Minister St-Laurent called on Speaker Gaspard Fauteux to exercise the sanction if the Progressive Conservative leader did not withdraw.

Dr. Fauteux, himself a lawyer, drew up at his Charlottenburg lock, all armed with revolvers.

However, subsequent negotiations appeared to have been conducted in a friendly spirit. The Russian Colonel said he would bring back a reply from his Karlshorst headquarters later in the day.

MISSING PLANE BELIEVED DOWN IN NEW BRUNSWICK

Photograph Shows Break in Ice in Area Where Plane Last Known

Ottawa, April 28 (CP) — The R.C.A.F. today has embarked on a new Miramichi River trek in an unrelenting effort to trace the whereabouts of an R.C.A.F. aircraft and seven men aboard, reported missing eight days ago.

While air force planes were grouping at Greenwood, N.S., preparing to carry out another 3,500-square-mile photo survey, at the outer edges of the 7,000-square-mile area covered two days ago, army photo interpretation officers were still scouring finished photos, trying to pinpoint the spot.

It is believed to be down somewhere in the hills or woods of New Brunswick. So far, they had not located the missing plane.

However, the photographs showed up one clue—a break in the ice of a lake 50 miles east of Presque Isle, Me., where the aircraft was last heard from. The clue was passed on to officials at Halifax, who will follow it up.

Meanwhile, one of two Lancasters that had taken part in the original photo survey was scheduled to take off at dawn today to join with another Lancaster that roared out of Ottawa last night and two Dakotas stationed at Greenwood.

The four aircraft—weather permitting—will hover over areas in Maine and in New Brunswick to carry out the new photo task.

Previously, four similar aircraft had photo-surveyed a strip 120 miles long and 60 miles wide, stretching from Presque Isle, Me., the spot where the missing plane was last reported, and Chatham, N.B., the plane's destination.

Halifax—The Air Force said here early today a "clean break" in ice on a lake 30 miles east of Presque Isle, Me., will be investigated by an R.C.A.F. helicopter.

CLERGYMAN CHARGED

Rochester, N.Y., April 28 — (AP) — A 40-year-old clergyman was charged Wednesday night with first degree murder in the slaying of his wife. The charge was lodged against Rev. George P. Hetenyi four days after the body of Mrs. Jean Gavels Hetenyi, 25, was found locked in driftwood in the Genesee River.

ESCAPE GATE FROM SHANGHAI SLOWLY CLOSES

Last Ships for Foreigners Preparing to Get Under Way

Shanghai, April 28 — (AP) — The escape gate from communist-threatened Shanghai began closing slowly today.

For foreigners, the last ships were preparing to get under way. For the Chinese, land routes were coming under communist troop domination.

R. A. F. planes stood by in Hong Kong, ready to evacuate the fifth community of Shanghai if authorities decide it is necessary. British warships stiff are in the Yangtze and Whangpoo but British authorities have not yet undertaken emergency evacuations.

Big naval craft moored down the river, out of range of communist shore guns, may depart tonight or tomorrow, one naval officer said.

The approaching communists appeared to be at least 30 or 40 miles away in mid-afternoon although they took Soochow (Wuhsien), about 50 miles west of Shanghai, early yesterday. Their advance may be slowed down because they still have not sufficient forces ferried across the Yangtze to handle the various drives which are developing.

The Nationalists "retired" president, Chiang Kai-Shek, left early today on a destroyer after he had appealed to the people to fight "communist tyranny." It was announced that Chiang, who said he was here only as a private citizen, would go to Amoy, opposite Formosa which has been built up as a "last stand" Nationalist bastion.

There did not appear to be any Chinese troop evacuations down the Whangpoo today. Yesterday an estimated 10,000 went out on five ships.

The communists appear to have three spearheads moving toward objectives in this region. The one approaching Shanghai is reported to contain about 40,000 men. The one going from Soochow toward Hangchow, 85 miles south of Shanghai, appeared somewhat smaller. A third force of undetermined strength moved south around Lake Tai. Its objective seemed to be Hangchow, 100 miles.

Airmen Saved When Forced Down in Atlantic Ocean

Montreal, April 28 — (CP) —A U.S. Air Force twin-engine aircraft made a forced landing in the North Atlantic and its crew of four were rescued by the coast guard cutter Sebago, it was learned here.

The aircraft was en route from Lagens to Argentia, Nfld., and had circled over one of the International Civil Aviation Organization's Atlantic weather ships some 600 miles off Newfoundland when one of its engines cut out.

It was unable to make land, so turned back, an ICAO spokesman said, and landed in the water about 100 yards from the coast guard cutter, one of 11 weather ships stationed across the Atlantic.

The crew were rescued by the coast guard vessel without difficulty and the aircraft sank 12 minutes after setting down in the ocean.

Coldwell Fears 'Smear Campaign' In Election

Ottawa, April 28. (CP)—M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, said today he was "disturbing information" that there will be a repetition in the forthcoming federal election of "the smear campaign of misrepresentation and abuse" which was directed at his party in 1945.

He also told a press conference he has will be making a coast-to-coast tour to pack up a campaign into which the C.C.F. will inject some 200 Candidates and in which he thinks the party can make "substantial gains."

The real fight, Mr. Coldwell said, will be between the Liberals and C.C.F. with the Progressive Conservative probably suffering a net loss in Commons strength.

Mr. Coldwell said he had hoped the 1949 campaign "would be as clean as we could keep it." But there were signs of a revival of the "vicious newspaper ads of 1945" in which his party was represented as "wanting to take over every corner drug store and to nationalize the ice cream cone."

The wasted interest, he said, were frightened because of C.C.F. gains in federal by-elections, the Ontario election and a gain in total votes in Saskatchewan.

The "smear campaign" was backed with hundreds of thousands of dollars by "big business," he said, but he knew of no direct link with the two old parties.

The C.C.F. would combat this as best it could with "very limited funds."

Mr. Coldwell saw the C.C.F. gains coming in the west, Ontario and maybe the Maritimes." He admitted that Quebec "is a problem."

Nova Scotia Sets June 9 For Election

Halifax, April 28 — (CP) — Battle lines for the June 9 Nova Scotia general election announced yesterday by Premier Angus L. Macdonald already have started to take shape.

From speeches in the legislature, at public meetings and in radio broadcasts during the past few months the three major parties have given a good indication of the platforms they will use in their battle for the 37 provincial seats.

Liberals, who captured 28 of the 30 seats in 1945, will go to the polls in its record of administration since 1933.

At dissolution yesterday Liberals held 24 seats, four were vacant and the other two were held by the C. C. F. opposition members.

The C. C. F., if it follows the line of attack its members did in the legislature, will stump for additional social security and health benefits, and expanded educational facilities.

The Progressive Conservative party, under a new leader, Robert L. Stanfield, has been preparing for the election for the past few months with a steady campaign.

It has attacked the Liberal government for lack of assistance to industry and municipalities. Party spokesmen have attacked the government on the Redistribution Act of 1949 which adds seven seats at the June election and on the margarine question.

Both the old parties are expected to put candidates in all ridings while the C. C. F. will likely contest all but a few.

Thirteen Hurt As Six Pullman Cars Derailed

Fort Wayne, Ind., April 28— (AP)—Thirteen persons were hurt today as a diner and eight coaches of the Pennsylvania Railroad's eastbound Broadway Limited were derailed as the train approached Fort Wayne.

Two passengers, a brakeman, six waiters and four cooks were taken to hospital.

The eleven members of the train crew also taken to hospital for examination were shaken up as the diner left the rails.

Jesse Selden, trainmaster of the Fort Wayne division, said the derailment apparently was caused by the breaking of a journal box on the first unit of a twin dining car. The break caused the derailment of this car, Selden said, and the seven cars followed it off the rails.

None of the cars turned over.

BREAKS COURT RULE

Toronto, April 28 (CP) — Judge Lavering broke a court rule Wednesday in favor of a pretty, bare-headed woman.

When young Pat Jackson defied court custom by taking the witness stand without a hat, a clerk wanted to know if the judge would allow it.

"I don't care if she wears a hat or not," he replied. "Besides, she's got a pretty head."

Mason's Manuscripts Of Plays, Novels on Sale

London, April 28 — (CP) — Manuscripts of novels and plays by the late A. E. W. Mason, writ-ten in his own hand, as well as a typical script, are to be sold at Sotheby's auction rooms.

Of his famous story "The Four Feathers," there are only three manuscripts of 40 numbered pages, many added to and altered in the writing.

PROBE CONDUCTED

Ottawa, April 28 — (CP) — Investigation into the Exeter Monday disturbance at Collins Bay penitentiary has been being conducted, Justice Minister Garson said in the Commons today.

Answering a question from John Diefenbaker (PC — Lake Centre), he said a report on the incident would be tabled as soon as he received it.

Ottawa, April 28 (CP)—Under threat of expulsion from the Chamber, George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, today in the Commons withdrew a charge that Defence Minister Claxton had been attempting to "mislead" the House.

Mr. Drew retracted the statement after Prime Minister St-Laurent called on Speaker Gaspard Fauteux to exercise the sanction if the Progressive Conservative leader did not withdraw.

Plan Homecoming Reception For P-C Leader Frost

Lindsay, April 28 (CP) — A public homecoming reception will be held next Tuesday for Leslie M. Frost, Lindsay lawyer who yesterday was named leader of the Progressive Conservative party in Ontario.

County and municipal officials along with children, cadets, Legion members and citizens are expected to turn out en masse to welcome Mr. Frost, who incidentally becomes Premier of Ontario, next to his home town of Victoria and Haliburton.

GIVEN EIGHTEEN MONTHS

London, Ont., April 28 (CP)—James Howard Aselline, 24, of Windsor, today was sentenced to one and a half years definite and indefinite for the highway death Dec. 4 last of a passenger in his auto, Reginald Hipperson, 28 of Ingersoll.

He was convicted by an assize court jury yesterday. Sentence was pronounced by Mr. Justice G. A. Gale.

WHEN THE BOW BREAKS . . . THE SHIP SINKS

On the way home from maiden voyage, the British luxury liner Magdalena broke in two and sank while being towed to Rio de Janeiro harbor after an all-night grounding on a sunken reef. The photo shows the bow of the doomed vessel floating free at the entrance to the harbor. The stern is already beneath the water. The skeleton crew abandoned ship during the crackup and sinking. Her 350 passengers are safe.—Radiophoto from Central Press Canadian.

Takes Taxi Ride to Get Low-Down on Newfoundland

By KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

St. John's, Nfld. — (CP) — The little taxi-driver had a cheerful grin and as many anecdotes as there are hamlets along the Newfoundland coast.

But as for driving to Witless Bay, Hearst's Delight, and other of the quaintly-named outports, he wasn't having any. Not at this time of the year.

"Maybe I should come in Summer for that," he said. "The roads aren't any good around here now."

However he consented to take the smooth highway around Conception Bay, through Topsail, Holyrood and Brigus.

"A reporter, eh!" he asked, eyes driven lots of artists and writers. Drove Rex Beach once—and Ripley. They all come to Newfoundland for the trout-fishing.

In and out we wound through the uneven countryside, now covered with the red dry fuzz of countless blueberry bushes.

"You should see it in summer," he repeated, regretfully. "Everyone from St. John's comes hopping out here for the berry-picking; you've never tasted anything until you've had a piece of Newfoundland blueberry-pie."

At Holyrood we stopped to look at a gate made from the jaw-bone of a whale.

Americans "Fall Weak"

"The Americans fall weak for taking pictures of that." He grinned, then added "Say, you'd better write that down, 'fall weak,' I mean; that's a good Newfoundland expression and reporters like to write about the way we Newfoundlanders talk."

That's how it was throughout the trip. He made frequent stops to point out things he thought might be interesting.

Butter Pot Mountain lay ahead, jutting out on the skyline like a sawed-off tooth.

To one side lay Octagond Pond —"we Newfoundlanders always call them ponds, not lakes the way you do."

Most of the swimming was done in the ponds, because the ocean was too cold.

"Not many Newfoundlanders can swim anyway," he chuckled. "You know they're the greatest drinkers in the world; yet they can't swim."

Along the roadside appeared half a dozen rough boarded-up houses belonging to "Newfoundlanders who have gone to Canada or the States."

That is where the confederate and anti-confederate angle entered the conversation. The little taxi-driver shrugged his shoulders and said he had voted for responsible government.

"But in the long run I guess confederation will work out all right," he said. "It's going to be hard for a while, though, getting used to that name 'Canadian'."

Will Develop Great Ranch Lands In Australia for Beef Raising

By LESLIE BRODIE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Sydney, Australia — (CP) — The Cinderella lands in the northern part of Australia are to be developed into a gigantic beef-producing centre.

When Prime Minister Joseph B. Chifley left for the prime ministers' conference in London he took with him a long-range plan to spend $100,000,000 on developing the comparatively empty tracts of arable land extending roughly over 500,000 square miles from West Queensland through the Northern Territory to the Indian Ocean on the west coast.

The Australian government proposes to meet the cost, but as part of the scheme Britain is expected to sign a long-term meat agreement that will guarantee a minimum price for all Australia's surplus beef for the next 10 years.

The minimum price the government is demanding will safeguard the ranchers against any government's financial commitments in developing the areas.

Twice in the last eight months Britain has agreed to an increase to encourage cattle production in Australia, but they have never been high enough to warrant big scale development.

Sir Sidney Turner, head of the British Food Mission, after an inspection of Australia's resources said it was reasonable for Britain to pay a much higher price to cover the heavy outlay necessary to lift production.

So far the British government has maintained the present price of $9.23 per 100 pounds of first grade beef is sufficient compensation.

Ranchers Active

However, ranch owners in the north are presently Anglo-Argentine dispute over meat prices as an opportunity to urge the Australian government to do something concrete to lift them out of the near-pioneering era.

In the past a number of Royal Commissions have been held into ways and means of developing the neglected land but each report has been shelved through apparent lack of interest in the area.

Today after almost a century of occupation there are only 500 miles of railroad in the Northern Territory and only one road worth describing as such — the North-South highway constructed by Australian and United States army engineers during the war.

The present development scheme, which now appears certain of being adopted, will start with the establishment of thoroughfares to all the cattle districts quickly. Already many of these have been built by operations around the Alice Springs district.

The cost of transport by this method is high but it is offset by the saving in condition and time. The same system in Air Transport which has been tried successfully in West Australia.

Vancouver Analyst Noted Crime Solver

Vancouver — (CP) — Inspector F. V. C. B. Vance, Vancouver's "Sherlock Holmes," has retired after 42 years as city analyst during which he solved many crimes though not officially connected with the police department.

The white-haired, dynamic man looks more like a successful businessman or counsel for the defence and has assisted authorities in almost every part of the province.

He developed a technique for photographing odors with the aid of the spectroscope. No two individuals have exactly the same odor. Perfection of this device so that its findings will be accepted in court on the same basis as fingerprints is one of his retirement projects.

"The most satisfactory phase of our work," he said in an interview, "has often been to establish beyond all doubt the absolute innocence of men who might otherwise have been convicted on the strength of overwhelming circumstantial evidence."

Mr. Vance remains silent about seven mercy killings of which he has made in 1935, saying "it is best forgotten now." The culprits were never found.

*Produced since a NEW, Use a 9-inch pie pan and only standard level measurements. Sift 1 cup sifted all-purpose flour and ½ tsp. salt in a bowl. Cut ½ cup Swift'ning into flour with pastry blender or 2 knives until mixture is like coarse meal and peas. Sprinkle cold water, a little at a time, over different parts of flour mixture, tossing lightly with a fork, just enough to moisten all particles—just enough to make dough hold together (1 tbsp. or less!) Place dough on waxed paper. Press gently with the paper into a ball. Let stand at room temperature for a few minutes.

Cover board with pastry canvas and rolling pin with stocking cover. Lightly flour. Roll dough in circle, ⅛" thick. Use light strokes, work from center out. Lift rolling pin as it nears edge. Invert pie pan on dough, cut dough 1½" beyond edge of pan. Fold dough in half, lay fold in center of pan; unfold. Fit pastry in pan, pressing with finger-tips so that no air bubbles remain under pastry. Trim in several places. To form standing rim, double under the pastry extending over edge of pan. Flute with fingers. Cut 10 leaves from remaining crist. Bake until light brown, allowing 12 to 15 minutes for pie, about 5 minutes for leaves.

LEMON FILLING

Soak 2 tsps. unflavoured gelatin in ½ cup cold water about 5 min. Put 3 slightly beaten egg yolks, ¾ cup sugar, ¼ cup lemon juice, ¼ tsp. salt in a double boiler. Cook over boiling water until slightly thickened, stirring constantly. Add gelatin, stir until dissolved. Add 1 tbsp. grated lemon rind, remove from heat, chill until beginning to set. Beat 3 egg whites until fairly stiff; gradually add ½ cup sugar, beating constantly. Fold into cooled mixture. Pour into cooled pie shell; chill till set. Trim with 'peated strawberries, or other fruit, and the pastry leaves sprinkled with green-colored sugar.

Digestible—nutritious too!

LINDSAY LAWYER

Chebe Made Unanimous

As the results were announced delegates swarmed over the platform and surrounded the smiling victor. Mr. Blackwell made his way through the throng to the microphone and asked the convention to make the choice unanimous. His motion, seconded by Mr. Roberts.

As the grey-haired Mr. Frost pushed his way to the microphone the delegates who had sat in the packed hall under the blazing sunwarmed lights for more than two hours burst into "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

Mr. Frost, who left his Lindsay law practice 22 years ago to take his seat in the legislature, waved to the crowd and apologized for his "bewilderment" at the lights and the emotion of the moment.

Accepts Trust

He told the still-cheering crowd: "In all humility I accept the great trust you have placed in me."

As he continued to speak, three pipers marched into the hall followed by delegates carrying huge banners lettered: "Congratulations Premier Frost."

"We will face the country as a united party," Mr. Frost said. "The friendly rivalry is over.

"Your leader is here to lead you but after all you are the soldiers and the people who do the work. I know I can count on all of you being united when we go leader at this very great party."

Collection and counting of the ballots took precisely one hour. Delegates meanwhile fanned themselves in the sweltering heat, occasionally into song, or listened to a five-piece orchestra in a corner of the hall.

Open Only to Delegates

The hall was open only to delegates, who filled all the seats and lined the walls. Other spectators crowded around the doors craning to see.

The afternoon's tumult scene climaxed three days of spirited campaign by all four candidates.

Mr. Frost's made regular trips around the convention floor led by a delegate literally covered in "Frost-for-leader" buttons. Mr. Roberts supporters were armed with noisemakers and showered delegates with balloons. Visitors to Mr. Porter's suite were entertained by a girl accordionist. Mr. Blackwell sent pails shaking hands and chatting with delegates who milled about his booth on the convention floor.

Led by the pipers and surrounded by workers, he left the hall and returned to his host suite to read congratulatory telegrams.

The first was from the Board of Trade of his native Orillia. He and his brother Cecil Gray Frost began a law practice in Lindsay after the First World War in which they both served with the Simcoe Foresters. Leslie was severely wounded in 1918. The partnership continued until his brother's death in 1947.

Married Sisters

The brothers went to school together, went to war together, worked together and married sisters. They saw eye-to-eye on politics and Cecil was President of the Ontario Progressive Conservative Association from 1938 to 1943.

Leslie Miscampbell Frost's godfather, Andrew Miscampbell, represented Simcoe East in the Ontario legislature for years. His father, William S. Frost was mayor of Lindsay. His wife, Gertrude Jane Carew, is the daughter of John Carew former Conservative member of the legislature for Victoria.

Mr. Frost won his father-in-law's seat in 1937 and for seven years was financial critic for the Conservative opposition. With the Conservative victory of 1943 he became provincial treasurer and minister of mines. He was re-elected in Victoria in 1943, 1945 and 1948.

Earlier, Mr. St. Laurent announced the government intends to continue paying freight assistance on feed grains shipped from western to eastern Canada. The assistance was due to expire July 1.

Alberta Opposed

Back in the Commons, the pipelines bill found its main opposition among Alberta members, led by Mr. Low, who expressed fear that it would endanger that province's oil conservation laws.

Transport Minister Chevrier, sponsoring the legislation, gave assurance that there would be no interference with provincial rights.

The bill comes up for third and final reading today. It already has passed the Senate.

In the brief pensions debate, Health Minister Martin reported that the $10-a-month increase will go to 90 per cent of the country's old-age pensioners.

"It is the easiest thing to get men on the street," he said. "But the big problem is to get them back to work again. In my judgment, the hallmark of trade union leadership and employer leadership is to see that you negotiate agreements without lockouts or strikes... the most powerful and respected unions have negotiated their agreements in that manner."

Labor Minister No Decoy Duck For Communists

Ottawa, April 28 (CP)— Labor Minister Mitchell told the Commons Wednesday he was "not going to be a decoy duck" for the Communist party in connection with the east coast shipping strike.

Terming the ship tie up the result of a jurisdictional dispute between unions Mr. Mitchell said that since it started he had received many telegrams "such as one receives only from the Communist party—the language is obvious."

(The Canadian Seamen's Union (T. L. C.) which called the strike, is alleged to be dominated by Communists.)

"I am not going to be a decoy duck for the Communist party," Mr. Mitchell added, declaring that by this he meant no reflection on Claire Gillis (CCF-Cape Breton South), who had asked the question that prompted his statement.

Mr. Gillis had asked if the Labor Department had any plans for "restoring order in the shipping industry."

The minister did not disclose any plans; he had said last week the department would take any steps within its jurisdiction to bring the disputing unions together. The second union is the Seafarers' International Union of (A.F. of L.).

He was critical indirectly Wednesday of the action of the C.S.U. in calling a strike, declaring it had broken down the unanimous recommendations of a conciliation board when the employers took the department's advice to accept it.

"It is the easiest thing to get men on the street," he said. "But the big problem is to get them back to work again. In my judgment, the hallmark of trade union leadership and employer leadership is to see that you negotiate agreements without lockouts or strikes... the most powerful and respected unions have negotiated their agreements in that manner."

WE'LL MEET, AGAIN

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

Standing here in the lovely dress, Gay shook a little from the exhaustion of that horrible day she spoken like that to Alan? But Alan had never really existed. She had loved a poor imitation of the god her young dreams had created. For a moment she was happy because she was free, and then her face was solemn for the girl who had looked into the depths before she knew the meaning of love. "When love dies," she thought, "it leaves you trembling. When you've loved unwisely, it leaves you ashamed. Nothing is as bitter as unworthiness."

But the music from below brought her back to the sharp realization that, like an actor in a play, she had to go on with tonight. Love dies quickly and painfully and leaves you trembling, but you had to walk through the ruins of it, keeping your head high, and not even glancing down at the flowers, broken fragments of what had been so much a part of you. Love dies. Here lies love.

Her thoughts still confused, were interrupted when Nita, dressed as a bridesmaid, entered in.

"I wanted to see how you look," Nita said, She sat on the arm of a chair and looked at Gay with bright malicious eyes. "This is a good break for you. You won't have to take Marchand's salary and be glad to get it. With your looks and background you can find—and wreck—plenty."

Was this an overture at friendship, Gay wondered.

"I never thought of free-lancing," said Gay.

"Girls like me don't get a break often." Nita went on seven. "We wait around for one big opportunity to cash in on. There are a lot of rich men in the ballroom downstairs but they won't notice me with all the other girls dressed like mad. They're not going to see anybody but you!"

"It's not a pleasure for me, Nita. I hate it."

"I've waited years for an opportunity like this," she repeated.

Gay turned her back. Suddenly, like a flash, like some one either drunk or mad, Nita sprang at her. Gay turned but it was too late. She was too paralyzed to cry out as she felt the weighted gown being torn from her back in shreds.

Gay gave a painful cry.

Nita at bay cried, "This was to be my show! It was promised to me! Go ahead. Call them in and tell them what I've done. But you won't wear that dress tonight!"

Gay closed her eyes, feeling ill She did not faint but the room was spinning as she caught a glimpse of her horrified face in the mirror. Half stumbling, she leaned against the dressing table, feeling the gown in shreds against her back. When she recovered a little from shock and faintness, Nita was gone.

Julie came in. Seeing Gay, she cried out and the next moment Maxine, followed by the other models, came in. They grouped together, frightened.

"What did she do to you?" Maxine cried. "The gown is ruined!"

Julie added, "Mademoiselle, she is trembling, she as hurt!"

Gay said, "I'm all right." If only they would not see me so! One girl began to cry.

"What are we going to do?" Maxine asked. "Nita is mad! Mad! Do you hear the music? They're playing for you! It's time to go down."

She went out and Mrs. Brent, followed by her husband, came in. Marchand's small eyes were live coals. His face was very red.

"Look," Maxine cried, pointing to the wedding gown, "there won't be a bridal party tonight!"

Mrs. Brent stiffened. "Indeed! There are thousands of people downstairs. They are my guests." She turned indignantly to Marchand. "Sir!"

"This is the most disgraceful spectacle I've ever witnessed. If the bridal party does not appear in my ballroom tonight, your exclusive shop will never open its doors again. I can arrange for a half hour of dancing and then I expect my plans to be carried out." She looked contemptuously at Gay. "A brawl, a common brawl in my house!"

When she left, Maxine said, "Now what? What can we do?"

Marchand looked at her. "What have you to say, Miss Van Avery? Have you any suggestions"? he asked sarcastically.

"There is a code among show people," Marchand said, sternly. "The show has to go on. I gave you an opportunity tonight . . ."

"You didn't give me an opportunity," Gay said. "You enticed me, not because of the way I look or because you wanted to be kind, but because you knew that everyone downstairs knows me. I'm bound to attract attention!"

"That's business. Good business isn't what bugs kind."

"I'm not going to let you down. You told me once that a model isn't supposed to feel anything! I'm going on with the show." She looked at Julie. "Will you find Miss Baring and send her to me?"

"What do you want with her?" Maxine asked.

"To ask a favor."

Lucia's eyes were curious when she came in. Obviously something was wrong and she wanted no unpleasantness on this night of all nights.

"Hello, darling," she said to Gay. But her eyes were a little fearful.

"I want to ask a tremendous favor of you.'

Lucia, seeing the torn wedding gown, cried, "Why, what happened?"

"Plenty," said Maxine sharply.

"You can refuse," said Gay, "and I couldn't blame you. No girl wants another girl to wear her wedding gown. And no girl wants to wear another's wedding gown!" She lowered her head and looked up. "Will you let me wear yours tonight?"

"I never heard of such a thing" said Lucia.

"I'm not going to beg you."

It was not for Gay's sake that Lucia felt herself softening. People would say when they knew, "How sweet of Lucia to let Gay wear her wedding gown! And Alan was engaged first to Gay, you know.'

"I'll send for it at once," she said, walking toward the door. "How perfectly disgusting to be involved in anything so common the night before the wedding."

Marchand said to Gay, "You understand that after tonight I can't tolerate a girl in the shop who causes such antagonism. No hard feelings, but . . ."

"You're letting me out?" Gay asked.

"For the sake of my reputation I've got to."

Gregg Randolph was one of thousands who saw the wedding party assemble on the dais. But he could see only one person, Gay, white and gleaming, with her curls bright and light against her head. He looked intently at her but her face was a white mask and, as always when he looked, had hurt her, her lashes hid her eyes.

There was a proud solemnity about her tonight as if she were giving to this show a feeling of reverence. Gregg felt it. He knew that others felt it. If they had wanted to ridicule and criticize, they could not, some how. If they had come to scoff and belittle, they remained to look at her in praise and admiration.

Alan saw her, and with the soft music ringing in his ears, he thought, "Seeing you tonight, Gay, will make me always remember what I lost. You're so lovely. I couldn't have made you happy. Sooner or later you would have found me out. Marrying Lucia and her money is the best way out for me but I'll never be capable of loving anyone, I love you."

Although the sea of faces were distorted, Gay felt each chord of the music penetrate her. Each slow rythmic step was a terrific effort. Tears burned in her eyes.

She wanted to shout at them, to look at her — to look at her! Tonight the little girls and self-respect she had kept had been swept away! A beautiful gown had torn her dress from her — love for Alan had died surely and painfully. Marchand was letting her go and on the eve of Lucia's wedding she was wearing Lucia's wedding gown. That last seemed the final insult and humiliation.

Diana was safe. How sweet to be safe! She was safe and Gordon loved her.

But the thought of those unpaid bills that had been a weight on her for weeks cafe to her now. How would she pay them without a job? Urgent letters concerning them had come recently. There was ugly threats. "If the matter isn't attended to promptly, we regret that our lawyer Gay . . ."

The music died away. The show had gone on.

Alone in the bedroom, she took off Lucia's dress carefully and lifted the veil from her hair. Her head throbbed.

When she was dressed in the old green suit, Maxine came in.

"Gay, you were wonderful. I couldn't have gone through a thing like that. There was nothing to indicate the wretched scene you'd been through. I don't know how Nita feels, but the other girls think you're a fine trouper." She held out her hand. "Good luck. I think you can come through most anything with flying colors."

Gay left by the back stairs, still hearing the music. She paused a moment, listening, thinking.

"They're safe and happy. I've never been so alone. The one person I need tonight isn't here. Chris . . ."

It was raining, a cold spring rain. Crowds outside the theatre had thinned. Traffic moved slowly on the wet streets.

Gay walked in the rain, seemed to cool her burning face. "I haven't any money," she thought. "I haven't a job. I'm at the end of the road now. I've come to an end, stop."

Walking up the dark steps, she shivered from the dampness of her clothes and the dampness of the quiet house. In the hall she stopped still.

Gregg was waiting beside the studio door.

Seeing him, knowing he loved her, knowing that tonight there had been no one who cared for her or wanted to help, she went toward him. Gay, tired, discouraged, hurt went into his arms, and sobbed against his shoulder. She wasn't a trouper! She was a frightened, bewildered girl who had come to an abrupt stop and who had run into waiting arms.

"Gregg . . ."

Tears mixed with the rain on her face.

"Gay, even if you can't love me a little, let me really want it. I'm this wretched life. Let my love for you be all the love we need. Dear, I know about tonight. I heard. I couldn't let you come back here alone." He put her head close to him. "Tell me you will marry me, Gay."

Chris . . . But there was a girl in Nassau named Evelyn Ewing. And Maxine was so far away.

"Tell me you'll marry me, Gay, and you'll never have to go into the studio again. I'll take you to Mother. Doesn't it mean anything to you never to be alone . . ."

Never to be alone . . .

She lifted her head and looked at him.

"Take me to Millicent, Gregg. Yes, I'll marry you and I'll try to make you happy for doing so much for me . . ."

"You're going to be married," said Penny.

Across the shabby apartment she looked at Gay who was wearing new clothes and a broad-brimmed straw hat. She looked brought home from the shops and other bright smocks, as if she were one of Penny's own fashion sketches come to life.

"Gay and that night . . . the ghastly experience of that night."

"And Gregg was there."

"His being there is the reason I'm going to marry him," Gay said simply, frankly. "I pitied myself that night, Penny. I'd come to the end of the road. It's very well for women to say that we are equal and independent, but when the world has you under its heel, a woman wants protection and safety, particularly a woman of my type who's been sheltered all her life." She looked down at her nails, recently retipped and perfect again. "He took me to his mother that night. Millicent took one look at me as if I'd been a stray, wet, sick kitten from the street. I'm so grateful."

Penny's serious brows puckered.

"But is gratitude love?"

Gay's eyes stened a deeper blue.

"It's more, more love, Penny. Not heights. You see, I climbed to false heights with Alan. The night I told Gregg I'd marry him, love was an acid taste in my mouth. I didn't want a love that hurt. I wanted kindness."

"And Chris?"

Gay wished that Penny would not ask about Chris. To think of him with Gregg's beautiful diamond on her finger gave her a feeling of guilt, knowing that on the night that even hope had gone it was Chris she wanted. Yes, it was Chris she wanted, standing under the dim hall light; Chris' arms she had wanted to take her in like a loving mother. Instead it had been Gregg who had said, "Doesn't it mean anything to you never to be alone again"? On one of the loneliest nights of her life.

Smiling her sweet wistful smile, Penny said, "I only want you to be happy. Though we haven't any money, I've a hunch you're not marrying for money. I want everybody else to climb to those dizzy heights with me. If Gay and you were meant for all the lovely things. I was meant to have some sun as I love Mac and not want anything beyond that. Nothing can make me unhappy, no matter how poor we are, so long as I have him."

Gay smiled. "I feel it when I come here, Penny. Those bills of Mother's are paid. Millicent paid them. I'm living with her now. She's taken the penthouse of the apartment and Gregg has the apartment two flights below."

"Are you so in the clouds you haven't set your wedding date?" Penny said sadly, "I'm not in the clouds. You—you don't get in the clouds with Gregg."

When Mac came in, he gave Gay a friendly "Hello," kissed Penny and sat down in front of the short hair.

"You know," said Penny with a wisdom that often surprised her husband, "Gregg Randolph has offered Gay the world. He's offered everything except what a woman really wants. He can't give her the love she wants. I hate to think of her as one of those rich beautiful women going through life missing . . . heights."

Mac grinned and took Penny on his lap. "Is that why you married me, baby? I may not be able to give you a square meal but . . ."

Penny smiled and kissed him. "I don't want yachts and things, darling. Love can't breathe where there is so much to smother it. Gay may be very rich but when she comes to see us, she'll go away sad, knowing that no amount of money can buy what we have."

END OF BERLIN BLOCKADE?

Key figure in the report that the Soviet military government has decided to lift the Berlin blockade is Gen. Marcel Gay (left) with Lieut.-Gen. Injuries to Key Men in Majors Overshadow Results of Games Played in Loop on Wednesday

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Injuries to Stan Rojek, Bob Elliott and Lou Boudreau, all key men in the major-league races, overshadow the games on today's baseball news.

Rojek's injury may be the most important. If the Pittsburgh shortstop, the "hustle guy" of Bill Meyer's infield, is lost for any appreciable time, the Pirates' pennant hopes may go a-glimmering.

A pitched ball by Ken Johnson, fifth St. Louis pitcher, struck Rojek near the left eye in the ninth inning Wednesday night at Sportsman's Park. He walked a short distance and collapsed.

Early reports from the hospital indicated that no fracture was found.

The incident took most of the sting out of the Pirates' 7-1 victory over the Cardinals. Murry Dickson, the ex-Cardinal who was purchased for $125,000 last winter, faced his old mates for the first time and handcuffed them with seven hits.

The victory put the Bucs on a first-place tie with New York Giants for the lead in the National League.

In Philadelphia the Boston Braves' third-baseman, Bob Elliott, was carried from the field on a stretcher. The big power man on the Boston attack was felled by a line drive off the bat of Puddin' Head Jones, Philadelphia Phillies' second sacker rookie. Later it developed that Elliott's injury was considered severe.

Despite Elliott's accident, the Braves shut out the Phils 2-0 on a fine three-hit effort by Warren Spahn.

Forced to Leave

Boudreau was forced to leave the Cleveland - Chicago afternoon game when hit on the left elbow by pitcher Orval Grove. The Cleveland captain-manager said later he expected to play at Detroit tomorrow.

Cleveland went on a batting spree to whip the White Sox 11-5 with Mickey Vernon and Ken Keltner hitting home runs.

Boudreau's unexpected switch was rudely interrupted at Washington when the Senators came from behind to break a 4 - 4 game losing streak, 4-3 in 10 innings. The Nats scored three in the 9th after Allie Reynolds pitched shutout ball for 8 2/3 innings. In the other game Washington salvaged the loss of fireman Joe Page.

Another seven - game losing streak was broken when St. Louis' Browns shaded Detroit Tigers 4-3 in 12 innings with Karl Drews outpitching Hal Newhouser.

Big Batting Day

Vern (Junior) Stephens had a big batting day for Boston Red Sox in a 10-8 romp over Philadelphia A's. Stephens hit two homers and drove in seven runs. It was the second time he has done the same trick this season.

Afternoon action in the National League was featured by New York Giants' 11-8 victory over Brooklyn in a wild contest at the Polo Grounds. Rookie Pete Milne's homer with the bases loaded helped the Giants come from behind after blowing a 6-0 lead.

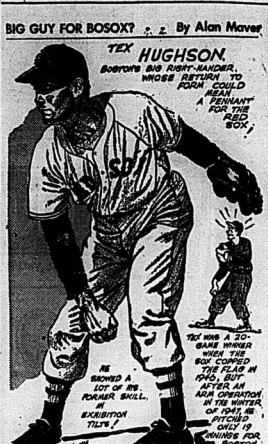
Derry Starting Ball Season In Grand Style

(By the Associated Press)

Russ Derry is starting the International League season as though he wants another shot at the big leagues.



With five home runs in the first six games, Rochester Red Wings' right-fielder is public enemy No. 1 of the league's pitching fraternity.

Derry, an ex-Yankee, hammered two homers and a single Wednesday as the Wings thumped Newark 12-5.

Jersey City clung to the league lead by drubbing Toronto 15-3 in a free hitting contest. Leo Lou Schmitz, who had four hits, like Little Giants banged three Toronto pitchers for16 hits.

Montreal scored seven runs in the first inning but just barely nosed out Syracuse 10-9 on a ninth inning homer by Dee Fondy. Bob Morgan, Al Glonfriddo and Johnny Van Bankhead homered for the Brooklyn Montreals.

Bingo Binks hit a two run homer with two out in the last of the ninth to give Baltimore a 7-6 edge over Buffalo and their fourth straight victory.

Montreal Royals Outweighed by 10 Pounds a Man

Winnipeg, April 28 — (CP) — Everybody knows that a good big man is supposed to be able to lick a good little man — but can a good big man beat a good bigger man?

Montreal Royals will be out to prove it's possible when they set themselves opposite Brandon Wheat Kings tonight in the opening game of the best-of-seven series for the Canadian junior hockey title and the Memorial Cup. The easterners are definite underdogs.

The Wheat Kings stack up as one of the biggest junior teams ever to compete in the national final. Average weight for 14 members of the team is an almost unbelievable 177 pounds. They're dwarfed every outfit they have played this season.

Not that Royals are pygmies. Far from it. They tip the scales at a respectable 167 pounds and they have such hefty sockers as defenceman Tommy Manastersky, a solid 188 pounds.

All season long, however, pro scouts and coaches watching Brandon in action for the first time have been struck forcibly by the size of the team as a whole. The club's four defencemen are Joe Crozier, 180 pounds, Bill Addison, 175; Johnny McLean, 205; Bob Chrystal, 183.

That's big enough for opposition forwards to worry about. But to make matters worse, the Wheat Kings themselves have front-line men like Frank King, at 187 lbs., Alf Francis at 10, and Jack McKenzie at 190. What's really disconcerting is that not a single one of them is slow afoot.

Coach Tag Millar breezed his Royals through a workout Wednesday a few hours after arrival from the east. Not many ruffled birds who watched the easterners drill thought Royals would give Brandon much trouble—but that may have been because virtually all of the onlookers were from these parts.

It was common to hear the watchers shake their heads and say: "Brandon . . . four straight."

The series moves to Brandon for the second game Saturday and the third Tuesday and will return to Winnipeg for the fourth game Thursday. Any additional contests will go to Brandon.

23 Players Of Both Teams Come From West

Ottawa, April 28 (CP)— The Allan Cup may be emblematic of country wide senior hockey supremacy but no team who wins this year, it will still be a victory for the West.

That's because, of the 30 players on Ottawa Senators and Regina Capitals, no less than 23 originally came from west of the Great Lakes.

It's not going to make any difference to the hotly-partisan Ottawa fans, however, and more than 8,000 of them are expected to jam the auditorium here tonight for the opening game of the best-of-seven series.

Every member of the Caps is from one of the three prairie provinces. Three are from Alberta including Emery Schriner, Ab McDougall and Bill Van Dellan, one—Toby Brown, speed artist from Brandon—is a native of Manitoba, and the rest are from Saskatchewan.

On the Senators, Winnipeg has a monopoly with seven players coming from the Bluesky city while Stu Smith of Kenora, Ont., makes it eight from Manitoba.

Similarities between the two teams don't end with hometowns, however. For one thing veterans dominate the lineups, and a lot of players won't disclose their exact ages, the average would be out to about 27 years per player for each squad.

Use Three Lines

Coach George (Buck) Buchar, of Ottawa will use three forward lines headed by the tricky trio of Jim Hamilton, Ed Martell and Bill Robinson. The high-scoring line led the scoring race in the Quebec Senior Hockey League this season.

Regina also will have three well balanced lines with starry Mel Hill and veteran Swerchek Schriner, both former N.H.L. players, and Ivy Chuck McCullough on one unit.

Bill (Legs) Fraser, lanky Ontario native who has been a playing great hockey throughout the playoffs for the Senators, will be facing a comparative stranger in the 21-year-old Bev Bentley. The nephew of Max and Doug Bentley led the Western Canada Senior Hockey League in shutouts this season with six and was voted MVP in the loop.

The Allan Cup, won last year by Edmonton Flyers against the Montreal Royal Canadians, has been held by a Regina team since 1935 while the city has had a winner in both 1942 and 1943.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

Washington, April 28 — (AP)— The sign in the window read "166 days until opening game" but the warning heeded as much by Washington's numbers players as by football fans . . . Behind it was the kind of activity you'd expect the flamboyant George Preston Marshall to occupy and back in a corner was general manager Dick McCann of the pro grid club wearing a puzzled look . . . he was studying a telegram from Notre Dame, Ind., which merely said: "Hello" and was signed by Rear Admiral John F. Whelchel, Washington, Redskins' new coach . . . "I told him to let me know when he got there, and he did," Dick explained. "But I can see where we're going to have a heck of a time on the public-speaking circuit with him and Sammy Baugh . . . Baugh went to Abilene once where they told him he wouldn't have to make a speech, just ring bells in the folks, and that's exactly what he did—just one word' . . . McCann prudently refrained from adding that nobody on the Redskins can get in much more than one word when the boss, a free - wheeling orator named Marshall, is on the premises.

Give the Guy a Hand

As a parting gesture, McCann uncovered a model of Sammy Baugh's passing hand and remarked: "This still is the hand that feeds us — a remarkable guy. You know he's 35 years old and probably will be playing football five more years . . . and when he comes to training camp he actually gains weight when everybody else is losing. He works so hard on that ranch in Texas all summer that it keeps him thin."

Brighteners

Bournemouth, England — (AP) — Georgs Godaeli did a strip tease yesterday in the British hard courts tennis championship — by order.

An official of the Lawn Tennis Association long distance umpire through a match with L. G. Allbut, to remove his long-blue trousers. The official objected to the color.

Godaeli obliged and continued in white shorts.

There is no rule requiring white but the official said it was a matter of good taste, old boy.

Godaeli was indignant over the whole affair, said Godaeli who gave up the match in the third set to save himself for doubles.

N.H.L. Anxious To Remedy The Situation

(By The Canadian Press)

The Canadian Educational Association said Wednesday at Toronto that high school students who leave school to play hockey tend to become "hockey bums."

But the National Hockey League is "anxious to remedy the situation," a C.E.A. report said.

"It appears the hockey situation as it applies to secondary school students is largely serious in Ontario and to some extent in Montreal." Commenting on the report, President Conn Smythe of Toronto Maple Leafs said: "Eliminate the facts are false or it doesn't know what it is talking about."

At Fort Frances, Ont., Gordon Fraser, coach of Fort Frances Canadians Senior club, said Wednesday night Al Pickard of Regina had suggested the club represent Canada in Europe this fall. Pickard is president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association. Fraser said he had approved of the proposal provided Pickard would agree to send the Canadian entrant through Regina Capitals — to Europe early enough in the fall to enable them to return here for the opening of Canada's local hockey season and the new Memorial Arena.

William (Flash) Hollett, longtime National Hockey League Stalwart, has ended his career as an active hockey player. The announcement was made Wednesday night at Toronto by Harold Ballard, president of the Toronto Marlboros senior club, for whom Hollett had played this season.

At Windsor, Assumption College Purple Raiders Wednesday night swept into the Canadian senior basketball final by defeating Montreal Y.M.H.A. Blues, 67-45, to take the Eastern Canada title in two straight games. The College team now meets defending champions Edmonton Commercial Grads in the first contest of the best-of-five games series at Vancouver starting May 2.

At Winnipeg, Ken Yost, honorary secretary of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, Wednesday night announced the 1949 national boxing champions and British Empire Games trials have been awarded to the union's Thunder Bay branch. The events — combined rather than being held separately as formerly — will be held in Port Arthur, probably during the first week of October, Yost said.

Jake LaMotta, whose iron chin has shown signs of rust lately, appears to hold the inside track as the next opponent for the middleweight boxing champion, Marcel Cerdan, at the end of the tournament of Champions, which was left holding an empty bag last week when Tony Zale retired Tuesday. Middleweight champion of the American representation of the Frenchman in the hopes of coming up with a match to replace the cancelled Zale-Cerdan affair.

Newmarket, England, April 27 (CP)—Mrs. A. Glendiere's Nimbus, ridden by Charles Elliott, today won the two thousand guineas stakes, classic of the British flat-racing season.

Nimbus, a 10-to-1 outsider, won in a photo finish.

Abernant, the 8-to-4 favorite, was second by a short head.

Nimbus and Abernant ran away from the field in their great stretch duel for the rich first prize of £13,506 15s ($34,027). The guineas is run over a mile course.

Elliott barely booted Nimbus to the front to nip Abernant, ridden by Britain's champion jockey, Gordon Richards.

Billy Cook, champion Australian jockey riding here this season for the first time, was aboard Barnes Park. Amour Drake, one of two French challengers, was fourth.

Sudden Death Game to Decide Int. 'A' Winner

Toronto, April 28 (CP)—The last game in the Ontario Hockey Association season will be played here tonight when Gananoque Lumbermice and Port Colborne Sailors meet in a sudden-death game to decide the O.H.A. Intermediate championship.

The winner will meet Royal Flushes in the Eastern Canada Intermediate final.

Tonight's game is the result of an O.H.A. official order reversing a Port Colborne victory in the best-of-five Intermediate O.H.A. finals. The Sailors had used Don Gallinger, suspended Boston Bruins player, as coach and without Gananoque's protest would have taken the series three games to one.

A special trainload of Gananoque supporters will arrive in Toronto today for the game and several bus loads of Port Colborne rooters are also expected for the sudden-death bout.

Sport Shorts From Britain

London — (CP) — There's a gadget afoot that proves whether a walker really is walking.

Harold Whitlock, last Briton to win an Olympic athletics title — he was the 50-kilometre road-walking champion in 1936 — is the inventor. He designed, and tried with success, a pair of "electric shoes" which indicate when a walker breaks the rules.

To an ordinary pair of shoes Whitlock fitted electric contacts housed in rubber. These are connected by wires to a lamp and battery carried on a belt round the walker's back. When any one of the contacts is depressed the light shows.

But if both feet come off the ground — together — technically known as "lifting" — the light goes out. "Lifting" is considered running.

Whitlock says the wires do not interfere with normal movement. Main purpose of the apparatus is for demonstration and to help judges who disagree whether a particular walker's style is faulty. Now they will be able to demonstrate the fault which looks wrong may be mechanically perfect.

It also will be useful to youngsters just taking up the sport, and especially Whitlock, who spends much time lecturing on walking.

Despite its usefulness to judges, walking purists do not expect every competitor in the next London-Brighton race to be equipped with a rear light.

Bookmakers operating in Tattersall's enclosure at the Lincoln Spring Meeting will be endorsing in pens. The object is to give freedom of movement to thousands of visitors on big-race days.

There will be 86 pens, about eight feet long, each holding two bookmakers and their clerks. Bookmakers at previous meetings had gradually erected their pitches towards the foot of the stands until it became impossible for visitors to pass along.

The new system will not apply to bookmakers operating "on the rails."

Kitchener, Ont., April 28 (CP) —Rumors that scramble for a junior A hockey franchise had started between two local groups got some verification Wednesday night at an executive meeting of the Kitchener Sports Association.

Appearing before the executive which holds a Junior A franchise for Kitchener, Lloyd Gross and Gordon Jamieson asked for franchise rights to operate a Kitchener-Waterloo team in the Ontario Hockey Association series when the new Kitchener Memorial auditorium is opened.

Regina, April 27 (CP)— At the end of a long hockey pull, Regina Capitals meet Oshawa Senators tomorrow night in the first game of the Allan Cup final.

Leading up to the senior championship series the star-studded Cups had differed entirely except for one team—Fort Frances Canadians. The practically unknown Canadians extended them to full five games.

Scotty (Regina Leader-Post) Melville, although he's pretty high on his hometown Caps, suggests the Fort Frances team is the logical one to send to Europe next year.

"We offer the suggestion that Fort Frances Canadians be sent to Europe next year in order to save the world for democracy and to save Canada's face so far as hockey is concerned," says Scotty, who also doubles as secretary of the Saskatchewan amateur hockey association.

"In the first place, they're a whale of a hockey team, playing the game much closer to the European conception than the clubs from the high-powered leagues.

"In the second place, the Can-

FETES STRENGTHENED

Peterborough, Ont., April 28 — (CP)—At least six star newcomers will bolster Peterborough's Ontario Lacrosse Association senior B champions when they step up to the Senior A division this season. Jack Foote of Toronto, leading scorer with the Petes last year, will be back, along with several Orillia players.

In addition coach Red Creighton has Hack Howes, young star forward with Detroit in 1948 and Jim McNulty and Leo Teatro of St. Catharines Juniors. Eastern Canada champions last fall, officials said.

Eighty-six vessels were eastbound with grain, ore and coal as principal cargoes. The westbound total was 60 with cargoes consisting of oil, gasoline and paper.

Canadians Are Good Will Coach

"As a good-will ambassador, Gordon Fraser, coach of the Forts is second to none. His loves hockey, has the fine old idea it's family entertainment and that it should be played at top form, win or lose, all the time."

Melville says the "Cinderella" team could swing the trip easier than any composite group such as went for the Stockholm tourney. Last year's team, Sudbury Wolves not only failed to win the championship but was involved in several "international incidents."

Fort Frances is fairly isolated and the team could drop from competition in its home league (with Minnesota Clubs) for a six week tour during January and part of February without jeopardizing its chances in the Dominion playoffs."

As a postscript, Scotty figures he will let the Canadian amateur hockey association pick up his "copyrighted" idea if he accompanies the team as president Al Pickard's representative.

An army lieutenant who was taken prisoner at Dieppe in the Second World War, Melville said he didn't see much of Europe last time, "riding in a nailed up box-

All Yours
TO WORRY ABOUT
Unless you shift the burden

When a relative or friend names you in his Will as executor of his estate, the time will come, (if you survive him), when everything that is his, — business, investments, debts and family problems — will be all yours — to worry about.

If you are a busy man or are not experienced in estate administration, you would find that arranging for Probate, valuing Assets, establishing Debts, paying Succession Duties, dealing with Investments, settling up Trusts, making Distributions, and other tiring generosity to the many details of Administration, would be more than you could handle, with justice to either the estate, the heirs, or your own affairs.

Should this happen to you, the thing to do is appoint The Royal Trust Company your Agent, to administer the estate, which would relieve you of all but superficial functions as executor.

Conversely, and in consideration for the friend you might yourself appoint, be sure to name The Royal Trust Company in your own Will as executor and trustee of your estate, to act alone, or with a relative or friend as co-executor or advisor.

It often pays in many ways to have the job well done.

Louis' Career As Promoter Has Fine Opening

Detroit, April 28 (AP)— Joe Louis' career as a fight promoter began auspiciously here Wednesday night with Jack Dempsey, another former heavyweight champion, and featherweight champion Willie Pep in supporting roles.

A crowd of 10,062 fans saw the second of the International Boxing Club with Louis as promoter and match-maker for a hand-picked card which grossed $31,490.80.

Every bout was a hulu. Two ended in knockouts and two others were as bruising and thrilling a pair of fights as ever seen in Detroit.

Even a four-round exhibition between champion Pep and Elis Ask, featherweight titlist of Finland, turned out to be a rough scrap, thought fought with 12-ounce gloves.

Dempsey refereed one of the bouts.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The newlyweds from Bride and Groom radio program recently turned out to be a smart pair of cookies. They promptly took my advice about husband and wife not playing bridge as partners.

We met for an exhibition match at the Desert Hotel in Couer d'Alene. The bride partnered with me. The groom paired with Ray Flaherty, famous coach of the Yankee football club.

In the very first deal the spectators were treated to the spectacular hands shown here:

	NORTH
	♥K 7 3 2
	♦K Q 6 2
WEST		EAST
♠8 2		♠Q 9 6 5 4
♥A 8		♥Q 5
♦J 7		♦10 9 4
♣10 9 7 6 4 3		♣K Q J 5 2
	SOUTH
	♠K 7 6 5
	♥10 9 6 4
	♦A 9 8 5 3
	♣A

The bidding went like this:

South	West	North	East
1 S	Pass	1 H	Pass
2 D	Pass	4 D	Pass
4 NT	Pass	5 S	Pass
6 D	Pass

Several of those watching the south hand opened with surprise at the pass by dealer. The hand looked strong enough for an opening bid of one diamond. And, strong enough it was.

The five tricks or more are there. So are the two more tricks. But not the four high cards for a true opening. Only three high cards are to be counted. So, it was not a true opening.

After south made the bidding, however, south has a good jump takeout to four diamonds. That promises six tricks inclusive of two sure. You will find such values there.

The raise to four diamonds by north simply is arithmetic. That is how south discovers 12 in the pair. It prompts the four no-trump ace and king prober. Five spades is Kitzinger-conventional signal for showing one ace and two kings.

West led a club and small slam made without a finesse. Sea how!

St. Catharines, April 28 (CP) — Small hydro-electric generators, with a capacity of 5,000 and 10,000 kilowatts, are being set up at strategic points in an attempt to avert hydro cutoffs next fall and winter, Robert Saunders, chairman of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, said Wednesday night. Hollywood, April 28 (AP)—Abe boogie-man Lon Chaney has turned author.

The actor has penned his own horror scripts which he plans for early production. It will be newstyle horror, he said.

"No more killing without a reason," he added. He remarked that the scare films now must have a moral.

Bits of Stuff

Bob Hope will get one of his rare vacations this summer. Right now he plans to visit the Canadian Rockies and Alaska . . .

More subversive activity from Florida. Governor Fuller Warren has sent Rosalind Russell a scroll naming her a Lieutenant-Colonel of his staff . . .

Maureen O'Hara, Irish beauty, is opening a second dress shop locally. Maureen, who is the cutest looking corporation I know, says she plans to open a new shop every year . . .

Alan Marshall has recovered from his lengthy illness and is playing in "Three Came Back". His last film was "Bride by Mistake" with Laraine Day in 1944.

Captain Bligh

"Mr. Christian, come heah!"

How many times have we been assailed by that accent and mimicking doing this imitation of Charles Laughton in "Mutiny on the Bounty"? Laughton has the name trapped.

At first it was annoying," the actor says. "It seemed I couldn't turn on a radio or visit a night club without catching a caricature of myself. Then it settled down until I began to loath Captain Bligh as much as movie audiences did."

After the first few hundred imitations, Laughton has mellowed. "Sometimes I get a kick out of it," he says. The pay-off was when Laughton was mimicked by Montmartre cafe giving an imitation of Laughton in "Ruggles of Red Gap."

The actor's ambition is to do Shylock. Many of his instincts are lasting him. "But who will book me?" he asks.

Ont. Would Like To Continue Edge Over Others

Ontario, the only province with two rinks in the Dominion Curling championships, would like to continue the two-to-one edge over the others. Mention of equal representation, original plan of the Strathcona competition, rates as "peeb" that sound very much like "pop province."

It started the other day when Senator J. W. de B. Hale dropped a trustee of the trophy, made a polite gesture by welcoming Newfoundland as the 10th province in the championship if it cared to enter. This meant a northern-southern Ontario playoff to decide the provincial one-rink entry, and that's where the squawks starts.

Sam is Mad

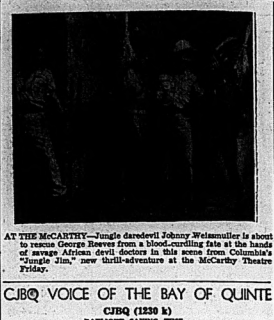
Sam Rothschild of Sudbury, the Dominion Curling Association representative for Northern Ontario, just don't figure it. He believes the 4,329 curlers in his territory and his scrap of 9,041 entitle them to two-rink representation.

Sam received support from H. J. Weyman, secretary of the Quebec Association, who suggested Newfoundland's 234 curlers might link into one district with Prince Edward Island's 250. Northern Ontario and Quebec (2,000 curlers) apparently believe quantity ranks over quality.

Here's their record in the Dominion event: Northern Ontario has competed about 15 years and is still looking for a winner and Quebec, in 1927, hasn't an entry in the one-two-three placings column.

West Has Case

A little tolerance may have been shown if the west had clamored for four-rink entries from each province. They have the quantity and quality.



Manitoba, with 12 firsts, three seconds and three thirds, has 11,854 curlers and has never complained publicly about sending two rinks to compete. Alberta, with a record of four firsts, six seconds and one third, hasn't suggested a rink from the southern section and another from the Peace River district although its membership is 14,000.

Saskatchewan, with two seconds and four thirds, has a curling fraternity of between 18,000 and 20,000. Even British Columbia, with less than 2,000 curlers, has a record of one first, three seconds and two thirds.

So, where's the squawk, Sam? Rothschild had more to say but he must be bluffing. He said the D.C.A. has given "serious thought to the idea of organizing its own championships apart from the Macdonald's brier".

Say you're kidding, Sam, because this tournament can't be operated on the D.C.A.'s bankroll of less than $1,000. It's a $20,000-$25,000 proposition.

There are a few indignant Torontonians because Leafs didn't place a man on the Coaches All-Star National Hockey League team. They're plainly peeved because Leafs were a poor fourth over-all in the game schedule and, with the help of farmhands, showed top form in their Stanley Cup playoff games . . .

AMBASSADOR'S EYE INJURY IMPROVING

London, April 28 — (AP) — Doctors reported Wednesday night that the left eye of Lewis Douglas, United States Ambassador to Britain, is so improved that there no longer is any danger that it may have to be removed. He snagged the eye with a secret hook April 2 while fishing near Southampton.

LONDON OVERHAULS ELECTION MACHINERY

London, April 28 — (Reuters) — Leaders of the Labor party yesterday ordered an immediate overhaul of the party's election machinery following heavy losses in this month's elections to county councils. The party hopes to have its election machinery in high gear for next year's general election.

Matinee daily at 2.00.

AT THE BELLE — Alexis Smith and Robert Douglas play the leading roles in this vivid drama, "The Decision of Christopher Blake", featuring Cecil Kellaway, Ted Donaldson and Harry Davenport. This attraction opens today with Paramount's romantic thriller "Dynamite," as the companion feature.

Israel's Fight for Economic Survival Only Beginning

Tel Aviv, April 28 — (AP) — Israel's one-year battle against the armies of five Arab powers is over. But her fight for economic survival is only beginning. It is going to be the longest and hardest of the two.

1. The state is not self-supporting. It never has been. But it must achieve an economic balance somewhere near paying its own way.

2. The immigration program of doubling Israel's population in five years upsets all the normal rules of state economy.

In direct consequence the average Israeli finds his cost of living up 50 per cent in the last year, his taxes virtually doubled — and his wages increased only about 10 to 15 per cent.

He hasn't figured out yet how he will make ends meet. Neither has his state.

The state is hoping to find the permanent solution within itself: in its willingness to sacrifice, and its own potential to produce.

That means at least five years of "rigid austerity." The man just given the job of imposing it is Montreal-born Dr. Bernard Joseph, former Jewish military governor of Jerusalem and now director of provision and supply. Formula Being Planned

His formula is still being planned. But the public here has been prepared for what it will amount to: a four-to-five-year program of controls patterned roughly upon Britain's wartime and post-war austerity program which economists here regard as an "admirable model."

It is expected to include freezing of wages and prices, control of profit margins, and a stern effort to reduce production costs, limit consumption, and increase industrial output.

Most economists here say it will have to be "at least as hard as the British austerity program —maybe harder."

In a world short of food, Israel has almost twice as much land under cultivation than little more than a year ago. She has little hope of becoming a food exporter. But she hopes to come nearer to feeding herself.

However, those planning long-time economy do not look to agricultural future. They want high industrialization instead. They want factories to meet the enormous needs of a new, fast growing state. They want output for the world markets to get the trade credits necessary to import such goods as cannot be manufactured here, and to buy the raw material for those which can.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK By R. J. SCOTT

Little Benny's Note Book

We were eating supper, being liver and onions in pop's honor, and ma said to pop, Dont you miss the old days of give-and-take hospitality, William? I mean the people and the nothing of inviting each other for dinner in the days when help was no problem and when the question of expense wasn't patch an over-powering subject, she said.

As far as I'm concerned, the dinner guest I have most in common with is a visitor from overseas who appears at the end of the meel and lingers as long as possible after it, pop said, I'm speaking of a Havana cigar, he said, and ma said, I've been seriously thinking of inviting Bertha Cornhouse and her husband for a definite dinner iggagement.

But for Peet sake I thawt you hated the site of that Cornhouse woman, pop said, and ma said, I cant deny she's everything I least admire in my own sex, but she has a bewitfully appointed home. In fact it's a decorater's dream, and she dished up quite a little last werd in French provincial style, she did.

Are you going to serve the dinner in her dining room? pop swid, and ma said, Dont be absurd. The point is, I know from reliable hearsay that she hasn't a stick of Fernwood china to her name, and I can just imagine her green eyes turning greener when she walks into this dining room and finds my mother Fernwood agred out before her envious gaze.

But yer gods, pop said, and ma said, Now William, nuthing is more wasteful than having bewtiful guest china and never using it, and I defy you to name a more appropriate occasion to make use of it.

Maybe you're rite, my dear, but a man in my dizzy condition is in no position to judge, pop said.

PICTON

Fire Damage At Armouries May Exceed $75,000

Picton—A survey of damage made yesterday following the fire which swept the officers' mess at Picton Armories Tuesday evening, reveals that damage will likely exceed $75,000. At least three girders supporting the roof will have to be replaced. Possible wall construction and strengthening of the building will be necessary and a good part of the roof will have to be rebuilt. The heating system in the furnace room below the basement was flooded and the heating system will need reconditioning. Electrical wiring was ruined and many windows were broken. Entire interior of the building, smoke blackened, requires redecorating and the officers' mess rebuilding.

Furnishings Destroyed

Furnishings of the officers' mess, all destroyed, were valued at $2,000, with $2,300 insurance.

Major Lovell-Fraser, area engineer, Kingston, was here yesterday to assess structural damage. Fire claim adjustors were also here.

Lt. Col. R. H. Abraham, O.B.E., E.D., Kingston, officer commanding Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, was at a mess dinner in Belleville Tuesday night and came to Picton with Capt H. A. Tremble of Area Headquarters to inspect the damaged building.

Capt. Les Hyslop, A. & T. officer, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, representing Lt. col. Abraham, yesterday made an inspection.

Court of Injury

A court of injuiry is expected to be called at once.

Several persons first in the armories declared that the fire was first in the ceiling of the mess and believe defective wiring the cause.

This is the second disaster that has struck Picton armories, built late in 1919. In 1925, a cyclone lifted the roof off.

"C" and "D" companies held their parade as usual last night. They met at the armories and then proceeded to the drill hall at the R.C.S.A. (AA) station, which has been placed at the disposal of the units by Lt. Col. R. J. Fisher.

A scheduled officers' mess dinner is being held tonight at an hotel instead of in the armories as planned.

ELECTED LEADER—Leslie M. Frost, Lindsay, Ont., lawyer, provincial treasurer and minister of mines in the cabinet of former Premier George Drew, was elected leader of the Ontario Progressive Conservative party on the first ballot at a party convention in Toronto Wednesday. Here Mr. and Mrs. Frost are cheered by the delegates after the results of the balloting were announced. Standing behind Mr. Frost is Mrs. George Drew, wife of the national leader. (CP Photo)

Minstrel Show By Veterans Nets $2,368

Picton — The recent minstrel show sponsored by Post 78 Canadian Legion netted $2,368.00, it was revealed at a meeting of the post by W. McLean, production manager. Expenses amounted to $1,765, which were deducted from gross receipts of $4,133. Mr. McLean was made a life member of the Post in appreciation of his services. It was decided to ask town council to give preference to veterans, when civic positions are filled. Plans were made for a zone rally here, Sunday, May 8 with D. Caley, G. Hepburn and V. Gentile as a committee in charge of arrangements.

This year, the Waupoos Canning Co. will pack lima beans. The firm has 85 acres under contract and will be the only plant in this section handling them. New equipment for their handling is being installed.

Work of paving Main street is under way. This is welcomed by everyone, as the street has been rough and dusty since being torn up for the installation of sewerage a year ago.

SIR FREDERICK HEATON DIES

London, April 23 — (AP)—Sir Frederick Heaton, 68, a leader of Britain's transport industry, died yesterday. Last September he negotiated the sale for £34,800,000 ($99,200,000) of the Thoms Tilling Bus Combine to the government's transport commission.

Ban Thrill-Hunters In Fire Department

Vancouver — (CP) — Little boys who want to be firemen when they grow up because they like sirens and smoky adventure are in for a big disappointment here.

A system of psychological tests, to screen thrill-hunters, has been inaugurated in the application department of the city fire department.

J. L. Monk, senior technician with the civic personnel department explained that "applicants who are looking for excitement often tend toward the neurotic and don't make good firemen."

FIFTH LARGEST RIVER

The Yukon, 2,300 miles long, is the largest river in Alaska and the fifth largest in North America.

Municipality Representatives Must be Vigilant

Hamilton, April 23 — (CP) — Representatives of municipal governments in Ontario — towns, villages, townships, cities — "must be vigilant or government of municipalities may gradually pass out of control of the elected councils to government by mandatory prescription."

This was the warning given to the delegates to the annual conference of the Association of Ontario Mayors and Reeves by Mayor Sam Lawrence, its president, at the opening session here today.

The Hamilton mayor also urged:

1. A provincial-municipal committee to study ways of relieving the ever-heavier financial burdens on municipal taxpayers, which, he said, had been promised but never set up.

2. Relief of Ontario municipalities of about one-seventh, or $28,000,000, of their costs, which would "place them in a very sound position on the present-day basis."

3. Re-imbursement of the municipalities by the federal and provincial governments, by taxes of equal payments, for services to government properties now exempt, including their commissions, boards and bureaus.

In his address entitled municipalities advance, Mayor Lawrence commented on the recent fire department and police acts introduced at the last provincial legislature session.

"It was pointed out to the Cabinet and members of the legislature that, in providing conditional grants to municipalities in such a way as originally proposed in these bills, it was tantamount to control by the provincial authorities of two municipal departments."

The bills, Mayor Lawrence said, would have given the province the right to determine the standards and sufficiency of the fire and police department which have been considered always as departments coming within the scope of municipal services, and have been considered such since the inception of municipal administration in this country."

The mayor added:

"Fortunately, some provisions of these proposed acts were deleted before passing, and to this extent, the jeopardy of municipal autonomy involved was removed. These are measures about which municipal representatives must be vigilant about, or government of municipalities may gradually pass out of control of the elected municipal councils to government by mandatory prescription."

Need of Importing More Canadian Lumber Stressed at Conference

Southampton, England, April 23 —(CP) — The vital need of importing more Canadian timber was stressed today at a conference of the Timber Development Association. The T.D.A. is sponsoring a "square deal for timber" campaign throughout Britain.

Philip O. Reere, director of the association, said there is loss of efficiency in housing, mining, shipbuilding and almost every branch of industry because of the timber shortage.

J. L. Bayens, former president of the timber development group, urged that steel now being used as a timber substitute be exported to Canada in exchange for timber. Every standard of timber imported would release four times its value in other materials for export. In the long run, a relaxed timber policy could be a big dollar earner, he said.

RADAR SCREEN COMPLETED

Philadelphia, April 23 (CP) — Plans for a radar screen to protect the United States against air attacks have been completed by the armed forces, said Maj.-Gen. Francis L. Ankenbrandt, director of communications for the air force.

The plans were worked out in conjunction with plans for a similar radar system being designed by the Canadian government.

Ankenbrandt said that approximately half the material needed for construction of the huge screen is available in supplies left over from the war.

Military officials have estimated its total cost at about $161,000,000.

TALKS ON LIFTING BERLIN BLOCKADE OPEN

Clash Breaks Out As Vessel Leaves Saint John Pier

Twenty Men Are Arrested By Mounties, City Police

By JOHN MOSHER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Saint John, N.B., April 29 (CP) —Violence flared anew on west Saint John's waterfront between striking Canadian Seamens Union (C.L.C.) members and steelhelmeted R.C.M.P. and city police.

The battle broke out when officers aboard the strikebound freighter Federal Trader cut her hawsers and moved into the stream. No members of the Seafarers' International Union (A.F.L.) were reported in the area.

As the ship moved away from the pier, the clash broke out and 20 men were arrested.

It was not immediately known what led to this second riot. There were unconfirmed reports that some C.I.U. crew would board the Federal Trader in mid harbor later today.

The incident was similar to a pre-dawn brawl in which two C.S.U. members were seriously injured and 17 others were arrested immediately known.

The clash occurred between some 200 police, mostly R.C.M.P., and C.I.U. pickets after a 90-man crew of the rival Seafarers' International Union (A.F.L.) manned the strife-bound freighter Cottrell. The ship sailed for an unannounced destination.

Twenty or 30 other C.S.U. members were later held without charge by city police.

DAIRY INDUSTRY ASKS THE GOVT. TO SOLVE PROBLEM

Brief Requests Cabinet to Explore Possibility of More Markets

Ottawa, April 29 (CP)— The cabinet has taken under consideration a National Dairy Council brief which appeals to the government to help solve milk, cheese and butter problems caused partly by the introduction of margarine in Canada partly by declining foreign markets.

The brief, presented to Prime Minister L. Laurent and members of his cabinet yesterday, asked the government to declare a clean-cut policy on butter flour prices, stabilize the domestic market field for more dairy markets and otherwise help stimulate the sale of dairy products.

J. E. Duplan, the council's president who submitted the brief, particularly asked that the government remove export restrictions on cheese and butter and so allow the industry greater freedom in the export field.

He also suggested that instead of the government storing any surpluses of butter in its efforts to stabilize a floor price, it should consider granting dairy producers a straight subsidy and allow the butter to be sold at a below-floor level.

Otherwise, the council foresaw tremendous surpluses of butter accumulating in the hands of the government.

"To do away with the confusion in the industry which had resulted from dwindling overseas markets and the introduction of margarine in Canada, Mr. Duplan asked that an advisory committee, representative of the industry, be established under the new agricultural prices support act.

This committee would make available to the prices support board "knowledge and experience" to help solve the many "complex" problems involved in the current dairy situation.

Mr. Duplan indicated that even though Canada had a 50,000,000-pound cheese contract with the United Kingdom this year, there still would be a surplus of cheese in Canada over and above that amount.

There had to be other outlets for the sale of that product, as well as for the butter, the brief presentation said. There also had to be a certainty that Canada could again be able to dispose of some of her skim milk powder production for the United Nations Children's Emergency Fund.

In 1948 more than 50 per cent of total skim milk exports — or about 18,000,000 pounds — went to the fund.

"Failure to announce administrative policy is having lasting and harmful effects on all branches of the industry," Mr. Duplan said.

"Unless the industry is made aware of such policies and procedures in the very near future, the overall problem is added. It is difficult to foresee how it will be possible to carry on efficient operations or assist the government in mistaking the difficulties which are anticipated."

ROMANIA APPEARS TO BE FOLLOWING RUSSIA'S LEAD

Key Commies Relieved Of Ministerial Duties

Bucharest, April 29. (AP) — Romania appears today to be following Russia's lead in relieving key Communists of Ministerial duties so that they may concentrate on the over-all Communist party program.

This, in fact, may be the pattern for all the eastern European Cominform countries. Bulgaria and Poland are recent cases in point.

Support is given to this line of reasoning by the fact that Gheorghe Gheorghiu-Dej has signed the May-Day issue of the Cominform paper, hinting that again attacks Marshal Tito Premier of Yugoslavia, as a stooge from Marxism. He signed himself as secretary-general of the Roman Workers (Communist) party, the country's only Communist rumors that he was purged.

The appearance of the Journal stated that former premier Gheorghiu-Dej recently was relieved of his duties as president of the State Planning Commission. But obviously he has kept his Communist party secretary and vice-premier. As in the case of Yugoslavia, the Soviet bloc views that Gheorghiu-Dej actually was promoted, not purged.

It is known that many leaders of the Workers' Party would like him to lead not only the party but the government.

Streamlined Cabinet

The streamlining of the cabinet along these lines could include other key technical or administrative posts. Economic and foreign ministries could be considered as such. These posts are held now by Vasile Luca and Ana Pauker, both vice-premiers. They could remain vice-premiers but, relieved of the technical details of the ministries, they would be able to concentrate on a political program in order to responsibility both in the cabinet and the communist committee.

It goes without saying that the party, and not the cabinet, is principally responsible for shaping the policy of the country.

Bulgaria recently set up a supercabinet to control foreign policy-making powers, and Premier Georgi Dimitrov, veteran Communist, is at its head. He last was reported in Moscow, undergoing treatment for an illness, and there were rumors when he left that he had been purged. But a place at the head of the new body seemed to dispel such rumors.

Similarly, in Poland there have been recent shifts at the top indicating a similiar trend.

Says Communism Merely 'Name In Pakistan'

London, April 29 (Reuters) — Liaquat Ali Khan, Pakistan prime minister, said today that India's policy of regarding Communism only to affect relations with Pakistan.

He said he was satisfied with the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference and hoped the results would be satisfactory.

He said that India's "neutrality" policy affected relations between Pakistan and India. The prime minister said he disliked racial discrimination.

"I am only hoping that all the countries of the world will recognize that all human beings are on an equal footing and are created by one God and are equal in every respect."

In answer to another question he said Communism was "only a name in Pakistan."

But such was his country's geographical position that whenever action was taken against Communists in neighboring countries they "just walked quietly into eastern Pakistan."

Four Killed, Eight Injured In Head-on Crash Between Truck and Bus Near Barrie

Barrie, April 29 (CP)— Four persons were dead, and eight injured, two seriously, in a head-on collision Thursday night between a gasoline tanker-trailer six of them home to Belle Ewart from an evening drinking party — and a Barrie-bound bus.

Provincial police said the six in the truck, all residents of the same house at Belle Ewart, 10 miles south of here, had been drinking in a Barrie beverage room and later in the truck itself before crashing at high speed into the Gray Coach Lines bus. The accident occurred about nine miles south of here on Highway No. 11.

Dead are: John Mattesz, 36, and 31-year-old Donald Hill who died in the cab of the truck. Lloyd Robins, pried from behind the driving wheel, died before he could be taken to hospital here. Mrs. Dorothy Chartier, another passenger in the truck, died of her injuries in hospital an hour after the early-evening accident.

Police said she jumped from the truck seconds before the impact and was rescued by an approaching truck. (Amplifies)

The other three other passengers, Mrs. Robbins and Mrs. Hill were in serious condition in hospital here. Mrs. Robbins remained still unconscious with a fractured jaw, fractured femur and cuts and leg lacerations, had a good chance of recovering, doctors said. Mrs. Hill suffered chest injuries and remained conscious.

Two bus passengers were injured, but none seriously. Two of them — Robert McAllister and J. J. Langan of Toronto were treated at hospital here and the latter allowed to go home after road-side treatment.

Police said they believed the truck driver was blinded by the lights of the bus.

Man Shoots Self Before Police Can Arrest Him

Timmins, Ont., April 29 (CP)— Police said today 77-year-old William Daniel Hazen shot himself to death Wednesday night as two officers attended his log cabin home in a swamp 20 miles west of here, to arrest him.

They found Hazen lying on the floor with a rifle beside him and his temple, they said. He died instantly.

The two officers said Hazen knew the planned to arrest him. The body was taken to a funeral home at Kapuskasing, but no decision has been made about an inquest.

Police said Hazen was an old-age pensioner who had lived for a number of years by the district.

The officers also said they knocked on Hazen's door "hours" during night and were told by a voice what they wanted. They replied that they were police officers who had a warrant to arrest him on charges of keeping liquor for sale.

There was no answer. Seconds later the heard a shot, they said, then broke in and found Hazen's body.

'Friendly Relations' Sought by Britain Says Spokesman

London, April 29 (AP)—British aim is trying to establish "friendly relations" with the Chinese Communist government, a foreign office spokesman said today.

He said such contact with the Chinese Communists will not interfere Britain's recognition relations with the Nationalist government. Diplomatic observers, meanwhile speculated that his statements suggest Britain may soon give de facto recognition to Mao Tse-Tung's Communist government as the only effective authority in most of troubled China.

6,000 Workers At Ford Plant To Strike May 5

Detroit, April 29 — (AP) — A strike of 6,000 workers at Ford's Lincoln - Mercury plant was given official union sanction Thursday to start May 5.

At the same time, however, the C. I. O. United Automobile Workers announced that Ford Motor co 60,000 Ford employers at the giant Rouge plant to hold back. It said it wanted to investigate speed-up charges there similar to those it said it had confirmed at Lincoln - Mercury.

The board assigned a top-level team headed by C. A. W. Secretary-Treasurer Emil Mazey to study the Rouge plant situation today. President Walter Reuther said strike action would be authorized at Rouge "quickly" if the local union speed-up charges are substantiated.

Company-union talks aimed at ending the dispute are scheduled to resume today at both plants. The U. A. W. locals at the two plants voted to strike unless they move too fast, endangering the workers' health and safety.

Ford has denied any speed-ups exist. Two meetings this week between company and union officials failed to bring agreement.

Use Wet Flies Or Streamers For Speckled Trout

Toronto, April 29 (CP) — Ontario's speckled trout season opens tomorrow and Lands and Forests Department officials said today the prospects look good. They said anglers to use wet flies or streamers at first in the streams.

Ice went out of most northern streams last weekend and water should be at lower levels by tomorrow. Experts say high water means poor trout fishing because enough food is washed off the banks to keep the fish from getting hungry.

Bag limit in Ontario are 10 pounds or 20 fish with a minimum length of seven inches.

20TH PARLIAMENT LIKELY TO CLOSE SOMETIME TODAY

Almost Certain Election Day Will be June 27

Ottawa, April 29 — (CP) — Canada's 20th Parliament reaches the end of its legislative life today.

It plans go according to schedule, Prime Minister St. Laurent told the commons tonight. Parliament may, at the same time, announce the general election date. It is considered a certainty to be Monday, June 27.

Yesterday, opposition members ranged the legislative field in a flurry of last-minute speeches as the government moved to go into committee of supply to obtain [illegible] for operation of the government expenses until after the election. The supply debate still was rolling at the adjournment hour.

Local skirmishes sparked the waning hours of the dying parliament.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, was threatened with censure by Speaker Beauchesne when he declined to withdraw a charge that Transport Minister Claxton had sought to "mislead" the House.

New Reprisals Statement

He retracted the statement after Prime Minister St. Laurent suggested to the speaker that he "knew what his duty" was if the withdrawal was made and the speaker, in turn, warned Mr. Drew he would apply "sanctions" — expulsion — if he did not retract.

Prague, April 29 — (Reuters)— Czech Communist authorities in recent weeks have ordered a new series of arrests of army officers, reliable sources here said today.

From [illegible] reports, these sources have listed 20 to 30 officers who have been the latest victims of the Communist purge. These officers were purged from the Czech armed forces in the last 12 months.

Official sources have as yet given no information on the arrests, but the fate of the army officers reported to have taken part in the purge is known.

Toronto, April 29 (CP)—The Globe and Mail said today in its front-page story that cancellation of 24 newspaper advertisements provided for atlantic flight personnel is blamed for what it termed a "bitter dispute" between Trans-Canada Air Lines and the Canadian Airline Pilots' Association.

The newspaper says that the cancellation, developments of the controversy was prefer to inland cities of approximately 100,000 of the crews previously engaged in trans-Atlantic flights.

U.S. Ambassador Accepts Invitation To Meet Malik

No Information on Stage Negotiations Have Reached

By NORMAN ALTSTEDTER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, April 29 — (CP) — Philip C. Jessup, United States ambassador-at-large, today accepted a request from Russia's Jakob A. Malik to meet this afternoon for talks on the next step in negotiations to lift the Berlin blockade.

A spokesman for the United States delegation to the United Nations told reporters at the General Assembly in Flushing Meadows Jessup would see Malik late today at the Soviet delegation offices. Jessup said, however, he would not reveal the nature of his talks with the Russian deputy foreign minister until he had reported to State Secretary Dean Acheson.

Neither United States nor Russian officials have stated what stage the negotiations have reached.

But Western diplomatic sources have previously expressed the belief the next step in the talks would come when Malik received instructions from Moscow on the United States request for details of Russian proposals to lift the blockade.

Prague, April 29 — (Reuters)— Czech Communist authorities in recent weeks have ordered a new series of arrests of army officers, reliable sources here said today.

From [illegible] reports, these sources have listed 20 to 30 who have been the latest victims of the Communist purge. These officers were purged from the Czech armed forces in the last 12 months.

Official sources have as yet given no information on the arrests, but the fate of the army officers reported to have taken part in the purge is known.

Following objections from the police, the Communists were partly persuaded to cover air lines even while they were away from home in Britain. But here, in Canada, the coverage does not apply.

Russians Apologize to British, 'Battle of Barges' Probably Ended

By RICHARD K. O'MALLEY

Berlin, April 29 (AP)—The Russians apologized today and the brief "battle of the barges" appeared to be over.

Soviet headquarters notified British authorities that Russian soldiers who detained barges refused to halt traffic in British sector canal locks had acted without authority.

The Soviet action opened the way for a conference of British and Soviet transportation chiefs to discuss barge traffic tomorrow.

Inland traffic was normal this afternoon and the atmosphere much more friendly.

Five Russians carrying sidearms, who had announced their intention to remain at the canal locks to stop barges lacking Soviet registry, left during the night, leaving the British forces in sole command until the two Soviet officers showed up early today.

The Russian claim is that no barges may be operated on Berlin's canals, which link waterways in the Soviet zone west of Berlin with those in the eastern part of the Russian zone, unless they have registration certificates issued by the Russian-controlled waterways directorate.

British authorities do not dispute the right of the Soviet military administration to supervise the canals technically.

They do, however, reject any claims by the Russians to interfere with the specific type of traffic which is purely for western Berlin and is of no interest to the Russians in the corresponding Soviet occupation zone.

The Russians made their first attempt to stop movement of the British barges Wednesday. The British authorities protested and the order was rescinded.

The Russians reinstated the order yesterday and sent in the force of five officers. Barge traffic was stopped for a time but was resumed after another conference.

Some observers speculated that the Russians might be testing Allied reactions.

SEARCH IS MADE FOR GIRL MISSING SINCE LAST NIGHT

St. Catharines and Provincial Police Seek Trace of Joyce Patterson

St. Catharines, April 29 — (CP) — Police are conducting an area-wide search for 20-year-old Joyce Patterson who mysteriously disappeared Thursday night after she left the home of a friend at 11:30 o'clock.

The girl was riding a bicycle and normally should have made the trip in 15 minutes.

Police constables called in early today found the bicycle and a flashlight between two bridges on the old Welland Canal but no further traces have been discovered.

When last seen the girl was reported to be in good spirits. She was wearing blue slacks and a black and white checkered jacket when she left.

Employed at a rug factory near here, the girl left the home of Grace Hadlow just before midnight for a 15-minute ride to her home, just outside the city limits.

When she failed to arrive home, her father, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Patterson, called police and a search covering a wide area started.

She disappeared," said Acting Police Chief Duncan Brown. "At this time I am not going to commit myself as to what may have happened to her."

Provincial Police were to be called in to help search the district.

SPLIT WATER PIPE CAUSE OF LEAK

A split water main pipe was responsible for the past week's leak which developed in the new main leading across Front Street at the foot of Nova Scotia.

For the past several weeks employees of the Toronto Dock and Dredge Company which installed the main, have been searching for a leak which developed in the main. The split main was found in a section of the pipe running through the alley at the rear of Ed. Thomas tobacco store.

The defective pipe was cut with a torch, the sections removed and a new pipe installed.

Public Utilities Commission officials stated some of the joints had also been declared defective.

The water main is part of the new water system which, when completed, will serve the east end of the city.

Rain Has Held Up Seeding Operations

Unsettled weather conditions with considerable rain having fallen, have held up seeding operations in the Bay of Quinte district for the past week.

The weekly crop report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture states that the continued wet weather has delayed seeding operations although some seeding has done on high land.

In Hastings County farmers with calves aired by the Artificial Unit bulls are enthusiastic over the type of the resulting progeny.

All cheese factories in Prince Edward County that operated last year are again making cheese.

There is a keen demand for weanling pigs.

The demand for seed grain continues with supplies scarce.

He paid tribute to Mr. Laporte for his efforts in bringing his plant to the top, "We are watching expectantly," he said, "which will enable us to go on and make better production in the future."

He suggested that the annual conventions be changed to semi-annual affairs. "It is hard to get together and discuss the many problems which arise in a one-day meeting" he said.

About one hundred bowlers and their friends attended the Mixed Commercial Bowling banquet held this week at Club Cedars.

Following a fine dinner, the presentations were made with League President L. Blaker officiating. Welcome was extended to one and all including Mr. and Mrs. Ron Keel and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Bateman. Video Reception In This City Only Weeks Away

With residents of Toronto and district taking advantage of television broadcasts from Buffalo, Rochester, and Hamilton, it is only weeks away.

At least this is the opinion of one local radio repair man and television enthusiast who already has built himself a set and is waiting for a new television station at Rochester, N.Y. to go on the air. The Booth brothers, Ross, Donald and Harold, all live in Belleville and this week will erect their antenna in preparation for the commencement of broadcasts from Rochester.

The distance of Rochester from Belleville is calculated to be about 70 miles and with less interference than would be the case at Toronto is thought to be well within television range. Already FM signals from Rochester have been picked up inthe city. Distance from Toronto to Belleville is 130 miles.

The Booth brothers have received permission from WHAM Rochester asking them to test with them, when their video set is in action goes on the air. Power of the new Rochester station will be greater than that of the Toronto station. It is said.

But besides the hobbyists, video has other enthusiasts in the city with request already being made for 60 cycle television receiving sets which would be required to operate in this area.

Tennis League May Expand to Seven-Team Loop

The Bay of Quinte Tennis League may expand to a loop of seven-team organization, if three more potential entries decide to enter the fold, it was learned at a meeting of the league held this week.

Clubs from Holloway Street United Church, Trenton, the No. 6 Repair Depot RCAF, Trenton, announced they are seriously considering entering the league in order to give these clubs the opportunity to complete their organization and other business, the League executive decided to extend entry deadline to May 14th.

A league schedule will be drawn up immediately after that date and it is expected play will get under way during the fourth week of May.

It was proposed that the league operate a junior schedule for players under the age of 17. These junior players are being set up in clubs in membership in the league. The executive will also take up the matter of league clubs playing exhibition games with those of other leagues.

The first social function of the league is slated for the Belleville Tennis Clubhouse on Thursday, May 5 when special films will be shown. Tennis fans wishing to file entries in the loop are requested to contact Miss Mary Williams, 228 Dufferin Avenue.

MAY OPEN SEASON EARLIER

Sudbury, April 29 (CP)—The 1949-50 northern Ontario beaver season may open Dec. 15 days earlier than usual, this year, it was reported today following a meeting yesterday of fish and wildlife specialists and northern Ontario game agents.

Most of the men attending the meeting agreed the season should open when beaver skins are prime. It was decided the season would close April 15, the same date as this year.

The delegate, Vince Crichton of Chapleau, objected that some trappers complained they would be taken if the season opened too early and suggested Dec. 15.

Chairman of the meeting was Jack Grew, trapline supervisor for the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests.

Labor Council Approves Stand On Home Property

Belleville and District Allied Labor Council went on record at their regular business meeting last night as being in support of the majority of city councillors who favored the conference of definite building of low-rental veterans' housing on the site south of the new Lennox hospital, rather than the vague possibility of building at factory floors. They also deplored the stand of the minority who voted against the immediate building of the veterans' homes as being against the best interests of the majority of the citizens of Belleville.

It was reported by the secretary that no answer had been received from the city council regarding his several enquiries, as to the disposition of the request of the local Chamber of Commerce for a grant of $1,000 similar to the grant that was refused to the Labor Council. The meeting instructed to again contact the council and to ask that the final disposition of the Chamber of Commerce request be publicly announced, the same as the action of the labor council was handled.

Mr. Thos. Stevenson, National secretary of the Ontario Labor-Management Committee and director of organization of the National Organization of Public Utility and Electric Workers, Canadian Congress of Labor, appeared before the labor council to help for the local Branch No 13 of the organization. He explained how by Wisconsin that civic employees cannot come under the scope of the Ontario Labor Relations Board Act for certification on the basis of passer-a by-law making it possible. Because the local Branch has been unsuccessfully trying to get a contract with the city since November 18th of last year, the Labor Council went on record as being in favor of requesting the city to pass the by-law that would give Belleville civic workers the rights that all other workers have and also to enter into negotiations with these workers with a view of reaching a mutual agreeable settlement, with Branch 13 of the N. O. C. U. & E. W.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, April 29 (CP)— All groups signed lower in dull trading on the Toronto Stock exchange today. Base metals continued sliding at the lowest price level in a year and industrials and golds extended their losing streak. Western oils opened firmer but soon joined the rest of the market in the decline.

Volume for the first three hours was 354,000 shares, about 27,000 shares less than yesterday's similar period.

Losses ranged up to a point in the industrial groupings but a slight recovery trend appeared in mid session. Papers led the declining issues with several stocks touching new lows.

Almost all base metals slipped lower in Labrador and Sherritt touching new lows.

Senior golds weakened fractions and losses were held to about five cents in a scattered junior gold group.

New Street Lighting System To be Turned on Saturday

The business section of the city at the transformers which can be used on Saturday will blossom forth with new street lighting approximately three times brighter than that given by present lights.

At 8.30 Saturday evening, F. E. Wotten, chairman of the local public utilities commission, and Aldeman Bruce Latimer, chairman of light, will close the switches which will illuminate for the first time the new street lights in the downtown section of the city.

The new lights are twice as numerous as the present obsolete standards and they are of the new type Powerlite Lumenaires which direct the light down, and to the sides and are much more efficient than the present type. Ninety-nine lights of the new type have been installed.

The new Lumenaires will light Front Street from just north of the Upper Bridge to Pinnacle and Dundas Street, Bridge Street from the Lower Bridge to Church Street, Campbell Street and Victoria Ave., from Front to Pinnacle will be lighted by the new standards.

Series Installation

Contrasting with the present system the new lights are of a series installation requiring spec-

only for street lighting purposes. The system will be on three different circuits supplied by separate transformers.

This will permit sections of the downtown lighting system to be turned off to effect repairs, without affecting lights on the other circuit. Each unit light will require 370 watts, the same power requirement as the present lights.

The increased efficiency of the new lights is stated to be due to the increased height—25 feet above the street—and to the fact that light is refracted downward onto the street instead of being permitted to shine into the air and onto the sides of buildings.

One-Price Standards

The light standards are of one piece with the lights projecting six feet over the street from the curb line.

Installation of the new lights will mean no capital charge against the city as this cost is being borne by the Public Utilities Commission out of reserve funds.

Immediately the new lights are out in the old light standards will be taken out. It is expected the old standards will be discarded as the type is now obsolete.

Leo Durocher Is Suspended

New Type of Radar Aid Developed Helps Airlift

Berlin, April 29 — (Reuters)— A new type of radar navigation aid developed by American technicians has been the secret behind the recent big increase in tonnage carried by the Berlin air lift, United States officials revealed here today.

The new apparatus, called Cpe 5, has just come off the secret list. It enables ground operators to pick up planes when they are still between 50 and 70 miles away, give pilots their course, height and speed, and ensure their approach to specified airports at exactly the right intervals.

Cpe 5 was given its biggest test April 16 when nearly 1,600 flights brought almost 12,000 tons of supplies to Berlin in 25 hours.

American experts claim that up to 14,000 tons of supplies could be brought in in 24 hours if enough planes were available, they stated.

Technical details of Cpe 5 are still secret.

HON. LESLIE FROST NEW LEADER

Hon. Leslie Frost, Treasurer of the Province of Ontario and Minister of Mines, is the new leader of the Progressive Conservatives in Ontario and Minister of Mines, the convention for the election of a successor to the Premiership having on the first ballot chosen him to be the leader. This carries the office of Premier which he will undertake in the course of a few days. Pre-convention opinion favored Mr. Frost for the office, so that his election occasioned little surprise.

The provincial convention of the Progressive Conservatives was marked by enthusiasm from start to finish. Mr. Frost's record as financial critic for the Conservative Opposition in the Provincial House for a number of years and his term as Provincial Minister of Mines and Treasurer have made him a prominent figure in Ontario affairs. He has had long associations with political life, his father-in-law having been member of the Legislature for the County of Victoria, Mr. Frost succeding him in 1937. Since 1943 he has been provincial treasurer and Minister of Mines.

The new leader served in the First World War with the Canadian Army and retired with the rank of major. He suffered wounds in the last year of that struggle.

Mr. Kennedy's choice for Premier was temporary as he had made known that he would not contest the office and accordingly he filled it for the interim until a provincial convention could be held to choose a leader. Mr. Frost, in succeeding Mr. Kennedy as Premier, comes well qualified for the leadership for he has had close intimacy with all matters of provincial import and has been prominent in the House.

When Premier Kennedy, who is Minister of Agriculture, lays down the office of the Premiership, he will have the gratitude and good will of the Province and of the members of the Legislature for the valued services he has rendered in the post of Premier and the portfolio he has filled. His position as able in the office of the portfolio of Agriculture to serve Ontario well. He has graced the Premiership and in the post of Minister of Agriculture has had much to do with the advance of scientific farming in Ontario.

SCIENCIFIC MARVEL

What was it like in the prehistoric world, say more than 100,000 years ago? Man knows that there were trees in that faroff age. But what were they like and what purpose did they serve?

For a long time it was realized by scientists that there was a species of fir tree in that long-since-past era of life on this globe but it was thought to have disappeared in the climatic changes which swept over the earth. Fossilized remains of what is called the Metasequoia glyptostroboides had however been found since and believed that the tree itself had disappeared forever. Yet one of the wonders of modern scientific investigation took place about two years ago when some Chinese explorers found a single specimen of the tree growing in a remote valley. This species of tree is said to have reached 150 feet in height and measured seven feet in diameter in the dim ages of the past.

This was the beginning of a novel effort which has been successful and will be continued. Several seeds of the tree had been sent to England from Central China. Now trees have been successfully grown from these seeds and millions of seeds recommended for rearing plants from its seed. This is to be expected as the earth was hotter than it is now these many millenniums ago.

The facts of this experiment have been made public by the Timber Development Association of Britain in its report which has been published.

The vitality of nature was never more clearly revealed than in this and in the virility of animal and human life. In the polar regions live people even in this age and they would probably fare less well and become less healthy if they had to endure the warmth of the temperate climes. These trees of a faroff period of life on the globe possessed that virility and ability to endure. By chance (as man considers chance) it might have been reasonable to suppose that all trace of this kind of tree would be lost in the long ages ago, but it survived and has been the source of new life in this twentieth century. Modern botanical history has been made by this successful planting and growing of those precious seeds. In these trees when grown will possibly be seen the type of shade in which prehistoric men basked thousands of generations ago.

Benevolent feeling ennobles the most trifling actions. —Thackeray.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

England is going to get rid of the hedges. Modern mechanical methods of agriculture cannot afford them. They are hopelessly piggedly encloisures, some of which date back to Tudor times. It was about the time Christopher Columbus was trying to get drum up backers for his harebrained venture he had in mind, when England began to put over these same hedges. They have been there ever since.

England has been a pretty good socialist state prior to the war. Most of the people squatted where they liked, scattered their hogs, sheep and cattle on the common domain; and were generally content just to take a share from each according to his means. But England's wool was growing famous, and the landlords started to enclose land for the pasture of their own flocks. In 1440, it was decreed by statute with Kettle rising in Norfolk, when 20,000 sheep, belonging to gentlemen with hedges were slaughtered by the enraged peasantry. And from that time forth, the enclosure of land has been an economic and political football, with Henry VIII's dissolution of the monasteries, the Cromwellian land acts and the "agricultural revolution" which, by 1830, had enclosed the most of England, being the high point in the game.

My own reaction to the news about the hedges will be shared by thousands of Canadians who served in the R.C.A.F. overseas, by the many people who had the experience of flying in daylight from the north to the south of England.

It was with an unfailing sense of pleasure that the air-traveller having crossed the bare, almost featureless rectangularity of northern France, saw below him "England's green and pleasant land." The air-scape of England is a hedgerowed yet, bowered, lush, dappled, full of character, as the Irish say, tender look. Granted that pilots must have regarded it with horror — not as emergency landing but nothing but a surge of sheer love. Even with bulldozers, it will take a lot of hedge-chopping to destroy that loveliness in our time.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

FACING THE FACTS

When the boy Beethoven first played before Mozart, the latter listened in astonishment and felt that here indeed was a genius. At ten, Beethoven had gone on a concert tour, and at fourteen he had conducted the orchestra at an opera.

But it was not long until the shadow of a great affliction began to fall across his pathway. Little by little, his hearing became dulled, and when, he reached the height of his fame, he could not hear a single note of the gorgeous music he had written. Sometimes he would bend close to the piano, trying to catch a note or two of what he had written. He died at the age of 57, practically under the indescribable pathos, "I shall hear again in heaven."

An affliction is always hard to bear, and it cannot truthfully be maintained that Beethoven always bore his affliction with equanimity. Sometimes he lost his patience and cried out angrily against what he considered the adverse works of fate. This attitude was probably responsible for the fact that he experienced so much unhappiness apart from his affliction. Few men have had more to be proud of in this life did Beethoven, and yet few men have enjoyed life less than he did.

Yet some of the world's greatest figures have borne great handicaps. They became great because they refused to allow these things to destroy their happiness and efficiency.

Mackenzie's Column: Commonwealth Will be Stronger Than Formerly

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

The historic London agreement whereby India can become a republic and still remain a member of the British Commonwealth of Nations without recognition of the King-Emperor, thus constitutes one of the striking developments of these amazing days in which we live.

By a simple juggling of words this great Commonwealth has been saved from the disastrous rending of India's membership, and the possible withdrawal of other members later. Not only that, but the new Commonwealth (which abandons the designation of "British") this fall is to be stronger than ever.

The weakening of the Commonwealth at this crucial juncture in the cold war between the communist and the anti - communist block would have been a serious blow to the Allies. It would be especially true as regards India, for this great subcontinent is a key position. It may easily become the keystone of the defensive arch encircling Russia.

Mesars. R. J. Garbutt, President of the Belleville Agricultural Society, and R. H. Ketcheson, Secretary for the company, have returned home from Toronto where they attended the meeting held under the auspices of various agricultural societies. They engaged several attractions for the fair this coming fall while there in Toronto.

India and China lie side by side in the Asiatic theatre in which the war of the isms may eventually be decided.

Extraordinary Circumstance

The change in the Commonwealth relations perhaps could not have been achieved but for the extraordinary circumstance that British has no written constitution to guide it in framing. The constitution just grew up through precedent. It has changed in many laws, which are based on custom and common-law principles.

Thus freed from constitutional barriers, the Commonwealth Conference in a few sessions figured out a way to get around the lengthy process of amending its objects. As things now stand the King is simply "the symbol of free association" of the independent members. . . . And as the head of the Commonwealth."

Regal Splendor

It might seem somewhat strange that India should be the one to object to further recognition of the King's sovereignty. Those of us who have had the use of the British throne, India, with her history of splendor, and the luster of a regal splendor barely equaled in history.

Probably no other emperor had such homage paid to him as was accorded the King as he and his powerful rulers whose wealth and power are beyond compute it. Even the Viceroy maintained an atmosphere which was more regal than the latin.

So it's given to wonder why India refused to give to refuse recognition of regal sovereignty now. Still, having seen much of the splendor of the East in the imperial days, I incline to the thought that Ghandi had a part because of those times that India shuns imperialism now.

Furthermore the Indians are a liberty - loving people, and they are proud. They bow to nobody these days, since they won their independence under such leaders as Prime Minister Nehru and the great Gandhi who was Nehru's friend and teacher.

Letters to the Editor

Likes Pyramid Clubs

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

Will you please air my views in your paper concerning the write-up by your sports editor on Pyramid Clubs.

What has been written is true enough. But, I have some different angles on said subject.

In the few days I have belonged to the Pyramid Club, I have met many friends and have been reunited with old friends over nothing stronger than a glass of gingerale.

I feel that the Pyramid Clubs are doing a great good as the church in bringing people together.

As yet, I have not collected any money, if I do I will be very happy. I will put it to very good use and keep it in circulation where money was most in need. But if I don't, I feel I have received the satisfaction I'm after for the aforementioned reasons.

Time Stands Still For City Parks

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer

I am enclosing a copy of "Thirty Years Ago" from the April 28 issue of the Ontario Intelligencer. This is a typical example of how time stands still. Victoria Park, the Bay front park and Zwick's Island speaks for itself.

It seems a shame that the citizens of Belleville have no real park in the city. An important still that there is an appalling lack of properly equipped and supervised playgrounds for the children.

The writer has learned that the council was having difficulty finding funds for the current year. A need as obviously urgent as this should not require too much difficulty. Surely the amount of money required as much serious thought by council as will be a liberal decision to present each citizen with a gift of a park for appreciation from a grateful city. (Incidentally, would the suggestion to these "Scrolls" for which money was voted?)

Let us have a Beautify years from now the citizens of Belleville will be still appealing for veterans homes, parks and playgrounds.

R. T. Potter, M.D.

(Reprint of "30 Years Ago" Item)

What about Victoria Park? For the past year there has been a lot of discussion, correspondence, neither rustic nor arbor. No time should be lost in preparing plans for a permanent improvement. Building in the park generally as a recreation centre. The beauties of its present state the park is not a good advertisement to strangers who sometimes visit and are made for weekly band concerts. Other features might well receive some attention; it could with a little expensive place for citizens to spend afternoons.

Veterans Thank Council

Editor's note: Following is a letter written to His Worship with respect to Housing for Veterans.

Belleville, Ontario,
April 25th, 1940.

Your Worship,
Mayor Denzil B. Storey,
Belleville, Ontario.

Dear Sir:-

On behalf of Branch 99 of the Canadian Legion, I wish to take this opportunity to thank you and the members of the Belleville City Council for your wholehearted support in providing of low-rental homes for veterans.

We, as the taxpayers of the City of Belleville, as well as veterans, really appreciate the desperate need and we feel sure that every citizen who is not an ex-serviceman. The veteran who has not adequate facilities to house his wife and family appeals to our organization for help. In view of this we conducted a door to door survey of the city to ascertain just how many houses were necessary.

The houses already built have certainly helped the situation but more are still needed. There are many veterans looking for a rental home who will not be taken care of in the Churchill Heights area. Industry is necessary for a progressive city and we appreciate this necessity, but the workers must have houses before the industry can hope to survive.

We understand the city has purchased property within the county, that is, the Home for the Aged and the farm in connection with it and another block of low-rental homes will be constructed in the near future.

Therefore as a result of a motion passed by a general meeting of Branch 99 of the Canadian Legion, I have been instructed further to put our sincere appreciation and support of your resolution to have additional low-rental homes for veterans erected on the above-mentioned site.

Thanking you for co-operation,
Yours truly,
J. M. Matthews,
President, Branch 99.

Disapproves Pyramids

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

Bravo for you George Carver. He is about the only person spoke the truth about pyramid clubs. How true that there's a sucker born every minute. Seems to me there are too many in Belleville anyway. Too bad that something was not going to someone who really needs it. Then I for one would have gladly thrown in my dollar.

A Reader.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

SNAPPERS

We folks, when all is said and done, are many of us impatient, inconsiderate and rampant in the human race. When we are not pleased, or when we are opposed, we are apt to be rude and hasty, and who stamps its feet when it doesn't get its own way.

Who hasn't witnessed a person in a telephone booth, or out of one, abusing the instrument because the number wanted isn't answered immediately? Maybe the instrument wasn't to blame. Maybe the hello girl was overloaded with calls at the moment. No matter. Bang, snap goes the tongue, and frayed goes the temper.

We meet these snappers everywhere we go. We hear them, do, or say, something — and lo and behold the snapper gets busy. He will do that and do or say why didn't we think before such an idea? Thus it goes. It is a public place, or in fact anywhere. These snappers must carry a keg of powder in their pockets.

I am no psychologist, but I venture to state that the snapper must have a disorganized brain, that always ought to be done about it. It is not a healthy state of affairs. It is not conducive in time the nervous system, or the mechanism of the brain itself, may revolt. The snapper's habit is not one that leads to peace of mind.

When in college I was night clerk at a hotel, with my roommate, for which we received our meals and nothing more. My employer was a woman who was a snapper de luxe. Nothing ever pleased her. Everything was to be in awe of her. One day we heard the fire alarm. Being interested in the direction of our fellow clerk, we looked to see. Sure enough, our hotel was on fire, and we watched it burn to the ground. No lives were lost, however, and I have never heard of that snapper lady since!

How great is that one who has gained serenity of spirit.—who has learned to control his tongue and his temper, who has the character to rise above impetuosity — who never rises back at a friend or foe. The Bible speaks of such a one as being "greater than he who taketh a city."

MAKE YOURS MILK AND STAY YOUNG

Prevention of premature old age prolongation of youth is a question of hygiene and nutrition. This, I believe is the trend medical thought, based on newer knowledge of physiology, hygiene and nutrition.

The older view, that longevity was a vascular question, that a man was only as old as his arteries, was based on postmortem study, morbid anatomy, and upon a kind of fatalistic theory that, as Dr. Osler expressed it, "the onset of what may be called physiological arterio - sclerosis" (hardening of the arteries) "depends, in the first place, upon the quality of arterial tissue (vital rubber) which the individual has inherited, and secondly upon the amount of wear and tear to which he has subjected it. . . More commonly the arterio-sclerosis results from the bad use of good vessels."

Some physicians of Osler's time (influenced as a practice by the theory that an individual's vitality can be measured (lime) from high calcium foods, from very hard drinking water (lime) takin plenty of milk to supplement the ordinary diet. They contended, without any scientific evidence t ossport the idea, that in some way this extra calcium is deposited in the kidneys, arteries or joints. This faulty assumption gave Bright's disease (nephritis), kidney stone, stone in bladder, gall stones, hardening of the arteries, chronic rheumatism or ulcerated stomach. They stated that soft water, rain water, distilled water or mineral water might soften the arteries.

The high calcium foods are: milk, skim milk, buttermilk, buttermilk, Bulgarian milk, Acidophilus milk, Yogurt, cheese, eggs (yolk), vegetables, fruits, nuts, turnips, celery, carrots, dates, oranges.

Instead of getting too much calcium (lime salts) from food, most of us get insufficient calcium to fulfill the body's daily requirement. Nutrition chemists have found that the ordinary mixed diet of Americans and Europeans at least among Caucasians is stifled and lowering, probably more often deficient in calcium than in any other chemical element.

The amount of calcium in water determines the degree of hardness or softness of the water, but the hardest water that is safe to drink (in taste) for drinking contains only a minute fraction of the amount of calcium (lime salts) one gets from any of the good food sources of calcium already mentioned.

Lime water is prepared by putting a lump of fresh (live, "unslaked) lime the size of egg, just so it is a good lump of lime, in a quart of water, preferably rain, snow or distilled water, in crock or china ware container. Let it stand over night. Pour off the clear liquid—that is the Lime Water. A tablespoonful of it with milk may be used each day, when used to make milk "agree" or set well on a sour upset stomach, or as a relief feeding to prevent formation of curds. Pure lime water contains no poisons, but pure milk does.

The fact that one may get too much calcium and develop hardening of the arteries, kidney disease, rheumatic or the like, from taking a daily ration of calcium with or without milk, in order to supplement the ordinary diet, has not, however, as yet been generally accepted by medical authorities as the proper warnings in the populace, but the public generally is getting more generally pertain to the effects of huge quantities of synthetic calcium, ranging from thirty to a hundred times the amount which health authorities regard as the minimum required to maintain health or freedom from deficiency disease conditions.

Foods calcium and vitamin D should be regarded as essentials in good nutrition, not as medicine.

What! No Stovepipe?

Distressed to note that your article on stoves said: "Portable gas heaters or fixed heaters with stovepipe connection are dangerous flue or with the cut door air are responsible for many deaths from carbon monoxide every winter."

I am certain that this should have read "Portable gas heaters or fixed heaters without stovepipe" etc. (H. J.)

Answer—You are right. I can't find the error. Can't help determine whether the error was created on the above-mentioned site.

Thanking you for co-operation,
Yours truly.

Cootles or Mites?

The doctor told me I have "cootles" or human lice under the arm. What is it?

Answer—Cootles are lice—they do not get under the arm. Perhaps the trouble is itch—scabies (thymus with pimples, pronounced three-syllable words), which is caused by barely visible mites burrowing under the skin. Lice and itch mites are dealt with in the booklet Parasites and Skin Troubles. A reader.

Frost, Cabinet Will be Sworn In Wednesday

Toronto, April 25 — (CP) — Leslie Frost and his revised Ontario Cabinet likely will be sworn into office next Wednesday, Premier Kennedy said Thursday.

Mr. Kennedy held probably his last press conference as premier, gathered up a few remaining papers from his desk and prepared to move back into the agriculture minister's office.

Mr. Kennedy and his Cabinet will submit their resignations to Lieutenant-Governor Ray Lawson. Mr. Frost, who was chosen Ontario Progressive Conservative leader at a three-day convention ending Wednesday, will be sworn in as premier then with most of the present Cabinet.

Mr. Frost conferred briefly with Premier Kennedy Thursday and said he hoped to have a few days rest before taking over the premiership. He did not attend Thursday's Cabinet meeting.

Hon. Russell T. Kelly, minister of health, will likely be the only member of the Cabinet who will not be present next week to submit his resignation. He suffered a heart attack during the recent session of the legislature and is still in hospital. It is believed his doctors have advised him to resign his portfolio.

Mr. Frost in the next few days will have to line up the Cabinet changes. Speculation in political circles is that Dr. M. Phillips, member of the legislature for Grey North, will succeed the health minister. Mr. Frost is expected to give up at least one of his two portfolios — provincial treasurer and mines minister.

Most prominently mentioned for the mines post is W. S. Gemmell of Sudbury. Other likely members of the new Cabinet are W. E. Hamilton, member for Wellington South and F. S. Thomas, Elgin.

Hon. Dana Porter, minister of education and provincial secretary, may give up the education portfolio. Premier Kennedy has announced that he will remain agriculture minister.

Hunt Retreats Communist-Led Huks for Slayers

Manila, April 29 — (AP) — An angry constabulary today went gunning in the retreats of the Communist Hukbalahaps for the ambush killers of a Philippine president's widow and 11 other persons.

The bodies of Mrs. Aurora Quezon, widow of Manuel L. Quezon, first president of the Philippines, her daughter, Maria Aurora, 33, and her son-in-law, Felipe Buencamino, III, lay in Manila funeral parlors. Thousands of grieving Filipinos visited the parlors.

There were cries from congressmen for martial law in the Huk country north of Manila, where the slaying occurred yesterday.

That land of violence produced a second ambush in the same general area only a few hours after Mrs. Quezon's body was waylaid. Mayor David Ventura of Santa Rosa, two members of the Philippine constabulary, and a civilian were reported killed.

There was official reluctance to identify the attackers as the armed peasants under Communist command who go by the name of Hukbalahaps.

But Manila newspapers and most citizens agreed with Brig.-Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, delegate to the United Nations, who said he believed the Huks committed the killings.

President Epidio Quirino blamed bandits. Manila newspapers thought he may have been the object of the ambush. He had planned to join the Quezon party but said at the last minute he was unable to go.

ACTRESS'S HUSBAND IN ROME

Rome, April 29 — (AP) — Ingrid Bergman's husband, Dr. Peter Lindstrom, arrived here today by plane amid rumors that the Swedish star planned to divorce him and marry Italian director Roberto Rossellini. An unidentified American woman met Lindstrom at Ciampino Airfield, and they drove to some undisclosed destination in Rome.

Communist Troops Seize Wuhing

By FRED HAMPSON

Shanghai, April 29 (AP)—Communist troops today seized Wuhing, a key point 40 miles north of Hangchow, the main prop for Shanghai.

Wuhing is 36 miles west of Kashing, control point on the Shanghai-Hangchow railroad.

A Nationalist communique said a drive on Shanghai appeared to be a move to protect the flank of the southbound Communist columns.

It asserted the force coming from the west had been checked about 37 miles west of the metropolis near Kunshan on the Shanghai-Nanking railway. Trains to Kunshan had quit running.

The Shanghai garrison reported the capture of Wuhing now were advancing south towards Hangchow. It earlier had reported the Communist 3rd army was operating in that region.

It appears that the main push is aimed now at Hangchow, not Shanghai. With the capture of Hangchow, Shanghai would be sealed off by land.

This could mean an attack on Shanghai will be delayed.

The garrison said the Communists were headed toward Wukang, 25 miles northwest of Hangchow.

The garrison charged the Communists were looting the countryside in occupied areas, searching for food.

Air lines said evacuation from here had slackened. Some flights reported a few vacancies and cancellations.

Mido MULTIFORT

THE SELF-WINDING WATCH WITH MULTIPLE PROTECTION!

"While fishing, the slip of my watch band came loose and my Mido walked all into the stream. 5 feet deep. A few days later, I made a search, found my watch in 4 inches of water, picked it up, cleaned it, oiled it, and placed it on a shelf. My friends laughed when I said I would wear the watch the next time I went fishing, but my Mido walked on the stream's own accord. This action took place on a Saturday morning and my Mido was still running when I left it on Monday morning to return to the city. Therefore, I advise my Mido owners to go fishing!"

Scallions on Toast Real Spring Treat

By KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, April 23. (CP)—(CP) The new green onions, or scallions, appearing on the market these days are just the thing to serve with "a dish of conversation" a bit of a tilt.

While these new onions may be delicate and young nevertheless they have a strong onion character. They usually are eaten as an appetizer or salad ingredient, but are delicious when served in other ways.

Scallions on toast are almost as dainty as asparagus. Home economists of the consumer section, Dominion department of agriculture, describe them as "a real spring treat."

Three scallions are allowed for each person. Cut them six inches in length and tie enough for each serving together in a bunch. Cook in boiling salted water for about twenty minutes or until tender and place each bunch on a slice of buttered toast, then untie. Pour a rich cheese sauce over the onions and serve at once.

Quick Cheese Sauce—Ingredients: one eight-ounce package of processed cheese, half cup milk.

Slowly melt cheese in top of a double boiler. Gradually add milk, stirring constantly until sauce is smooth. Yield: 1 1-3 cups sauce.

Pineapple Salad

If the housewife is smart she will make good use of those pineapples now appearing in such quantities in the stores.

She might make a Pineapple Salad—Cream together one-quarter pound of cream cheese and one tablespoon of salad dressing until smooth. Roll in balls which are placed in the centre of pineapple slices. Serve on lettuce with mayonnaise dressing.

Pineapple in dessert such Pineapple Rice Bavarian Cream also is delicious.— Ingredients: one tablespoon gelatine one-half cup cold water; one-quarter cup sugar; one-quarter teaspoon salt one cup cooked rice; one cup whipped cream; one teaspoon vanilla; one-half cup canned crushed pineapple.

Soak gelatine in cold water 5 minutes and dissolve over hot water. Add to hot rice as sugar, salt and vanilla. Beat well cool, and when it begins to thicken fold in and fruit whipped cream. Chill. Garnish with maraschino cherries. Serves six.

Rhubarb also is in the news at this time of the year. The house wife interested in preserving the fruit might try Rhubarb Conserve

Ingredients: eight cups rhubarb (cut in small pieces) five cups sugar; one cup chopped nuts one cup raisins; one orange (finely cut). Simmer slowly one hour.

Baked Rhubarb requires four cups rhubarb cut one one-inch pieces; one cup sugar; one cup warm water; orange or lemon peeling. Clean and cut rhubarb and pour boiling water over it.

Place a little rhubarb in a two-quart pan and sprinkle with sugar and the finely chopped peeling Continue to fill the pan in the same manner, then pour the cup of warm water over it, cover closely and bake in a slow oven 30 minutes.

Leslie Frost, Ontario Provincial Treasurer from Lindsay, Ont., scored a decisive victory in the four-man contest for the leadership of the Ontario Progressive Conservative party and the job that goes with it — the premiership of Ontario. Mr. Frost won on the first ballot, polling 534 votes to Attorney-General Leslie Blackwell's 344. Third place was A. Kelso Roberts with 121. Education Minister Dana Porter trailed with 65 ballots. Here the unanimously named leader is given a victory kiss by his charming wife.—Central Press Canadian.

Eat Tons Weekly On Hydro Project

Rapide Des Joachims, Que. — (CP) — The housewife may complain about the quantities of food her family consumes each week, but she can thank her lucky stars her shopping list doesn't read something like this: 160 (75-pound) bags of potatoes; 2,100 gallons of milk; 560 large cakes; 6,300 loaves bread.

That is only a portion of the food consumed weekly at the Des Joachims power development near here. The project, which is under the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission, employs 2,022

50th Wedding Anniversary Is Celebrated

Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Clarke of Corbyville, celebrated their golden wedding on April 19, at their home on the 5th Concession of Thurlow.

The bride, the former Maggie Jane Embury, only daughter of the late Roderick C. Embury of Belleville and Benjamin A. Clarke second son of the late S. J. and Mrs. Clarke of Foxboro, were married by the Rev. Dr. Carman, dinner of Belleville, uncle of the groom, at the home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Corham, George Street, Belleville.

The couple were guests of honor at the residence of the late Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Gardiner, it being a family reunion in honor of their wedding anniversary.

Later in the evening the bride and groom arrived at the home of the groom's parents on the 5th Concession, where they have lived ever since.

They have two children, Mrs. Walter (Mae) Sheffield on the 4th Thurlow, and Kenneth E. Clarke at home. They have four grandchildren and one great grandchildren.

Embury, brothers of the bride, joined with the immediate family to celebrate the bride's and groom's fifty years of married life in the same community on the same homestead they started married life.

The surprise anniversary party catered by Mrs. W. Sheffield, Mrs. Carl Sheffield and Mrs. Kenneth Clarke was served in the spacious living rooms. The tables were beautifully decorated with golden streamers, baskets of daffodils, crystal candelabra with golden candles and centred with a three-tiered wedding cake with gold trimmings, flanked by the crystal vase of cut flowers, presented by their daughter, Mrs. Walter Sheffield.

When the guests of honor cut the wedding cake the guests with Mrs. W. J. Embury, who proposed the toast to them.

This is the second golden wedding celebrated in this home. The first, the 50th anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. James Clarke, founder of the homestead. This is a fifth generation living on the same farm.

Mrs. Clarke received her guest in black sheer with matching accessories and her only ornament, a lovely necklace of amethyst and pearls, a wedding gift.

Many Gifts Received

They received many beautiful gifts including flowers, telegrams, cheques and cards, wishing them many more years of married life.

Mrs. Clarke takes a keen interest in young people's work in the church, and for several years was organist in the church. She has always helped in social activities in the community and throughout Thurlow. Mr. Clarke has always assisted her in her activities.

Those helping serve were Mrs. Arthur Clarke Belleville, Mrs. Carl Sheffield, Mrs. Ken Clarke, Margaret and Jack Clarke.

The evening was spent in social reminiscences with friends dropping in to extend their good wishes.

Gamp Jab Lands Aunty in Court

London (CP)— Aunt Lucy, who is a bit on the elderly side, jabbed a middle-aged man in the ribs with her parasol recently.

He resented the jab, and said so in a flow of violent language. Aunt Lucy, who never could stand swearing, raised her umbrella and brought it down on his head.

And that's how she came to be fined 10 shillings ($2) in police court.

"How was I to know he only approached me to get some change for the telephone?" she asked the magistrate.

BEAUTY

Offensive Breath

With two afflictions no girl should bear, offensive perspiration odor and an offensive breath. For the first trouble there are remedies to be found on cosmetic counters. They work like magic unless excessive skin moisture is caused by some physical ailment.

An unpleasant breath may be due to any number of causes. A painstaking oral hygiene does not avail a cure, then old family Doc should be consulted. Many girls, no doubt, have lost valuable opportunities of a social or commercial nature because of it. No boy wants to escort a young lady whose presence insults his olfactory motors. It is "goodbye forever" with him after the first date.

Teeth should be brushed after each meal and at bedtime. After the brushing a mouth solution should be used to flush away particles of food that the bristles have dislodged. An excellent rinse is made by dissolving a teaspoonful of baking soda and half a teaspoonful of salt in a glass of water. This formula has a health-giving effect upon the gums.

Infected teeth are a common cause. A twice-yearly visit to the dentist will keep watch on that trouble. Caries can be given attention; tartar will be removed. Infected tonsils may cause offensive breath.

Indigestion and chronic constipation may be contributing factors. The victim might experiment by cutting down on rich, heavy foods, keeping to a simple diet that will not give the digestive motors too much work to do. She should eat freely of what are called the regulators — cooked cereals, fruit, fruit juices and vegetables, especially green salads.

Nervous, jittery women are subject to unpleasant breath

Six glasses of water a day may prove beneficial. The daily bath with fairly hot water, a bland soap and a heavy brush will assist the skin to carry on as an organ of elimination. Deep breathing is essential so that stale air is forced out of the lowest cells of the lungs. All these practices help build health and vitality and, along with them, a clear complexion and good-looks generally.

Many beauty griefs can be traced to wrong living habits.

Nervous, jittery women are subject to an unpleasant breath, just as they often suffer from perspiration odor. Because of unrestrained emotional excitement they are afflicted with disturbances that take on various physical forms.

It is well to remember that peace of mind oils the physical machine and that between the physical and the mental there is a close bond. Any woman who permits herself to indulge in emotional fancies is inviting beauty sorrows to take up permanent residence.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Name not changed until divorce is final

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Two years ago, separated from my husband for four years, and during that time I have continued to use his name as I had always used it since our marriage. . . . let's say, "Mrs. John Smith". Now the divorce proceedings have just been started, and I'm confused as to what form of name is correct for me to use. During this time of waiting for my divorce should I continue to use "Mrs. John Smith" or change to "Mrs. Robinson (my maiden surname) Smith", the form I plan to use? I intend to use when the divorce has been granted both of my friends and two members of my family also have been divorced, but the latter form now because the divorce has been granted. Which is correct, please?

Dorothy R. S.

You should continue to use "Mrs. John Smith" until the divorce is final . . . and then use as you have correctly planned, "Mrs. Robinson Smith".

Young hostess "seconds" invitation to boy she doesn't know

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

For a party I am giving in June (it is a birthday party, but I'm not telling it is until after the guests have arrived), I would like to follow the suggestion you made in a column some weeks ago, about inviting to the boy invited by some of the girls', "seconding" the girls' invitations. Can you please suggest a sample form for this invitation? (I am to be sixteen years old, and this is my first party.)

Ellen

Gladly. . . and I'm happy that you are following this polite procedure as to the invitations. Your note might read something like this:

Dear David Smith,

Jan Soster has told me that she has invited you to come with her to my party . . . and this is my second invitation and to tell you how delighted Mother and I are that you can come. As you know, the party is at our house on Friday, June 6th, at eight o'clock.

Mother joins me in sending you hearty welcome.

Cordially,
Ellen Graham

No recessional in house wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am planning to have a house wedding in June. Is it true that at a house wedding, there is no recessional?

Flora

Yes, usually this is true. The only exception is sometimes at a very large, very formal wedding in a large house, where there is plenty of space for a recessional. But generally, at a house wedding, when the ceremony is over and the minister has offered his best wishes to the couple, the bride and groom kiss and then turn to receive the good wishes and congratulations of the guests.

Young daughter her mother's only wedding attendant

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am a widow, and in June I am marrying again, the groom-to-be being a widower. We are having a small, informal wedding in the chapel of the church to which we both belong. I have only one child, a 14-year-old daughter; she is a lovely child (please pardon my pride in her), and I would so much like to have her as my only attendant at my wedding. (And this is the wish too of my prospective groom.) Would this be at all correct?

Sara W.

Yes, absolutely correct, and a perfect plan. It will make everyone happy, and I know how proud your daughter will be, too!

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Letters and Answers
A shower for her future sister-in-law

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 20 years old and have a brother who is 23 and going to be married. I would like to show friendly feelings towards his fiancee and I am wondering whether or inviting her friends to a shower for her would be the proper thing to do.

"Puzzled".

Dear "Puzzled":

I think it would be a very nice thing and entirely proper, for you to give a shower for your future sister-in-law. Make up your mind what sort of shower you want to give and then, when you invite the friends, tell them whether it is to be a linen shower, a china shower, a lingerie shower, a kitchen shower or whatever, so that they will know the type of gift they should bring. If you can't decide what particular sort of party you would like to give, you can have a miscellaneous shower and let each person bring any sort of thing they would like.

A lucky girl doesn't appreciate a nice boy

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 14 and in love with a boy 16. My problem is that he never kisses me. Whenever he takes me to a party he never allows himself or me to take part in the kissing games. The others think he is a sissy but I don't.

How can I break him of this unusual habit? I think we are old enough to kiss.

Do you think we are really too young to be in love?

"D. D. J."

Dear "D.D.J.":

Let me answer your last question first. Yes, I do think you are too young to be in love and I am sure you know it yourself.

As for this kissing business, I think you would be much wiser to follow your boy friend's lead and keep your friendship on a completely wholesome basis. You can be just as good friends without indulging in kissing. So, if I were you, I wouldn't try to break him of the habit of being self-controlled and respectful toward you. If you only knew it, you are a very lucky girl to have such a nice boy to go around with.

Analyze Values Of Canned Food For Housewife

New York, (CP)— Some new kitchen tables show the housewife a way to help her family to health.

These tables aren't the kind you sit at. They are charts showing, for the first time on a national scale, the food values in 42 common canned foods. They tell how much a can of peas, beans apricots, orange juice, or kraut contains in calories, vitamins, proteins, carbohydrates, fats and minerals.

One finding is that you should drink or use the liquids in a can of solid foods. The liquids contains from 20 to 52 per cent of the vitamins in that food.

The charts are based on findings in research on 50,000 cans of food at nine leading universities. The study has been under way for six years, and is continuing. It is sponsored by the National Canners Association and the Can Manufacturers Institute.

The canned foods tested came from more than 500 canneries over the country. All cans were taken from regular production, including early-season, mid-season and end-of-season items in each category.

For Balanced Diet

They are intended to help dietitians, homemakers and military officials plan meals for a balanced diet that will meet daily needs for vitamins, proteins, minerals and other nutrients.

The tests show that canned foods keep a high ratio of the vitamins, minerals and calories of the natural foods, said Dr. E. F. Cameron, research director of the association.

Of the 42 most-used foods tested, the richest in vitamin C are red sweet peppers and pimientos. Next are orange juice and grapefruit juice; then turnip greens, tomatoes, sweet potatoes and sauerkraut. The best in vitamin A are carrots, sweet potatoes, spinach, turnip, green and apricots. Peas are the richest source of vitamin B-1, or thiamin. Corn gives the most niacin, the anti-pellagra vitamin. Mushrooms are richest in riboflavin, vitamin B-2.

The tests show that 82 per cent of the vitamin C in a can of white whole kernel corn is in the liquid portion. The juice in a can of green asparagus contains 38 per cent of the vitamin B-1 in the whole can.

20TH PARLIAMENT

Finance Minister Abbott took exception to a statement by Real Caouette, Union Des Electeurs member for Pontiac, that both the Conservative and Liberal governments were controlled by "money power." Mr. Caouette, too, while down for a question, had the suggestion of the chair.

There were no royal newsworthy government announcements in the opening day.

Mr. Diefenbaker disclosed that four North Star aircraft are standing by with Canadian Transport Command at Kingston to assist in the evacuation of Canadians from war-torn China.

Robert McCubbin, parliamentary assistant to Agriculture minister Gardiner, announced that the government had purchased 2,500,000 pounds of butter at the support price of 58 cents a pound wholesale.

Justice Minister Garson said the investigation into the Sunday-Monday disturbance at Colline Bay penitentiary is continuing.

The Senate, moving towards dissolution at a rapid clip, unanimously endorsed the North Atlantic Pact and gave final reading to government bills broadening old age pensions and authorizing provincial marketing boards to engage in inter-provincial and export trade in agricultural products.

White Paper Coming

Opposition members blistered the government on several points during the Commons supply debate.

Mr. Drew walloped it with the charge that it had been guided in deciding on dissolution this week by "other than political expediency." He established it as the defence document and repeated his suggestion that a standing committee be appointed to study defence policy.

Mr. Claxton replied that the equivalent of a British white paper is being prepared on defence plans and will be made public. It would have been out by mid-July, solution not come so early.

John Diefenbaker (PC-Lake Centre) warned again that Canada is losing her markets for farm produce. There was no sign of plans to keep trade alive.

Rodney Young (CCF-Vancouver Centre) and Stanley Knowles (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre) joined in calling for enactment of a railroad retirement act which would provide for these very contributions — employee, employer and government—into a fund for retired railway workers.

Garfield Case (PC-Grey North) brought in a suggestion that there be a contributory pension scheme for members of parliament.

Alan Cockeram (PC-York South) attacked government trade policies, charging that the government was keeping the true trade picture from the people. British markets were being lost, largely through the lack of an adequate trade policy.

Canadian Boy Scouts Proud Of 1948 as Year of Good Times

By MEL SUFRIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, April 29 (CP) — More than 100,000 Canadian Boy Scouts and Cubs today looked back with pride on a year of good turns during which they fought floods, helped beat power shortages and collected hundreds of dollars in charitable campaigns across the Dominion.

A 64-page record of good deeds for 1948 was placed before the annual meeting of the Canadian General Council of the Boy Scouts Association which opened today with Governor-General Vincent Massey presiding.

One of the most spectacular was the part played by Boy Scouts in flood relief work in the British Columbia and around Winnipeg and Ottawa.

In Ontario 12,000 Scouts and Wolf Cubs were enrolled as "Forest Wardens" during the winter power shortage, helping to keep the public aware of the need for conserving electric power.

Total Scout registration drops from 103,178 in 1947 to 102,566 — but the number of Scout groups increased from 3,492 to 3,651.

A total of 724 camps — 700 of the registered — were operated during the year.

The report said the Canadian Jamboree for 1949 would be held this summer at Connaught Army Camp, 15 miles from Ottawa.

The next meeting of the international committee on scouting would take place Aug. 4 at Elsenber, Norway and the Dominion Commissioner hoped to be present.

Last June, 15,000 copies of Lord Baden-Powell's book, Aids to Scoutmastership, in the Greek language, were shipped to Athens as a gift from Canadian Scouts.

Scouts collected waste paper valued at more than $100,000 during the year with much of the money going to finance the more than 700 camps in Canada.

Abbot Promises To Probe Reports

Ottawa, April 29 (CP)—Cases of relaing rentals to "inordinate heights" will be investigated, Finance Minister Abbott promised John R. MacNicol (PC-Davenport) in the Commons Thursday.

Mr. MacNicol declared that since the relaxing of rent controls some properties not subject to control had been raised as much as 800 per cent.

He asked if the Minister had any method of preventing "excessive and inordinate advances."

Mr. Abbott said there might have been increases as high as 800 per cent, but he thought these would be "extremely rare."

However, he said, he would look into the situation.

Would Ban More Cocktail Bars

Ottawa, April 29 (CP)— Controller Daniel McCann gave notice Thursday that he is going to propose a by-law to prohibit establishment of any more cocktail bars in Ottawa.

Similar to a ban on further liquor outlets in Toronto, Controller McCann's proposal, to be placed before Ottawa Board of Control reads:

"I am definitely opposed to having any more bars in the city," he said. "For that matter I think we'd be a lot better off if we didn't have any at all."

There was no immediate indication of whether his suggestion would receive any support from other members of Board of Control.

Stand by to Aid Canadian Nationals At Hong Kong

Ottawa, April 29 (CP) — Defence Minister Claxton said today in the Commons that a North Star aircraft and the Canadian destroyer Crescent are standing by in Hong Kong to assist Canadian Nationals in China.

Mr. Claxton, Acting Minister of External Affairs, said Canadians in Shanghai were warned April 25 to leave there. Those wishing to leave were assisted in obtaining passage on a Dutch ship bound for Hong Kong.

Gordon Graydon (PC-Peel) asked how many Canadians there are in China. Mr. Claxton said his recollection was there were about 941 Canadians in all China. Quite a number of Canadian missionaries had decided to remain in Communist-held territory.

MAID OF MIST CAPTAIN RETIRES

Niagara Falls, April 29 (CP)— Captain of the Maid of the Mist steamboat that runs the Niagara River, Robert Graham has retired after 10 years' service. His son-in-law, Clifford Keats, formerly of the Royal Canadian Navy, will take over. Keats was mate on the boat last year.

Legislation in Maritimes On Margarine Cross-section Of Views on Sale, Manufacture

By IRVING C. WHYNOT
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Halifax, April 29 (CP)—Legislation in the Maritime Provinces —now including Newfoundland —governing the manufacture of margarine is not thought on what should be done about the sale and manufacture of margarine.

Here's a cross-section:

Newfoundland—Open sale and manufacture of the butter substitute. This has been the case for years.

Prince Edward Island—Sale of the product banned.

Nova Scotia—The cabinet has been given power to regulate standards of quality and color. The province also has made plans regulations concerning use of margarine in restaurants.

New Brunswick—Follows also the tack of Nova Scotia regarding standards. The province also has passed regulations regarding colors-marked packages.

Reason for this diversified legislation is obvious. Newfoundland has almost no agriculture and its economy depends for the most part on the export of a few staple products—fish, lumber and forest products and minerals. It must import nearly all its foodstuffs.

On the other hand, Prince Edward Island is almost wholly an agriculture province. While Newfoundland is glad to get the cheaper margarine, Prince Edward Island feels it must protect its farmers.

Nova Scotia and New Brunswick have more diestic economies. They have industries as well as farms. For instance, manufacturing is the biggest business in Nova Scotia and fishing second—$42,000,000 a year and $31,000,000 respectively.

While the two isolated Maritime provinces feel they should cater to the farmer, they also have to see that urban workers are looked after as well in their margarine legislation.

Newfoundland's wide use of margarine before Confederation led to a special clause in the union terms that the product would not be shipped to other provinces.

Following the removal of the Federal ban on margarine sale and manufacture, Prince Edward Island in 1927 was the first province to enact legislation to ban production and sale.

Churchill Sees Further Progress Towards Ideal

London, April 29 (AP)— Winston Churchill Thursday hailed the new Commonwealth arrangement as a possible step toward merging the United States with a United Europe.

He said the world might now see coming into view an "even larger synthesis of states and nations," comprising both the United States of America and a united Europe.

Such an association, he continued, might bring it to "a harassed and struggling humanity real security and freedom for hearth and home."

Commenting on India's decision to remain in the Commonwealth as a sovereign republic, Churchill said he was "unfeignedly glad that an impassable gulf has not opened between the new India and the British Empire and Commonwealth of Nations, or between our famous past in India and our anxious present all over the world."

FREIGHT CRASHES REAR OF ANOTHER FREIGHT

Hamilton, April 29 (AP) — An eastbound Pennsylvania freight train crashed early today into the rear of another freight near here. No one was injured, although the locomotive of the second train overturned and the caboose it struck caught fire.

Historic Past of Old London Slowly, Steadily Disappears

By H. L. JONES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, April 29 (CP)—Links with the historic past are slowly but steadily disappearing from a changing London. And Londoners can't help being just a trifle nostalgic.

Last autumn they watched the last of the horse-drawn Royal mail carts that had carried the mails for more than 100 years. Now, they are told the tiny, asthmatic street cars that rattle along the embankment and from mostly south of the Thames, are next to go.

It's just the mechanized age catching up.

When the mail carts went, so went a link with the days of the old penny post when the horse-drawn mail coaches ranged as far as Oxford and Watford.

In announcing plans to replace the old "trolleys," the London transport executive said conversion to buses would take two or three years to complete. Replacement won't begin until 1950.

The transportation executive, who was the first mass transportation system in the world, say the change is strictly disagreeable but economical.

At present they are losing £1,000,000 ($4,000,000) a year.

It is estimated that it will take about 1,000 buses to replace the more than 800 trams and the trolley-buses that operate. This will cost about £10,000,000.

The first tram-horse-drawn system was put on in 1861. It was not until 1870 that the first steam tram service got going from Brixton station to Kennington Gate.

Electric trams came in 1901 and ran on two sections between Hammersmith and Shepherd's Bush to kew Bridge and from Shepherd's Bush to Acton.

But these have long since become virtues of the age and silent trolley buses now traverse these historic routes.

Egypt of 3,000 Years Ago Seen In Excavations of Nile Fortress

By HAIG NICOLSON

Dongola, Northern Sudan, April 29 (Reuters) —Footprints made 3,000 years ago by man and beast, the remains of a palace and evidence of a once flourishing cult, have been found during excavations on the site of the Egyptian town of Amara near here.

The excavations, carried out by both Egyptian and Sudan officials led by P.L. Shinnie, commissioner for archaeology to the Sudan government, confirmed that the ancient Nile fortress town was built on an island as the capital of Egypt's rule over the half of the Egyptian-African empire.

Archaeologists have been a large and important town and was probably the centre of the Egyptian administration at the time and the seat of the governor general from the reign of Seti One (about 1314 B.C.) for about 300 years.

Work during the season was concentrated on two areas one inside and the other outside the town. The palace discovered last season, probably the governor-general's has at its eastern end a fine street which must have been one of the main thoroughfares in the town.

Three Rommel Houses Found

Several small three-roomed houses were also unearthed. The houses, which appear to have comprised a bedroom, living room and entrance hall used as a kitchen, were built against the north wall of the palace. They may have been the homes of artisans employed in the palace.

The expedition found the remains of a vegetable or flower garden. In the centre of the garden was a small building which must have been a shrine but was later used as a house, perhaps by a gardener.

It is thought this shrine was used for snake worshipping.

In two pots were the skeletons of dogs and snakes, in one case the snake had swallowed itself around the dog and the two skeletons were closely intertwined. The snakes all appear to have been cyphons and are nowadays are only found several hundred miles south of here.

Another room of larger building discovered is thought to be a temple. It was found on the edge of the river bank and though no inscription was found to tell its story, one stone block bore the

Sunday School Lesson of the Week

Jesus as the People's Choice

ROY L. SMITH

There are, probably, few incidents in all the New Testament which have been subject to more misunderstanding than that which has come to be known as "the triumphal entry." Generally associated with Palm Sunday, it has been surrounded, also, by much theological speculation that its practical and political significance has been almost completely lost. It is only as we sense something of the unrest of the times, of the longing of the people, and of the chicanery of the leaders, that we discover the real meaning of the event.

The Radicalism of Galilee

The population of Galilee, the northernmost province of Palestine, was a conglomerate. There were, of course, the original Hebrews, but they were probably in the minority. The land had been overrun by at least half a dozen conquerors at different times, the Jewish population having been moved out or displaced in the process. Then, in the days of Alexander the Great, large numbers of Greeks had been transplanted and established in colonies just east of the Sea of Galilee. The entire area seethed with unrest and was one of the most troublesome spots in all the Roman Empire. A strong political party known as the Zealots maintained its headquarters in Galilee and lost no opportunity to foster unrest and make trouble for the government.

An Ancient Feud

At the time of the return of the Jews from their Babylonian exile two individuals were made responsible for the government in Judea—one a priest and the other a descendant of David, the greatest of all the Hebrew kings. The latter died out long after he was appointed by the Persians and thereafter the priestly line continued in authority. But the Davidic line was due for the return of the plain people and a considerable body of them dreamed of the day when it would supplant the priestly line.

The farmers and peasants generally supported the claims of the Davidic line, and could be sure of a ready chance to support one of its representatives had such a one risen to bid for power. The line was drawn very sharply between the rich and aristocratic Sadducees of Jesus' day, and the exploited farmers and fishermen. The ancient law exempted the priestly class from all taxation, and this imposed the tax load over on the farmers. Feeling ran high on the subject in Jesus' day, but the rural folk were leaderless.

The province of Galilee was inhabited in large part by farmers and peasants. According to the operation of the ancient law the temple tax burden fell heaviest upon them for the 20,000 priests attached to the Temple in Jerusalem went scot free, and too, merchants and traders not being subject to any taxation, the rich money eaters of the capital were in a highly favored position. The resentment in Galilee was bitter. The feud between the two areas, Jerusalem and Galilee, was intense, with Jerusalem despising Galilee, and Galilee in turn hating the favored rich of Jerusalem.

Jesus Offered Leadership

Because Jesus was known to be of the house of David, and because of his vast popularity with the masses, he was in a position to assume a leadership of the peasants which might have made him a formidable force in the situation.

There seems to be some reason for believing that his journey to Jerusalem may have been his first "official visit" to the Temple since his appearance as a provincial leader. Undoubtedly the multitudes who swarmed the highways from the north down to Jerusalem looked upon his presence among them as an indication of his intention to raise the standard of revolt.

At any rate, the Galileans believed that in Jesus they had at long last found a champion. There was something about him that gave promise of relief.

The shouting throngs were not inspired by any great or profound religious conviction at the moment that they hailed him as their king. They believed he was leading them on to Jerusalem for the purpose of doing something to redress their ancient wrongs.

The authorities in Jerusalem were quick to sense the danger in the situation and immediately set out to find some pretext on the basis of which they could imprison him and get him out of the way. The fact that it took them the best part of six days is an indication of the discreet behaviour of the Master, and his complete refusal to proceed as a revolutionary. Even when he was arrested it was on a trumped up charge which was altogether unrelated to the facts.

WE'LL MEET AGAIN

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

"It isn't," he said, "for sale."

Gould came back to the penthouse in Millicent Gregg's foreign car driven by a French chauffeur, Guy thought of Patti's ecstatic note when she heard of her engagement to Gregg. "Darling, it's too divine," Patti had scribbled in purple ink. "Didn't I tell you he could give you the world? You've come to your senses at last. I'm proud of you and I want you to bring him to Washington. I promise you a round of parties. I do want every one to know you're darling. Of course I'm going to be your matron of honor!"

Diana had written from Virginia, "I've never given you much advice, my dear, because very often these modern - day daughters far surpass their mothers in wisdom. Most of all I want you to be happy. Guy, dear, I don't want you to miss anything. And you can be given the whole world and still miss the one thing that is the most important thing. Remember that the wrong kind of thing in life are sweeter because of the suffering. That's why they are worth while—because the bitter is mixed with the sweet."

Millicent was pouring cocktails on the patio of the penthouse when Guy got home.

She took the fragile glass and sipped the bright liquid. "Hm—good it was, to sit in the sun once more and feel rested and free! How good it was to be out of the shop! Life tasted sweet again, living on Millicent's penthouse that overlooked Manhattan, and shopping with Millicent who said, "Guy, you must make for a girl with red hair." Gay always protested and Millicent always said, "Try it on. If I want to buy you a dress, why shouldn't I?"

Gay lifted her face to the sun. "I had forgotten that people lived like this, Millicent."

"You went through a phase. A year from now you will have forgotten it."

"I don't think I want to forget it. It was good for me."

Millicent clasped her slim fevered fingers.

"I want you to climb again, Gay, to the top of the ladder. I want to see the people who snubbed you come back to you like moths toward a flame. Oh, you'll be sweet to them because you are sweet, but you'll get a feeling of triumph. Your house, your parties, your clothes will be the finest in New York. And I'm going to watch your climb proudly. You are a winner, Gay."

Guy looked at her cool forehead.

"You don't have to give him up, Gay. He's already lucky, being your child and Miss a."

"You don't very elegant, Gay. All the rough edges that working and scrimping gave you are worn off. You're polished and perfect again. We heard from Chris yesterday."

Gay's lashes swept downward. Chris — his name . . . Deep laughter, warm eyes, intensely alive, an old hat, a pipe between strong white teeth . . . Chris . . .

"Has he married Evelyn Ewing?"

"He doesn't say anything about marrying her. He said she was a good sport and they had fun together. She comes to his room and drags him away from his typewriter and makes him play tennis with her. Gay, what do you do these days?"

"I'm not very useful, Penny. I have breakfast on the patio and then I read the paper and telephone to Millicent. Then the hairdresser and manicurist comes. Millicent and I shop for my trousseau and have cocktails before dinner. At night I put on a new dress and go dancing with Gregg."

"But don't you think you'll get awfully tired of that?" Penny laughed. "Mac and I don't know what we're going to do from now day to the next. It's fun."

She looked at Gay gravely. "Mac and Chris and I love you, Gay. Don't let the polish and veneer, lovely as it looks, become so hard that we lose you."

Gay got up quickly. "That's what scares me, Penny — scares me!"

There was a restrained quietness about Gay at dinner in the cool spacious dining room.

Gregg thought, "Wherever she sees Penny, she's like this. Penny is a sweet child and she's been good to her, but when Gay is my wife, I can't let her be friends with a fashion artist and an aviator who will never fly again. It's unkind but we're from different worlds."

Several hours later he held her close to him while they danced on the polished floor atop a tall hotel. He loved her. Of that he was sure. But there was, mixed with his love, a tremendous pride in exhibiting her. She was gracious and beautiful and he had dragged her from depths. He liked to think, "You snubbed her, cut her, hurt her, but as my wife you'll have to be nice to her again. Money is power."

He said, "I bought a yacht today, Gay, a beautiful white thing for you. We'll have to have a christening party and I'll leave the name up to you."

"We won't give it my name, Gregg. What do you suggest?"

"I'd thought of — Fidelis."

She looked up and her expression was half frown, half smile.

"Why — Fidelis?"

"It will be a good reminder."

"Do you think I'll need a reminder to keep us faithful?"

Faithful to you, yes, she thought, but my mind will sometimes go back to a man who taught me so much. It will go back to Chris Mallory and in my mind I'll sit on a balcony in Nassau with him beneath the stars and wish he'd kiss me again as he kissed me one night . . .

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Ballered but unbloody thus far over verbal barrages from the newly-formed Suckers Incorporated, the get-rich-quick Joes and Janes who fell for the Pyramid Club racket, we are still able to get the two forefingers working on the office mill. Thanks a lot to sympathetic correspondents who filled the desk mail-bag this morning—ninety-nine per cent of whom agreed with us that suckers include something more than the tasty fish which swims upstream in the Sorbay.

In any event the originators of the scheme "cleaned up" and the chronic-cone Latelies are left holding the well-known bag. Already growls of dissension are echoing from all parts of the city because the same-thinking Joes and Janes are not falling for the get-rich-quick gaff. But here's a tip. There's another racket springing up—and this time the boys are not playing for peanuts. "You simply can't lose" says the sucker bait. It's a two buck touch, mes amigos, and you get your money back as soon as you discover a pair of suckers who fall for the line. The payoff nets the first on the list well over $2,000 bucks. So get in quick—and then get out.

Yep, me bearties, the people who fell for the Pyramid racket have crossed us off their blue books. Our social position is next to nothing, and we expect to get waylaid and blackjacked any night now. The family phone tinkled at five of the clock yesterday morning—but whoever called was disappointed.

* * *

We did go for one telephone call, however, and brother, what a blast. "Lissem you mbbegotten brainless punk, who the H... ever told you, you were a newspaperman. That gaffe-cracker you wrear for a head should be locked in brine. No wonder you retire when you walk. It's the remnants of what was good love in lieu of brains. I just called off the Pyramid Club—and you'll get paid off in another manner if you don't lay off people who are having a lot of fun. Go soak your bean, idiot!"

Okay, Sucker, we'll take the chance.

This newspaper in introducing a brilliant golf feature starting today. It is written by Stanley Kertes, amateur golf champion par excellent who describes the game and teaches its fine points in a manner comparable to the late Bobby with the clubs. It is a superb stick full of golf instruction, beautifully illustrated etc. If you are a dub or a champion don't fail to read these highly interesting and informative articles. The feature is headed "Better Golf."

The Belleville Commercial Softball League is holding a meeting tonight in Kiwanis Centre starting at 8 o'clock. Dennis Informe us. All entries must be in, although the deadline is set for May 1st. All coaches and managers of contested teams and those intending to enter are requested to be present. Kiwanis Centre at 8 o'clock.

The bobby-soxers should be out in force on Saturday night in the Arena when Mike "Iron Duke" Sharpe leaps into the ring for his most stingy-ry with Belleville's champion Fred Atkins. Handsome and powerful, big Mike is one of the finest physical sights of the grappling great and he has the stuff to back up his fine appearance. This will be young Michael's first appearance at the Bayshore and he is confident he will not snuff it. Sharpe has mixed with Whipper Billy Watson twice in the past season but although he came close on both occasions he still missed out.

Now Iron Mike thinks his time has come for a win and he will be throwing those mighty elbows in an attempt to open up Atkin's eyes. So sign on his dreaded bold the Sharpe Stretcher. That little manoeuvre has been eminently successful any time large Mike has been able to crack it on. However Atkins is a strong experienced matman who will not hesitate to slug it out if he finds the going rough and in that department he might have an edge on the six foot six inch Sharpe.

* * *

The battle of the boards will be re-fought when Big Ben Morgan ties into the also bearded Cardiff Giant, in the semi-final. Art Brady who is also known as the Van Johnson of wrestling comes in to test the other Sharpe brother, Ben. The three bouts should have the mat fans in even more than their customary interested state and the main joust is likely to raise the temperature all-round.

100,000 Will Be on Grounds To View Game

London, April 29 (CP)— 100,000 rabid fans will jam huge Wembley Stadium tomorrow to watch the year's biggest soccer game, the Football Association Cup final.

This season it's Wolverhampton Wanderers and Leicester City that will clash for the trophy Manchester United won a year ago.

The betting strongly favors the Wanderers, who currently are placed well up in the English League's first division, while Leicester City is struggling near the bottom of the second division. But it's axiomatic that anything can happen in a cup final.

An occupational "disease" which attacks finalists is a nasty "infection" called "Wembley nerves." When the vast multitude packed along the stadium's huge terraces, lets out its roar it is reputed to be the most paralyzed player into making blunders.

Something even more tangible in the way of disaster already has struck down two finalists. Both have injury lists long enough to fill a week of wards.

Who will win? No telling. Bookmakers have made the Wolves 4-to-9 favorites but that doesn't discourage Leicester, which at one point was a 100-to-1 shot to make the cup final.

The team which first succumbs to "Wembley nerves" likely will lose. Seldom in the past has a finalist conceded the first goal and won the cup.

Now there's a pair of handsome huskies who should make the hearts of feminine fandom go pitter-patter at Memorial Arena tomorrow night when they tangle in the main bout of the weekend wrestling card. They are Golden Boy Mike Sharpe, of Hamilton, well-known to the faithful here, and British Empire Champion Fred Atkins, from Australia. Atkins wrestled here last season and became an overnight favorite. Mike is not exactly disliked in these parts and the two should furnish some thrilling entertainment for the fans. Brother Ben Sharpe is also on the card meeting Art Brady while the Cardiff Giant clashes with Big Ben Morgan, another 300-pounder.

Better Golf

By Sam Snead

Pictured is a player chipping to the green. Notice that he uses an open stance with heels close together, the left foot noticeably further back of the direction the ball must take if the right. That's right. He bends well over the ball, the backswing is short for control and accuracy and this stance above described will greatly properly limits the backswing. In the down stroke or hit that shot the player will use wrist action with the left arm guiding the club into the ball which you position, as of course you know, nearer your right foot than the left, to be sure that the clubface hits the ball before it reaches the low point in the arc of your swing. And the more lofted the club you use the nearer the right foot the ball is positioned, so that the clubface contacts the ball before the clubhead quite reaches the bottom of its arc. Thus the loft of the club is permitted to do its work properly. Let the club face do its work. Don't try to help it by scooping the ball. That's fatal.—(Copyright 1949, John F. Dille Co.)

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, April 29 — (AP)— Top story that came out of this week's college publicity convention was an off-the-record account of a pre-season scrimmage between two nameless United States educational institutions — The day after they met, a freshman tackler who had looked good for the "home" school was unaccountably missing . . . Overcome the suspicion, the coach telephoned his rival, who admitted the kid was on his campus but disclaimed any knowledge of how he got there . . . A few minutes later the phone rang at the "home" school and the kid spoke: "Coach, I don't like it here; I'd like to come back." . . . "Okay, catch a bus and come on," the coach replied . . . the kid protested: "I haven't any money. Coach so-and-so just gave me enough to get here . . . The home coach lost patience. "You go tell coach so-and-so to give you enough to get back," he ordered . . . and that's just what happened.

One-minute Sports Page

Besides inviting groups of disabled war veterans to have lunch at his expense before seeing ball games for free, Frank Lawrence of the Portsmouth, Va., Cubs will admit school children free to all Cub home games this season in percentage of owning a bank as well as a ball club.

New nickname for the Green Bay Packers is "Curly Lambeau's Wild West Show" since the coach Tom Stidham, who is part Osage Indian, and backfield coach Bob Snyder, part Huron, have joined quarterback Jack Jacobs, who is three-quarters Cree . . . If this combination doesn't win, the fans likely will give Curly back to the Indians.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

Batting— Ted Williams, Red Sox, led Boston to 12-5 romp over Philadelphia with perfect day at bat, including his first 1949 homer.

Pitching — Ken Raffensberger, Reds, shut out Chicago with seven hits to give Cincinnati 2-0 victory.

It's Bad News for Pitchers In American Loop, Williams Finds Home-Run Range Again

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Pitchers in the American League had better beware ... Ted Williams has found the home run range again.

Ted is back in the groove after having to be content with singles and doubles in the first part of the season. He had a big day Thursday with his first 1952 homer, a single and three walks for a perfect record against Philadelphia Athletics. He drove in five runs and contributed to the rout of the A's pitcher from Toronto, Dick Fowler and a 13-5 victory.

New York Yankees downed Washington 6-2 behind the pitching of Ed Lopat who won his third straight game.

Rookies Dick Kryhoski, with two singles and a triple, and Gene Woodling with a single and triple led the attack on Russ Scarborough for the Yank's eighth victory in 10 starts.

Johnny Groth and Jack Graham the two sensational rookies each had their fourth home run as St. Louis Browns whipped Detroit Tigers 9-6. Groth got his with the bases loaded in his second grand slam. He has extended his season hitting streak to nine games.

The Brownies pounced four Detroit pitchers, including loser Saul Rogovin, for 15 hits and a sweep of the two game set.

Cleveland Indians and Chicago White Sox game not scheduled.

In the National League, both Stan Rojek of Pittsburgh Pirates hit on the head at St. Louis Wednesday night, and Bob Elliott of Boston Braves pounced at Philadelphia Wednesday were out of action Thursday.

Pete Castiglione filled in for Rojek, getting three hits, as the Pirates lost 4-3 to St. Louis Cardinals behind the eight hit pitching of Gerry Staley who copped his second straight.

Elliott's place was taken by Connie Ryan, who contributed two hits in Boston's 5-1 romp over the Phillies. Ryan, who collected only three hits, all singles, in outpitching Jocko Thompson.

Brooklyn Dodgers bombed New York Giants 15-2, moving into a first place tie with the Braves. While the Dodgers ripped the Giants' pitchers to shreds, Ralph Branca doled out only four hits for his third straight decision.

Ken Raffensberger, Cincinnati's crafty southpaw ace hurler, shut out Chicago Cubs 2-0 with seven hits.

Leo Durocher Accused of Hitting Brooklyn Fan

New York, April 25 — (AP)— Leo Durocher was in trouble again, but today nobody knew just how much.

The quick-tempered manager of New York Giants was accused by a Brooklyn fan of punching and kicking him Thursday at the Polo Grounds. Durocher, however, denied he hit anybody.

From a hospital cot, 22-year-old Fred Boysen said he would bring charges of assault-against Durocher.

Boysen, a vociferous Brooklyn rooter, said he was attacked on the playing field after Durocher's Giants had been whipped 15-3 by the Dodgers.

Durocher gave this version of the incident:

"As I was crossing the field to the dressing room I recall somebody snatching at my cap. I walked it back and kept walking. This sort of thing happens every day. I was surrounded by members of the Giants team and there were hundreds of spectators on the field. Do you think I could knock somebody down in front of them?"

Boysen said he had been razzing the Giants' manager from a box behind the New York dugout. He gave this version:

"After the game my cousin and I went on the field. We were passing first base on our way over to talk to Jackie Robinson. Durocher came up behind me. He grabbed and punched me. As I tried to get up — was dizzy — he kicked me in the stomach."

The incident assumed added importance because of Durocher's stormy career.

He was banished for the 1941 season by Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler for conduct detrimental to the game. Durocher was then manager of Brooklyn.

Baseball Chandler said he had received no official report of the most recent fracas and that he had no comment.

Blue Grass Stakes Won by Halt

Lexington, Ky., April 25—(AP) — A horse mis-named Halt yesterday gave Kentucky Derby guessers an opportunity to reconsider.

Olympia, Old Rockport and Johns Joy finished ever for the "pinch hitter" out of Mrs. Royce G. Martin's stable.

Halt, given his Derby chance only after Mrs. Martin's Sport Page developed a leg ailment that wouldn't heal in time for Derby training, won Keeneland's $20,000 Blue Grass Stakes yesterday for the two horses that were supposed to be second ten to Olympia, the favorite.

Old Rockport and Johns Joy were in the four-horse, all-Derby field that Halt Conquered to capture fun recognition in Derby billing.

Johns Joy, carrying five pounds more than the winner and with Johnny Longden up, was just a nose away from victory. He finished second after setting the pace all the way to the wire. Wine Liste, ridden by Ted Atkinson, came third.

Pike Will Coach Junior A Team From Guelph

(By The Canadian Press)

Al Pike, former New York Ranger star in the National Hockey League, said Thursday night at Winnipeg he would coach Guelph Biltmores next season in the O.H.A. Junior "A" circuit.

Pike said he had not signed a contract yet but had reached a "gentlemen's agreement" with Guelph club officials.

With Rangers five seasons, and before that on a Winnipeg Memorial Cup championship team, Pike was coach of Winnipeg senior Nationals for the last two years. During last season he also coached Winnipeg's junior Black Hawks.

"The extra three years again in junior hockey, plus the price at which he sold his services should give him a little neat egg to start with and ample time to pursue his education or trade in order to fit him for business after his hockey career is ended," Malek Osher Sports

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, April 25 (CP) — At least two Ontario sports columnists agree with the Kitchener Sports Association's suggestion that junior hockey players would be better off each an age limit of 21.

Laurie (Galt Reporter) Brain says that if the National Hockey League wants to help young players, it could adopt a "hands-off" policy until a player has attained the age of 18, make the bidding for his services open to all N.H.L. clubs and may the best price win.

"Then the player could be farmed out to the junior club of his choice and still have three years in which to mature into a full-fledged professional," Brain says. He adds:

"The extra three years again in junior hockey, plus the price at which he sold his services should give him a little neat egg to start with and ample time to pursue his education or trade in order to fit him for business after his hockey career is ended."

Increasing the junior hockey age-limit would bring junior hockey players into the same bracket as juniors of other sports says Chide (Stratford Beacon-Herald) Appel.

"Junior hockey calls for players 20 after Nov. 1. Junior baseball's rule is 21 after May 1. Junior golf sets the date as 21 after Sept. 1. Other sports have different deadlines, and it would seem only sensible for all of them to have the same age limit for juniors and the same deadline," says Appel.

"The uniformity would remove a heap of misunderstanding and relieve officers of considerable grief."

New Angle

The Toronto Maple Leaf ball club has a neat angle to sell fans the idea of afternoon games. The International League club advised fans to purchase box seats and then go to the games.

A sharp salesman taking a customer out to a ball game might twist the unwitting customer's "yes, nice try," into "yes I'll buy."

Montreal Royals Tag Brandon 3-2 In First Game

Winnipeg, April 29 — (CP) — Montreal Royals, tagged with the 1951 championship, got their start of their Memorial Cup final against Brandon Wheat Kings, Tuesday command a little more respect from the hasty westerners who put them on the short end of the betting odds.

The Royals edged the highly-touted Wheat Kings 3-2 in the opening game last night of the best-of-seven playoff series for the prized Memorial Cup, and Coach Dick Miller figures they only played a "fair" game.

Wheat Kings, however, look on the loss as a good omen, for they dropped the opening game of two previous playoff series, then came back to win. Too, they have a season record of one loss-two ties-seven decisive games, and are back on home ice for the second game Saturday night.

Although outweighed, Royals traded bump-for-bump with the bruising Wheat Kings and took advantage of every break to sew up the game in the second period after blowing a two-goal first-period lead.

Fast-breaking Bert Herschfeld tallied the payoff goal at 9:28 in the last session with an assist by Neale Langill's passout from behind the Brandon net past goalkeeper Ray Frederick off a defending player's leg.

Skippy Burchell and Matt Bendoit put Royals two up in the first session only to see Ray Benton and Angus Juckes tie the count in the second.

Tempers Held In Check

Despite the 17 minor penalties and a 10-minute misconduct to Herschfeld for arguing, tempers were held on an even keel for most of the speedy contest.

The game was delayed about four minutes when rink officials cleaned the ice of peanuts, programs and one bottle tossed by fans following an elbowing penalty to Bob Chrystal. Brandon defenceman, in the last session.

In the second period when Glen Sonmor and Dick Moore were serving double penalties for high-sticking and roughing on the same play, Brandon tied the count.

Both teams started off at a terrific pace and Brandon only were kept off the score sheet by the brilliant goaltending of Slim Bestland and their own wild shooting.

Royals Take Lead

Royals took the lead when Burchell skipped through the defence after Gord Armstrong flipped him a pass. He skated in on Frederick and let loose with a backhander which caught the left corner. The eastern champions were two up, when Fildes passed out from behind the Brandon cage and Benoit banged the rubber into the rigging.

Beston took a double to relay from Frank King, a standout all night, and Walt Pawlyshyn to bang the goal past Bless for Brandon's first goal. Then Juckes' tying counter came about two minutes later when he grabbed a faceoff by the Royals' net and beat the agile Montreal custodian.

Rest from the powerful rink rights and more than 5,000 perspiring fans, many of whom were in shirt sleeves, softened the ice in the final session which produced the winning goal by Herschfeld.

The game was played after a day in which the thermometer touched a record — for the day — of 87 degrees.

Port Colborne Merchants Win Over Gananoque

Toronto, April 29 — (CP) — Port Colborne Merchants downed Gananoque Legionnaires 10-3 in a sudden-death game here Thursday night to win the Ontario Hockey Association's Intermediate A championship. The Merchants thus won the best-of-five series 3-2 after an O. H. A. official was declared reversed a previous win over Gananoque.

Port Colborne now meets Rouyn, Que., Flashes for the Eastern Canada Intermediate honors.

A crowd of 1,500 saw Port Colborne take a 2-1 lead in the first period and increase it to 5-2 in the second and then score five goals in the third.

Both teams played wide open hockey all the way but the Merchantmen's strong attack and stellar goaltending kept Gananoque from coming closer to evening the count in the late stages.

Jack Cochrane and Jack Gibson were standouts for Port Colborne, each getting two goals apiece. George Clark, Pink Pinch, Ewen Castle, Fraser Kilpatrick, Lester Mine and Frank Smith were the other goal scorers for Port Colborne. Jim Forbes turned in a brilliant effort in the nets.

Bingo Jackson was the mainstay and the star for Gananoque accounting for two of the three goals. Neil McCarney scored the only other marker for Legionnaires.

Port Colborne opened the scoring early in the first period when winger Jack Gibson caught the upper corner of the net.

Bingo Jackson evened the count for Legionnaires midway in the frame but Pink Pinch scored on a wild scramble in front of the net to move Merchantmen into a goal lead at the end of the first period.

Gananoque rallied early in the second frame when Niel McCarney tied the count, but Merchantmen came back with three quick goals in a series of scoring plays to widen the score.

Lester Mine scored the first marker, slamming in a pass from in front of the goal. Gerry Leitch added the next one when he pilfered goalie Joe McDonald to one side and fired into the open corner. Pink tallied his second goal of the night to end the scoring in the period when he roared in and fired a quick wrist shot home.

In the third frame the Port Colborne group had the scoring spree, endings to themselves, blasting five goals behind happier McDonald.

Gananoque's only goal of the final period came when Port Colborne's goalie, Jim Forbes, skated out of his net in the final seconds of the game and Jackson roared in to score on the open net for his second counter of the night.

South was declarer at a small slam contract of six diamonds. The opening lead from west was the club ten which was taken in south with the ace, of course.

The obvious first concern of declarer is to find out who holds the heart ace. Then there may be an additional worry as to whether a couple of finesses will be necessary.

A trump to the queen in dummy won the next trick. Another trump trick was taken with the south ace of diamonds. Then the heart ten was led toward the dummy with a prayer.

West decided to go up at once with the ace and promptly returned a heart. Fearing that east might have the queen, dummy king took this second heart trick. To finesse was too dangerous.

A heart return from dummy was ruffed in south. When the queen of hearts fell from west on this trick the rest was easy. There was no further any need for taking a spade finesse.

A small spade to the dummy ace was won and the two remaining hearts in dummy were led. On these were slufffed two small spades from the south hand. This meant there were no spade losers.

West could have given declarer a temporary spasm of worry by playing low on the first heart lead. It so happens however, that it would have made no difference what dummy did in this case.

The taking of 12 tricks was made easy by the opponent split of three-three in the hearts. With one opponent holding four hearts, a guess of which way to finesse the spades might have been necessary.

Smythe Figures 10-Game Increase Sure to Come

Somehow or other, they just won't bury the late-lamented National Hockey League season. The monotonous wail "we want a 70-game schedule" keeps bursting in on the seasonal "take me out to the ball game."

The band-leader is Conny Smythe who keeps crowding out the ball boys for space on the sports pages. The Toronto Maple Leaf president figures the 10-game increase from the present 60 will come next fall, or a year later for sure.

The proposed increase was knocked around at a closed meeting of the N.H.L. board of governors this year, and the result was a tie among the six arena bosses. But Smythe is adamant on the issue.

He doesn't want to raise seat prices. The Gardens is a sell-out for every game. He can't for-see "any reason why they (the fans) should pay for the increased cost."

A 70-game schedule would solve the problem.

He Had 69!

The Leafs played 69 games this past season — just one less than the schedule 70. They went through the regular 60-game schedule and nine play-off games, so there can't be much kick.

If the 70-game league schedule is adopted, we'll probably have Stanley Cup playoffs a couple of weeks after the season ends.

This means also that four of the six teams in the circuit will play a minimum of 74 games and there's a possibility of two clubs going 84 games — if the Stanley Cup series and final series go the seven-game limit.

If they get their 70-game schedule, this hectic season of strife is out of order to discard the Stanley Cup competition on the first two clubs in the standing fight it out for the crown.

More About Stukus

Ukrainian Edmonton is that Annis Stukus, big goodnatured coach of Edmonton in the Western Canada Intermediate Football Union, signed a three-year contract at $6,000 a season. And Stuke isn't banking on setting the union on fire the first two years — the club needs a tremendous rebuilding job.

They haven't picked a name for the club yet and tags meet mere scorn from Stukus' fellow Ukes. Edmonton sports writers favor Oilers and so does Stukus who figures it is "good chamber of commerce."

Oration Given Game Wardens By Le Casting Club de Quebec

By WILLIAM STEWART
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Quebec, April 25 — (CP) — Apart from the bukh dress and songs that rocked the Ukrainian Hall, two things distinguished the annual camp dinner of Le Casting Club de Quebec.

One was the ovation given by the club's staff hunters and fishermen to eight game wardens; the other, which surprised the sports men themselves, was the size of their own turn-out — nearly 400.

Formed only seven years ago the club now is among the leaders in Quebec movements for conservance of game laws.

After-dinner speakers including voluble Camille Pouliot, Quebec Minister of Game and Fisheries toasted the success of the "marriage" within the last decade of officers who protect fish and game and sportsmen growing conscious of the ins and outs of the law.

There were references to the help casting club members are giving wardens in tracking down poachers.

Last winter, the wardens sometimes following up sportsmen's tips, detected 626 cases of hunting and fishing law violations. Five hundred and fifty-five convictions still pending. The previous winter, 344 cases were detected and fines added up to $14,943.

Bernard Castonguay, provincial president of Le Casting Club who was re-elected at the start of the year for his sixth term, introduced club officials at his side who have been prominent in the work:

Vice-President Roland Casault, Secretary Treasurer St. Denys McDonald and Technical Adviser Philippe Gagnon, Chief Game Superintendent and one of the best guides in the province.

Toronto Leafs Put Giants Out Of First Place

(By The Associated Press)

Pitcher Al Widmar, one of the many new faces on Baltimore Orioles' roster, is the pin-up boy in the hearts of Baltimore fans today.

Widmar, hailed in some quarters as an "iron man," turned in his third victory Thursday night as he pitched the Orioles to a 3-1, one-hit victory over Buffalo Bisons.

The 24-year-old Widmar has appeared in four of the Orioles' last six games. During this stretch he has worked 16 1-3 innings, allowing 15 hits, fanning 12 and walking only six.

Rookie first-baseman Jack Hussey deprived Widmar of a no-hitter when he rapped single in the first inning with two out.

Jersey City dropped out of first into a second place tie with Baltimore by suffering an 8-1 beating at the hands of Toronto Maple Leafs. The Giants relinquished the top rung to Montreal Royals, whose scheduled game with Syracuse Chiefs was postponed because of rain.

Rookie first-sacker Bill Glynn walloped two homers and Al Garbowski one to lead Toronto's attack, while Lou Possehl stopped the Giants on three singles.

Rochester Red Wings pounded out a 12-4 triumph over Newark Bears, combing three Bear pitchers for 11 hits. Outfielder Hal Burgett led the way, driving home four runs on four singles.

Ottawa Senators Defeat Regina By 6-4 Count

Ottawa, April 29. (CP)—Ottawa Senators had that big first game lucked away today but they also had assurance that they can count on a slam-bang series of hockey at its toughest, fastest and scrappiest before the resting place of the Allan Cup is decided this season.

The Senators, with 7,720 fans roaring in agreement, knew they had been in a hockey game worthy of the prized trophy before they came out on top 6-4 last night over the hard hitting Regina Capes in the sizzling opener of the best-of-seven series for the Canadian Senior championship. Second game will be here Saturday night.

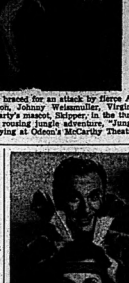
Ed Dziedzic, 21-year-old Winnipeg-born right winger, was the unsung man for the Senators, napping in three goals. Linemate Bill Robinson, another of the six Ottawans on the scoresheet, got the winners.

The starry line of Mel Hill, Sweeney Schriner and Chuck McCullough contributed three of the four goals to the losing cause. Centre McCullough netted two while veteran left-winger Schriner got one. Hill came in for a couple of assists while Schriner helped on McCullough's third-period goal. The other Regina tally, also in the third period, went to Lou Hasche.

Penalties Play Part

Penalties played a big part in the game as Senators, who held an edge in play throughout the first two periods, scored their first three goals with Regina a man short.

Tempers flared several times and wound up with an outburst by Schriner which earned him a 10-minute misconduct penalty for abusing Referee Lorne Lyndon of Winnipeg and using profanity.



It happened when Coach Art Somers, in a desperate attempt to get the tieing goal in the final minute of play, pulled Goalie Bev Bentley out and sent six forwards for a faceoff in the Ottawa corner .The score was 5-4 for Senators at the time.

The puck was dropped and centre Nils Tremblay got it away to Dartnell who skated to within about 25 feet of the empty Regina net and neatly slid it in.

WitnidigsoolWe)arfodawA ter Scothren said utility man Eddie Emberg, out of action with a broken hand, might be back in the next game, indirectly replacing Frank (Butch) Stahan who tried out his injured knee briefly in the first period last night and found it wouldn't hold up under the gruelling play.

During much of last night's game the Caps appeared to be having difficulty knowing just how to play defence in the Ottawa auditorium which has a more rounded end than they have been accustomed to.

Bills (Legs) Fraser in the Ottawa goal had ten stops to sixteen for Bentley in the first period, six to nine in the middle frame, and seven to six in the last 20 minutes, for a total of 23 against about 25 feet of the empty Regina net.

AT THE CAPITOL — Co-stars Eddie Albert and Priscilla Lane are surrounded by Indians in "The Dude Goes West," which is currently playing at Capitol, now in its second week. Lucky guy, you say? Wrong locker and Calamity Jane is the first person "right" in the picture. On the same program "Night Wind," a story of a Boy and His Dog. Continuous show Saturday from 1.00.

Male Movie Star Laments Cost of Wardrobe These Days

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, April 29 (AP) — For years we've been hearing the plaints of female film stars about getting up at dawn to look glamorous at nine, and so forth. Here's Robert Cummings on the the plight of the male star.

"The girls have it easy," said Cummings. "Everything they wear in pictures is supplied by the studio—their dress, stockings, shoes, underwear, jewelry, hair, even their falsies. They could arrive at the studio naked, if they cared to.

"But the actor has to pay for everything himself. He even has to bring his own toipee, if he wears one."

His complaint is that none of an actor's wardrobe — theoretically all part of the tools of his job—is tax deductible.

Suits cost $250 apiece and he's got at least 40 of them. He has about 45 hats, costing up to $40 a copy. They are $15 apiece and he buys two of each, in case he spills gravy on one during a picture. His shirts run $18 and they are usually exposed during a picture, since they have to be laundered every day.

Everything they wear is almost strictly for his film work. He claims he goes out only one night a week and then wears slacks, an old sport coat and moccasins.

He ended his lament of the male star's fate by recalling his bachelor days.

"I had to have a sharp wardrobe and a theme car and foot the bill at the night clubs. And my date, who was earning 18 times as much as I was, would brag about how she borrowed her dress and furs from the studio."

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK — By R. J. SCOTT

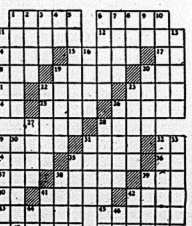
Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was reading his paper and ma was reading here, saying, How true, William.

Both as what? pop said, and ma said, The trubble with the movies is the pictures aren't founded on real life. They're just fabrications from the overheated brains of high priced screen writers who spend their lives in little cubby holes in the various motion picture studios absolutely ignorant of the way ordinery common people injoy themselves and suffer. That's the opinion of the average movie audience, according to a poll that's just been taken from door to door, she said.

I could of told them that years ago, pop said, and ma said, After all, William, I mean after all, there's nothing more intiristing than actual life, and there's so much of it all around us.

Nothing ellse but pop said, and ma said, Speeking of pictures, William, it's the last 3 days of Distant Thunder, so when are we going to see it? It's about a woman whose husband is swallowed up in an earthquake in China, and in a psychiatrist's office to erase his memory from her stricken mind she falls madly in love with another man, and whenever this other man speaks, she seems to hear her husband's voice instead, warning her that he is watching and wailing, and naturally, she begins to think she is slowly but fermly losing her mind.



It must of happened in a picture before, pop said, and ma said, Anyway, it seems the earthquake hadn't swallowed up her husband beyond recall. He landed in a subterranean cave inhabiten by a race of bandits who resented his intrusion and kept him prizner until he escaped, years later. So naturally the picture has a happy ending, she said.

There's nothing like a touch of real life, pop said. Is there a good movie in town?? he said.

Meening he didn't want to see Distant Thunder.

Newfoundland Votes May 27

St. John's April 29 (CP)—Newfoundlanders vote May 27, their first political decision in 17 years.

Interim Premier Joseph Smallwood announced the provincial election date Thursday night before 1,500 delegates and guests to the first convention of the Newfoundland Liberal party, Nomination day is May 13.

Newfoundland elected its last provincial government in 1933 and shortly after lost its responsible government.

Islanders have only a month to choose between two parties in the election campaign. The progressive Conservatives already have firmly entrenched and have signified their intention of contesting all 36 districts and 39 seats. The C.C.F. is not expected to enter the provincial race but are probable starters in the federal election, probably June 27.

The 10 day interval between nomination day and election day is expected to pose a serious problem. Ballot boxes have to be distributed to 1,200 polling booths around the 6,000 mile coast.

The convention will elect leaders Saturday. Mr. Smallwood is the only candidate mentioned so far for the provincial leadership. Earlier, he said state secretary F. Gordon Bradley, Newfoundland's representative in Ottawa, at probably will be federal leader of the Island's Liberals.

In his address, Premier Smallwood described the Liberal party as "the party of the toiling masses," the party responsible for every social security and welfare act on the Canadian statutes to-day.

Grants Subject To Restrictions Says McCallum

Hamilton, April 29 — (CP) — Loss of autonomy by municipal governments as a result of provincial grants was charged Thursday by Toronto's Mayor Hiram E. McCallum before the Ontario Association of Reeves and Mayors.

"With practically each grant that is given to the municipality, a loss of some autonomy results," he said. "The grants are subject to restrictions and conditions that are not only humiliating to the municipality, but hamper its independent functioning."

Mayor Sam Lawrence of Hamilton, Association president, also warned members they must be "vigilant" or municipal governments may "gradually pass out of control of their elected councils."

Mayor McCallum called for complete revision of provincial municipal relations.

(At Toronto, commenting on charges that provincial grants had too many conditions attached, Premier Kennedy said that if municipalities do not want to abide by the conditions of grants they do not have to take the grants. He said also there would be a conference this summer between municipal and Ontario government officials.

Toronto's mayor said the conditions and obligations which accompanied provincial grants placed too much power in the hands of governments not directly responsible to the people concerned.

"Additional burdens are continually being placed on municipalities, and at the same time, their sources of revenue curtailed without compensating adjustment of revenues,' he said. "This places an unfair and inequitable burden on real estate, practically the only source of revenue remaining to local government."

Acheson Pledges U.S. to Support Fair Agreement

New York, April 29 (AP) — State Secretary Acheson pledged Thursday night that the United States will leave no stone unturned, if four-power talks with Russia are resumed, to work out a settlement on Germany that is fair to all.

He promised there will be no bargaining away of rights and security of the 45,000,000 Germans in the western occupation zones, or of the rest of Europe.

Acheson, addressing the annual dinner of the American Newspaper Publishers Association, emphasized that the way still is open for four-power agreement on a united Germany.

The New York Times said an authoritative source has disclosed that, if four-power talks are resumed, the United States and Britain will propose merger of the Soviet zone and the west German Republic to form a single German federal state. The Times said the proposal is designed to draw the tenth Soviet manoeuvre with which the western powers expect. Hadded that the United States also will propose sharp reduction of all military occupation forces, but will not agree to an expected Russian proposal for complete withdrawal of occupation armies.

West Germany, Acheson declared, "may rest assured that this government will agree to no solution for Germany into which the basic safeguards and benefits of the existing western German arrangements would not be absorbed."

The United States wants to see an integrated German people, "or as large a part of them as possible" qualify for a place in "a new common structure of the free peoples of Europe."

Western agreement on the future Germany had held unswervingly to that line, and represents a "sincere effort to deal with existing realities in the spirit of the original Allied covenants pertaining to Germany."

Farthest North Boy Scout Troop On Arctic Shores

Ottawa, April 29 (CP)—What is probably the most northerly Boy Scout Troop in the world is thriving on the shores of the Arctic at a little settlement called Tuktaryaktuk.

The unit—operated jointly with a Girl Guide company — was organized last year and received mention today in the annual report of Scouting in Canada placed before the meeting of the Canadian General Council of the Boy Scouts Association.

There are five Girl Guides and three Scouts in the group which is operated at the government school run by the Anglican Church Mission Board. What's more the troop has a woman for its leader—Miss Dorothy Robinson who teaches at the school.

While it may be the furthest north, it isn't the only Scout organization in the area. Other Scout troops have been operating at Aklavik, Yellowknife, in the Northwest Territories and some in northern Alberta.

BRITISH CRUISER TO BE TEST TARGET FOR ATOM RAYS

Bombardment to Prove Depth of Penetration

Portsmouth, England, April 30 (AP)—The Royal Navy's "guinea pig" cruiser Arethusa was moored in a well guarded target area off Portsmouth today for a week of pounding by atom rays.

The tests are scheduled to begin early next week.

The target area is four miles east of the Isle of Wight, off England's south coast.

Purpose of the tests, in which gamma-ray generators on floating pontoons will bound about the vessel ceaselessly, is to determine how deeply the rays penetrate and what happens inside the cruiser when they do.

The Arethusa, a 480 feet long, displaces 5,220 tons and normally carries a 460-man complement. According to the admiralty, a skeleton crew will be aboard the ship while the ray bombardment goes on.

In London the Daily Graphic said today that a paint developed by British research scientists also is said to be proof against gamma rays, will be tried out in the Arethusa tests.

Big Naval Manoeuvres

London (AP)—The British Army this summer will hold its biggest manoeuvres since the end of the war.

They coincide with extensive fleet exercises by warships from most of the Atlantic-Pact powers.

A war office spokesman said the army exercises probably would involve between 200,000 and 300,000 men here and in Germany and continue on and off for both countries for six weeks to two months.

"There is a possibility that some new army weapons developed by the ministry of supply may be tried out during some phase of the manoeuvres," a spokesman said.

Military observers from other Atlantic Pact countries are expected to attend the exercises.

Coldwell Objects To Remark Made By Opposition

Ottawa, April 30 (CP) — M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, said Friday in the Commons that members of his party are "disturbed by the construction that has taken place in this House so that its business could not be terminated.

He made the statement after raising protest against an interjection made by a Progressive Conservative member while the C.C.F. was voting on a motion to go into supply to provide money needed by the government between the holding of an election and a new session.

G. K. Fraser (PC-Peterborough West) interjected that the C.C.F. did not "care how money is spent."

Said Mr. Coldwell:

"That is a reflection on my vote and on the vote of every one with which I am associated. . . . I want to say that we believe that the House should have the opportunity to function in the proper manner the money necessary to carry on the government of the country and the machinery is over."

But the Progressive Conservatives opposed the motion.

ATLANTIC PACT, WHEAT CONTRACT GIVEN APPROVAL

Government Sustained On Three Divisions

Ottawa, April 30 (CP)—Heading toward dissolution the Commons yesterday enacted three major measures in short order out-voting most of its day occupied in speech-making on other topics.

It also went through three divisions for one of the heaviest voting days in recent session.

The division bells brought members into the chamber to record an enthusiastic and unanimous vote of 183 to 0 in ratification of the Atlantic pact, a day after the senate had approved the defensive alliance.

In the other votes, the House backed up the government by 144 to 48 on a motion to go into committee to vote interim money supply for the post-session period and registered a 141-to-31 rejection of a C.C.F. motion calling on the government to "implement the National ownership of oil and gas pipe lines.

A bill providing for Federal regulation of pipe line companies passed without a recorded vote, while five measures to incorporate such companies in western Canada and second reading in readiness for final passage today.

The only other legislation adopted in a long day, that stretched from 11 a.m. to 11.40 p.m., consisted of formal ratification of the international wheat agreement. The senate had already been ratified by the senate a few days ago.

Only Two Items Remain

Remaining on the order paper today were only two items of business. After that disposal, The Court Alexander was to give Speaker his report for which the closing this, followed by prorogation and dissolution.

Then the third reading process for the pipe line companies, there was only the vote of $479,000,000 on account of supply to be voted by the government. George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said Friday night his party will be ready with its answers, though it had protested for the last two days against the procedure used in obtaining the funds.

Solon Low, Social Credit Conservative speaker—financial critic J. M. MacDonnell (Muskoka-Ontario), and Agriculture Minister Abbott of republicating an understanding that the Commons would have a chance to examine the Canadian Liquor Board.

Mr. Abbott denied there had been any repudiation.

Two Trappers Believed Drowned

Kapuskasing, April 29 — (CP) — Two trappers were believed drowned yesterday in rapids of the Groundhog River near here.

They were Joseph Gauthier, 68-year-old widower of Fauquier, Ont., and Jean Marie, 25, also of Fauquier. Their canoe was found upturned and stuck on the rocks in the rapids seven miles north of Fauquier.

The men left home April 26 intending to return home the following day. They found the water too high and swift for dragging operations.

Trigger-Happy Gangsters Causing Headache Among Paris Police Force

Paris, April 30 (Reuters) — A ter organized than ever. The "caids" (gang chiefs) live in gendarmerie near Paris Feds in Boulogne or on the Riviera.

The well-organized "raid" runs a fairly normal business course as a "blind", gets his name in the social columns of the illustrated magazines—and retains a legal adviser.

Some notorious French crime has been revolutionized by the introduction of the front-wheel drive automobile. The easily manoeuvrable vehicle can escape from a Paris traffic block with not the slightest trouble.

The weakness in the link of Paris crime is usually the "inside man" without whom a big robbery is almost impossible. It is usually the inside man who is caught and finally confesses.

Every year, an average of 11 policemen are shot on duty.

Dissolution Will Follow Voting For Govt. Expenses

Asking $479,000,000 Until New Parliament Formed

Ottawa, April 30 — (CP) — Parliament will be dissolved today and the general election will be called for Monday, June 27.

This is the standing in the Commons as the government prepares to go to the country:

Liberals 125, Progressive Conservatives 69, C.C.F. 32, Social Credit 13, others six, vacant one.

The standing in September, 1945, after all returns from the general election of that year were in, was:

Liberals 126, Progressive Conservatives 66, C.C.F. 28, Social Credit 13, others 12.

There have been 19 Federal by-elections since the 1945 contest.

Yesterday, as the day before, the Commons was in session. Progressive Conservative opposition, spent most of its time debating a government bill asking for $479,000,000 to pay governmental expenses until a new parliament can be summoned.

The House adjourned at 11:30 p.m. and was to meet at 11 a.m. today.

Arrangements Made

Mr. St. Laurent announced that temporary arrangements had been made for Viscount Alexander, Governor-General, to give royal assent to bills already passed in the Senate during recess.

If supply went through without opposition, as was indicated, a prorogation ceremony was expected to follow almost immediately.

Meantime, Mr. St. Laurent had made his preparations for the dissolution which he announced last Monday would take place at the end of this week. He drove to the Governor-General's residence early Friday evening and obtained his approval of a recommendation that parliament be dissolved and elections be held June 27.

Later, he confirmed this to the Canadian Press.

Sometime next week, Mr. St. Laurent will announce a cabinet shuffle to fill vacancies in the Senate.

Yesterday, as dissolution approached, Jean Francois Pouliot, the member for Temiscouata, announced in the Chamber that he wished to be designated as Progressive Liberal. He has been considered an "independent Liberal" at his own request since he broke with the government over the conscription issue in 1944.

There were 13 Conservative members in this 20th parliament; but the voters now will elect a new membership of 265. The 17 new members include seven from the new province of Newfoundland, and another 10 resulting from an increase in the number of constituencies that was legislated in 1947.

DISSOLUTION WILL — Page 4

1821 COIN

Fort Erie, April 30 — (CP) — United States coins dated as early as 1821 is owned by Mrs. Harold Shaw of Fort Erie. She told reporters about the coin after reading that C. Dion had unearthed a 1-cent U. S. coin dated 1804. Mrs. Graf got the coin four years ago in change.

Dissolution Will Have no Effect On the Budget

Ottawa, April 30 — (CP) — Dissolution of parliament without the budget being passed, as now seems certain, will have no effect on operation of the budget tax reductions and other fiscal changes.

The only disability arising from failure of parliament to dispose of the budget will be that rebates to taxpayers under the reduced rates made effective March 22, retroactive to the beginning of the year, will be suspended.

In every other particular, Finance Minister Abbott said Friday night, the budget changes made effective when he read his announcement March 22, will remain until or unless changed by a new parliament.

Mr. Abbott said he did not know at-hand which or how many taxpayers would be affected by the non-payment of the rebates.

STRONG CRITICISM OVER DISMISSAL OF CBC ANNOUNCER

Claimed Joel Aldred Broke Oath of Secrecy by Giving Story

Ottawa, April 30 — (CP) — Dismissal of a CBC announcer—Joel Aldred — for breach of confidence was criticized today in the Commons yesterday by George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, and by criticism brought comment from a spokesman for the CBC management.

Mr. Drew said that Mr. Aldred, 28-year-old Toronto-born news commentator announcer, was dismissed Friday for violating his oath of secrecy through an article on him in the Montreal Standard this week.

The CBC spokesman said Mr. Aldred, employed in Toronto for the last two years, was asked for his resignation because "the publicity expressed dissatisfaction with the terms under which he worked."

In Toronto, Mr. Aldred said his dismissal was the continuation of what he called a "fear complex" developing within the CBC.

"There's absolutely no justification in it," he said. "It's completely discriminatory."

The newspaper article commented on how Mr. Aldred was taking deductions from the commercial fees earned by employees. Mr. Aldred said that out of his commercial income, the CBC kept approximately 25 per cent. Mr. Aldred said he had taken up the matter personally with J. D. Dunton, CBC chairman.

The CBC spokesman said the corporation has a system of remuneration for certain staff announcers, such as Mr. Aldred, who received extra income because they are commissioned on some commercial programs.

"The system attacked by Mr. Aldred is one under which his income, according to the article in question, has been close to $12,000 a year," said the spokesman.

"If Mr. Aldred felt he had grievances there are proper channels in the organization which he could have used but he did not. Instead he chose to attack his employer in public."

Mr. Drew said it was not commonly known that the CBC employees took an oath of secrecy which prevented them from revealing what shows there are in that system.

The oath was part of the "fear complex" that controlled the type of broadcasting permitted by the CBC.

Mr. Aldred had been asked by the Standard, said Mr. Drew, for permission to do an article on him. He discussed the matter with officials of the CBC and Mr. Dunton and was told that he was a free citizen in a free country.

The article was a success story of a young Canada, but in it Mr. Aldred said things calling for improvements in the CBC.

Twelve Countries' Products Flown in by Berlin Air Lift

By JACK SMITH

Berlin, April 30 (Reuters) — Although the Berlin air lift is essentially an Anglo-American effort, no fewer than 10 other countries are united in supplying the foodstuffs flown into the blockaded German city.

Rye grain from Hungary, cheese from Denmark, rice from northern Italy, fats from the Philippines, sugar from Cuba, dried fruits from Iran, dried vegetables from the Netherlands, fish from Norway and dehydrated milk from Belgium and Switzerland are only a few of the commodities which make up the everyday menu of 2,500,000 people in the western sectors of the city.

Officials of the air-lift food committee unhesitatingly declare that the average Berliner eats well although the variety may leave much to be desired.

Much of the foodstuffs contributed by the United Berliners is grown in Germany itself.

Meanwhile, all delivery difficulties in Germany are being urged so that the largest amounts of food may reach Berlin. All nest and fats, for instance, are quickly frozen for air-lift shipment.

Flour 45% of Cargo

Approximately 45 per cent of all food flown into Berlin is flour. Wheat flour is imported from the United States, while wheat grains from Hungary and Denmark are imported to Germany and then milled in flour.

Meat, representing nine per cent of the air-lift food, while chiefly from Germany, several tons of flour imported from the United States is manufactured here into macaroni, spaghetti and noodles.

Eight per cent of all food flying the air lift is most consisting mainly of beef and pork raised in other parts of western Germany.

Sugar from Germany, some 30,000 and 300,000 men here and in Germany and continue on and off for both countries for six weeks to two months.

"There is a possibility that some new army weapons developed by the ministry of supply may be tried out during some phase of the manoeuvres," a spokesman said.

Military observers from other Atlantic Pact countries are expected to attend the exercises.

Testifies He Found Sawed-off Pick Handle in Drawer

Halifax, April 30. (CP)—Inspector Kverette Lloyd of the Halifax police, Friday, testified in court he found a sawed-off pick handle in the drawer of a desk used by Atlantic crooner H. C. (Bert) Meade of the Canadian Seamen Union (T.L.C.) in a raid several weeks ago. Meade and C.S.U. port agent Gus Genilles have been charged with having offensive weapons.

Chief Inspector James Baker said he and his men found 28 sawed-off pick handles, some bars of iron, one blackjack, one piece of rubber hose and two knuckle dusters.

The court hearing was adjourned until May 14.

Dig up Skeletons of Giant Mammoths Who Lived Millions of Years Ago

Moscow, April 30. (Reuters)—Expert palaeontologists and zoologists are preparing to dig up and transport to Leningrad or Moscow the skeletons of three giant mammoths discovered to have lived millions of years ago.

The mammoths were found beyond the Arctic circle in the great Tundra region which forms an icy girdle across the north of Europe and Asia.

The third mammoth was discovered by workmen in the Kharbei-Yaksur area, several thousand miles away in Russia's eastern territory.

The two mammoths found in the Arctic are reported to be in an excellent state of preservation with much of the original flesh, muscles and hair intact. Their condition is attributed to the fact that in the Tundra region only two or three feet of earth thaws out in the short summer. The remainder of the soil is frozen.

Scientists believe that an intensive study of the Yalmyr mammoth will help them to recreate the picture of an extinct animal and the means by which it adjusted itself to the severe climatic conditions of the glacier period.

Fossilized remains of the mammoth in the Dnieprostrevsk area were found by workmen from a nearby factory who were busy digging a trench.

The workmen immediately reported their discovery.

Near the site they also found flints—suggesting that this may have been the site of an encampment of ancient man.

COMMIE COLUMNS ROLLING TOWARDS CITY OF HANGCHOW

Closing the Pincers on Capital as Thousands Flee Shanghai

Shanghai, April 30 (AP)—Communist columns today rolled to within 23 miles of Hangchow in an apparent move to knock out that anchor to the whole Nationalist position on the Shanghai front.

The newspaper Sin Wan Pao said government employees in Hangchow had been ordered to prepare for the orderly reorganization of police duties.

Meanwhile the British Nationalist soldiers had withdrawn from the coastal city, 121 rail miles southwest of Shanghai. There was nothing official to bear out this, however.

The Shanghai garrison commonique said that the main forces raged 10 miles or so northwest of Hangchow, where it said seven government armies had trapped and were being "annihilated."

The communists have more than 140,000 Nationalists, or nearly one-third of the total force assigned to defend the Shanghai-Nanking-Shanghai-Hangchow triangle.

(There was little to indicate the Nationalists were putting up much resistance on the Hangchow front, although previously strong government forces were reported moving up to block the advance.)

Dispatches from Shanghai said Communist troops in the vicinity of Hangchow on the north are 25 miles west of Shanghai, had moved but little.

A communique said that units of the Communist 29th army, based on Kunshan, 23 miles due west of Kunshan, now also were advancing toward Shanghai.

Five hundred Communist soldiers struck into the rice district of Changshu, 53 rail miles northwest of Shanghai. It was still too early to tell if this force represented a move down the Yangtze's south bank to seal off Shanghai from the west.

The departure of Chinese and foreigners from Shanghai mean while sped on without let-up.

HONORARY MEMBER KNOWS BRANCH'S HISTORY

Oakville, April 30 — (CP) — When past and present members of the Oakville fire department gathered Friday night to mark the department's 40th anniversary an honorary member was a band who knew more about the brigade than any of them. She is Mrs. Ali Hillmer, whose husband was Oakville's fire chief from 1940 until he died in 1944. The fire department was formed in the Halton county town in 1909 when a hand pumper replaced the bucket brigade.

Russia to Release Three British Military Police

Berlin, April 30 (AP) — Russian authorities today notified the British military government that they would release by mid-afternoon three British military policemen seized Friday night on the Soviet sector border.

The soldiers were taken into custody by Soviet police while investigating a raid by Communist police on a house in Berlin's area which straddles the British - Soviet zone boundary. Their authorities immediately protested.

The arrest of the trio brought to seven the number of British soldiers now held in the Soviet zone. Four others seized on Saturday earlier this week while patrolling the British zonal border.

Horses, cows and pigs of the area were driven from the farm early Friday night and the British seized some 50 uniformed and civilian Soviet zone police. All were armed, witnesses said.

The city-owned farm was considered one of the best powered in British sector property.

Col. H. J. Spicer, chief of the agriculture section of the British military government, investigated the incident with professional interest.

"First we had the trouble at the canal locks," he said "and now this. I don't know what they are getting at."

The "battle of the barges" today had apparently all but resolved itself.

Berlin officials said they had accepted an invitation to discuss the differences with Russian General P. Kwashnin, head of the Soviet Transportation Corps.

Officials at the locks said traffic was proceeding normally.

JUVENILES WARNED WINDOW-BREAKING WITH GUNS MUST CEASE

Provincial police today warned that action will be taken against juveniles in the Belleville St. area if they persist in breaking windows with .22 rifles and B-B guns.

During the past week practically every window was broken in the mechanical shovel owned by the Diamond Construction Company and situated in a quarry in North Park Street area.

Investigation by police officers revealed that young boys would hide out in a nearby woods and take pot shots at the windows of the shovel cab. Since in some instances they failed to smash the windows, it was stated.

Trout Fishermen Leave Early For Favorite Haunts

Judging from the exodus to the fishing haunts of the northern part of this county and other spots, there will be a number of weekend widows in the city today and tomorrow.

Shrewd troops of the brown, speckled and lake trout dividend awaited with some trepidation the onslaught of the hi-vees from the south.

According to veteran Izaak Waltons, the weather was "near-perfect" for the initial forays into trout country, and the boys who have shaken, domestic and business cares from eager shoulders anticipate large bags of the finny delicacies.

Some left yesterday afternoon so as to be "on location" at the crack o' dawn today. Other parties left the city at dawn today while yet others made the clean trek this afternoon.

Lovers of speckled trout fishing will open up cottages temporarily and Lake Ontario will be fishing for the deep-water bass delicacies.

All-in-all the stage is set for a perfect weekend's fishing.

Mother Nature has set up the scenery and stage effects in splendid style. The actors are ready to "goin' in" and if the cast it would appear, it is up to the fishes.

Now, if they're only blin'.

Chilly Nights Setting Back Spring Grains

Chilly nights during the past week saw the mercury drop on several occasions to several degrees below freezing, has set back spring grain that was above the ground.

Farmers on the market Saturday morning were heard to say that early planted grain which had been sprouted a week or more, had been set back.

Also grain sown early on low lying land which was now partially under water because of frequent rain was in danger of having to be re-sown. Farmers indicated that such grain was in danger of being rotted out, necessitating reworking of the fields.

Classes For DP's Concluded At Point Anne

Classes for Displaced Persons held at Point Anne School under the supervision of Mr. H. O. Walkom and K. M. Bird, terminated this week.

Started last November when a large number of Displaced Europeans landed at Point Anne, instruction was given twice a week for two hours in basic English and citizenship.

Last week certificates for those who had finished the first series of classes were presented to those present. The majority of these people received instruction also from the Baltic States of Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia, while others claimed the Ukraine, Hungary and Bulgaria as their birthplace.

It has been felt by those in charge of the local congress has been made in mastering conversational English while the classes in citizenship have attempted to lay the foundations of citizenship for those who plan to apply to become Canadian citizens in a few years.

New Skating Rink Proposed For Cooper

The site of the community has little or nothing to do in determining whether a covered rink can be erected.

At least this apparently is the attitude of residents of the Cooper community, north of Madoc village, where plans are under way for the construction of a new skating rink.

During the late winter men and boys of the community held a "bee" and cut over 300 logs which will be sawed into lumber for the new building. Also a quantity of lumber has been donated.

A government grant will assist in financing the undertaking and over $1,000 has been raised in personal cash donations and through other local social activities.

Construction of the new skating rink is under the direction of Gibson Bailey, Cooper. Excavations for the foundation of the structure are now about completed.

Anyway Some Flying Saucers Act Like Animals

By GEORGE RONALD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Washington, April 30 (CP)— Ever see an extraterrestrial animal?

Hold on, now—think a minute.

Okay, probably not. But exactly what was that darned thing that you say was galloping across the sky that day?

A flying saucer?

United States air force intelligence officers admit they're baffled by some of the 1,500 "flying saucers" people claim to have seen in the last couple of years.

In searching for answers, these experts have had to considered the remote possibility of extraterrestrial animals.

That definition, says the dictionary, is an all-embracing term for animals originating on existing outside the earth or its atmosphere.

The air force, in an official report on its investigation of flying-saucer phenomena, leaves no impression that it spent long hours mulling over the question of animal angle. It doesn't squelch the whole idea flat, but it has the comment to a minimum:

Possibility Extremely Considered

"The possible existence of some sort of strange extraterrestrial animal life also has been remotely considered, as many of the objects described are much more like animals than anything else . . ."

Here's what a prospector says he saw at 5,000 feet in the Cascade Mountains of the west coast:

Five or six objects, 30 feet in diameter, rounded, silent, noiseless and not flying in formation.

Here's what two children say they saw at Hamel, Minn.: A strange object with "hit the ground, spun around once, made a whistling noise and then shot straight up into the sky about 25 feet, stopped again and made more whistling noises." Then maneuvered around tree branches and telephone wires and finally dendy sped off to the northwest."

That sounds like extraterrestrial animals? Remember Buck Rogers and Flash Gordon last weekend?

No? Well, use your imagination a little.

The air force did.

Senator Supports Bill to Plug Loopholes in Law

By GEORGE RONALD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Washington, April 28 (CP) — The Senate took a frontal glance this week at the official record of Russian espionage in Canada.

Senator James O. Eastland (Dem., Miss.) read at length from a Canadian government report on the spy ring traced to the Soviet Embassy here.

Eastland spoke in support of a bill to plug the loopholes in United States immigration law. His remarks came two days after publication of documents and sworn testimony that Communist spying has been directed from the Polish Embassy here.

The proposed legislation, sponsored by Senator Patrick McCarran (Dem. Nev.) would crack down hard on Communists seeking to enter the United States behind the veil of diplomatic status. It would provide not only for deportation of such persons but also for their exclusion from entering or settling foot in this country—if it was felt they planned espionage and other activities designed to overthrow our nation by force and violence.

Aimed at Four Groups

McCarran's measure is aimed also at four other groups:

1. Immigrants who join or organize Communist clubs or spread Communist propaganda.

2. Communist agents attached to International organizations such as United Nations agencies.

3. Subversive members of foreign trade missions and news agencies.

4. Any other hireling of Communism's "network of agents whose sole function is to organize and promote Communist activity, espionage, propaganda and terrorism."

Eastland backed McCarren with a detailed summary of the Canadian case as bared by Igor Gouzenko, the Russian cipher clerk who fled the Ottawa Embassy in 1945 and told his story to the Canadian government. He made much of Gouzenko's sworn statement that "the same thing was true in the United States."

"Some of the persons mentioned in the report of the Royal Commission had connections in the United States," Eastland said.

McCarran's bill was read twice and referred to the Senate judiciary committee for further study.

Appeal Thru Pulpits Sunday For Clothing for Britain, Europe And Orient Will be Launched

The Canadian Council of Churches will on Sunday through the media of pulpits launch a strong appeal to Canadians for good used clothing which will be sent to the war-stricken victims of Great Britain, Europe and the Orient.

Cash donations will also be sought in an effort to offset the heavy cost of transportation which is estimated at roughly $100 per ton.

There is a desperate need for good used clothing in these unfortunate countries where almost destitute people are struggling to obtain the bare necessities of life. It is felt that Canadians, one of the more fortunate peoples of the earth, have in attic and wardrobe, in closet and trunk, articles of clothing which could be used to good advantage in assisting the needy peoples of the war -blasted areas of Europe and the Far East.

Must be Good Quality

It is, however, vitally important, that the clothing donated be of good quality and in a good state of repair. Selection of these gifts will reflect the donor's intentions and his desire to help.

Clothing of poor quality, or "on its last legs" should not be donated. Due to the restricted shipping tonnage, and as was mentioned before, the high costs of transportation, none but the best of used clothing should be contributed.

Mark up the pressing need for shipping space, it has been decided that shoes, and hats will not be acceptable. What is needed are coats, suits, shirts, dresses, trousers, etc.

Launch Appeal Sunday

Belleville, in common with other communities will launch its appeal through the churches on Sunday, May 1st. Chairman of the campaign here is the Rev. Donald C. Amos, Bridge St. United Church minister. Potential donors should get in touch with him at his home, 100 Bridge East East, telephone 3040 or at the church, telephone 1098; or through the medium of their own church.

Arrangements have been completed with ministers of the city to launch the appeal on Sunday. The various churches have completed or will complete plans for the reception of gifts of clothing during the week of May 1-5th. Residents will be given all information on Sunday, and it is hoped the response will be a generous one.

Churches will arrange for their own shipments which will be forwarded to a central office in Toronto where the clothing will be sorted, baled and packed for overseas shipment.

The need is urgent. That article of used clothing hanging in the attic or clothes closet may mean a new life and comfort to some unfortunate man, woman or child, who have not yet recovered from the ravaging aftermath of war.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

WINIFRED E. WILSON

FOX SPARROW

Our only chance of becoming acquainted with the Fox Sparrow is in the short period it may spend with us on its migratory flight between the southern whiter holiday resort and the northern breeding ground. Towards the end of April or the beginning of May, when on its way to Canada's great forest region, we may hear the loud, clear, melodious carol of this master musician. Once heard, the song is unforgetable, having the unusual combination of sweetness and power, joyousness and sadness. It is the appealing voice that endears to us this seldom seen bird.

Nevertheless, the Fox Sparrow's looks are also an asset. Its coloring is so like that of the red fox, that the choice of name is particularly appropriate. Perhaps the word 'terra-cotta' best describes the shade of its tail, lower back, and wings, besides the daubs on other parts of it. This tone is so unusual that identification is simplified. The seed-eater's bill and general shape of the bird put a Sparrow tag on it immediately. Actually this is a large Sparrow, 7½ inches long, similar in length to (CKAT) Thrush with which it might be confused, because both have red tails and are fond of open woods and brush skirting fields. There are few red tails in Birdland. The Red-tailed Hawk, being 20 inches long, could never be mistaken for a Fox Sparrow, neither could Wilson's Snipe, with an excessively long bill, nor the Killdeer Plover, whose tail is trimmed with a broad, white edging.

Distinctive also are the manner-isms of the Fox Sparrow. Watch it in spring, scratching about in the dead leaves with both feet, like a hen, hunting for ground beetles. At other times of year weed-seeds are its chief food, especially those of ragweed. A flock of Fox Sparrows act differently from other birds when disturbed in their feeding on the ground. Instead of making for cover, they rise only to a low branch of a nearby tree, even though it is bare, leaves them in plain sight; and the instant the coast is over, they all return to the ground.

As the breeding range of the Fox Sparrow is generally beyond civilization, not many people have seen the bird at home. Its nest is said to be placed in stunted trees or low bushes, or even on the ground, and is made of grass and moss, lined with fine grass and feathers.

Young Graduate Discarded Law To Sing Operas

By PAT USSHER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York (CP) — A career in law was what his parents planned for Dennis Harbour of Oka, Que.

But, while studying for the bar at the University of Montreal, Harbour decided he was more interested in singing.

He was graduated in law but has never practised. Instead he has devoted himself to singing as a profession and has just won a contract with the Metropolitan Opera Company.

Slightly, a 28-year-old basso-baritone, was one of the two winners of this year's Metropolitan Opera auditions of the air. The other winner among the more than 900 auditioned was Jean Hunt, 23-year-old lyric soprano from Pennsylvania.

"My parents wanted me to make something of myself, so they decided I should be a lawyer," said Harbour in an interview.

"But I never really liked law. In my second year at university I was taking singing lessons. Then I decided there was no point in taking singing lessons unless I made use of them. So I auditioned for radio and got a job singing on a weekly radio (CKAC) program.

"I finished my law course in 1943 and was graduated but I have never taken an examination at the bar and never practised law. Instead, I intend to keep on with my singing."

Sang as cadet

Harbour, who is broad-shouldered and fair-haired with twinkling eyes, pronounced his name as if it were spelled without the H. He is mainly of French descent with some Irish-Scandinavian blood.

Not long after graduation he was singing on CBC programs and later he sang in concerts in Quebec, Toronto, Chicoutimi, Que., and other cities in eastern Canada. Last autumn he toured 69 cities in the United States and Canada with a company singing the opera "Romeo and Juliet." Harbour sang the roles of Friar Lawrence and Gregorio.

At the age of 13, Harbor left Oka, a village on the Lake of Two Mountains, and voted for its cheese, and went to Montreal. He obtained his bachelor of arts degree and studied philosophy for two years at the University of Montreal before taking the bachelor of law course.

Singing is hard work he says. "You have to make yourself work at it, every day. It's a real part, though, is the business of waiting for a test or examination. You worry and wonder whether you will do all right. Then finally your turn comes and you forget your worries and concentrate on singing."

In September, 1945, the Canadian singer was given the two-year Co-bee to Miss Mildred Brown of that city. They came at once to New Jersey and since then have lived here. Harbour has studied music and taken voice lessons. Periodical concert work and singing at church services have helped him to keep going financially.

As for the future, Harbour declined to be specific.

"How can anyone tell what may happen?" he asked. But he did say, seriously: "I want to do my best and give all I have to make good as a singer."

Amps Distribute 1,000,000 Tags

Toronto — (CP) — Nearly 1,000,000 aluminum license tags were distributed throughout Canada last year by the Key Tag service of the Weir Amp Company of Canada.

In a report published in the April issue of the Amp's quarterly, The Weir Amp, metal tags were sold in Ontario. Alberta took 110,000, Saskatchewan 100,000, Quebec 100,000, and Manitoba 90,000.

Next year the small-staffed office — about 10 amputees of the First and Second World Wars manufacture the tags by hand — hopes to produce more than 1,300,000 key tags.

Last year, he said, "it took patience and hard, fast work to maintain our standard of public goodwill."

He outlined as deterrents to last year's production, piling costs of metal stamping, printing and die production. He said the Maritime provinces would be added to the motor list key tag service next year.

FREE HEAT

Natural hot water from many of Iceland's volcanic springs is piped to provide heat for office buildings, homes and public swimming pools.

LONG YARN

A single pound of Irish flax fibre has been known to produce 1,432 miles of hand-spun yarn.

Church not Heated For First 50 Years

Halifax — (CP) — St. Paul's Church, oldest Protestant church in Canada, celebrates its 200th anniversary this year along with this cobble-stoned port city.

For the first 50 years after its founding the church was not heated in any way. But now it has a modern heating system and the city's Bicentenary Committee has launched an appeal for $50,000 to help pay part of the cost of the system.

In the history of the church, Dr. W. Harry Chandler of the Anglican diocese of Nova Scotia, says courageous and hardy worshippers used foot warmers, wooden boxes, dogs and heavy fur coats to keep them warm. The warmers were iron boxes filled with burning charcoal while the wooden boxes contained heated bricks.

First attempts at central heating in 1796 were not successful. Two coal-burning stoves sent from England did not, gave off more smoke than heat.

It was not until 1800 that four canons stoves were put up, installed and piped. At first it was thought the cost of piping to carry the smoke would be too high. Two of the stoves were loaned by General Murray, commanding officer of the port's garrison.

BE KIND TO ANIMALS WEEK

This time in the year man can afford to turn his attention and spirit to the part that animals have borne and bear in the march of civilization. Many animals, especially those which have been domesticated, have carried their full share of man's burden by the useful parts they have been called upon to endure. For ages they have kept company with man in his rise. Now in some spheres animals seem to be losing their relative importance. That may seem true of the horse which has been man's burden bearer and drudge and friend, but this present age is witnessing replacement in some degree of this noble animal by the automobile engine. Yet the horse will remain for he is one of the noblest of the creations of life. The cow, which has served countless generations with milk and meat, still holds her place for she virtually feeds the nations. The domestic dog who has accompanied man's rise from prehistoric times still remains as guardian. In fact there are more dogs on earth than ever before for the dog has woven his way into the lives of humans to a degree which assures him his place in the affections of mankind. The cat is not so fortunate possibly for she has to compete with all sorts of modern mousetraps, yet she too is a pet and companion of the family and though she has opposition in some quarters she is assured of maintaining her attractions. Even big business gives the cat a prominent place in its economy.

There are the domestic fowls of various kinds, there are the song birds and the parrots. Into this scope come too wild bird life and wild animal life which man has learned to admire. These creatures can all be made to feel man's kindness. The task of education will be almost to make a pet because he finds man responsive.

So Be Kind to Animals Week is one of the most natural events in the world. It has its lessons for those who might forget their duty were it not for the appeal these creatures, the animals and birds, made upon their heart. They help to civilize mankind.

During the next seven days this fact will be observed. Hundreds of humane societies in North America, including our own local society, will remind the public of the important role animals and birds play in our lives. They are involved in our economy and become much prized by men, women, and children everywhere for their comfort and companionship. Not the least of their many services are the countless numbers of lives they save each year as a result of their devotion and attention to the needs of those whom they serve. The children they have tracked, the fires they have given warning of, the alarms they have sounded have been and are so frequent as to take them almost out of the category of important news. Those whose lives have been saved by their pets know what we mean.

And these creatures play a role in the national economy which is of vast importance. They help to keep civilization moving. There may be a million or more dogs in Canada and probably as many cats. The livestock industry of the United States alone is worth over fourteen billion dollars. And $60,000 is spent yearly on dog food in the United States and two thirds of a billion dollars worth of food is fed to the farm stock in the United States.

May we think on these creatures and speak for those which cannot speak fully for themselves.

Our attention should be drawn to any that are overworked or underfed or cruelly treated.

A happy thought is given in a prayer at this time as we "humbly pray to be just to these creatures, for those that are ill-treated, overworked, for all the wistful creatures that look their hate, for any that are hunted or lost or deserted or frightened or hungry; for all that are in pain or dying, for all that must be put to death." In the words of the prayer "we ask a heart of compassion and gentle hands and kindly words that we may be true friends to animals and so share the blessings of the merciful."

The work of societies seeking alleviation of sufferings of these creatures touches every true heart because of their helplessness and trust in man.

The words of a hymn came to mind at this time:

"All things bright and beautiful,
All creatures great and small,
All things wise and beautiful,
The Lord God made them all."

JUST FOLKS

SUPPOSE

Suppose the good Lord told you one day before your birth:
"For a very special purpose I am sending you to earth.
There's a place that will be vacant, with a task some one should do,
You may think it unimportant, yet I'm giving it to you.
Would you scorn the chance for service in the way of man
Or accept it with the promise: "I will do the best I can."

Suppose God gave instructions for this life before you came
And said: "Throughout your mission you will wear your father's name,
As his son down there you'll labor, though my children both you'll be.
You can serve your earthly father best by truly serving Me."
If you knew the good Lord's purpose and His plans you understood,
With the task that you'd been given would you do the best you could?

Well, my boy, He didn't bind you, but to success He left you free,
And the work that you are doing is the whole of whatever It may be,
Means a place the good Lord wanted some one here on earth to fill.
It may call for greater courage than the tasks requiring skill.
It is service that is needed; work for which your life began.
By the Lord you're being trusted just to do the best you can.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

At a rough estimate, there are at this moment something between 200,000 and 300,000 Indian widows in Canada. With the exception of the central prairie provinces, there is no part of Canada where trout fishing is not to be had within two or three hours' motoring.

For the Maritimes, Quebec, Ontario, western Alberta and British Columbia, the trout fishing is not a bit too liberal as the fishing laws would have been abandoned this weekend.

Trout fishing is one of the last sanctuaries into which men can escape from their domestic ties, their hunting is the other. When the emancipation of women began around the beginning of this century, nobody could foresee the full ramifications of it. All Sylvia Parkhurst seemed to want was the vote. He did not occur to us then that she was also campaigning for the fishing rod. Today, when a man wants to go bass fishing, muskie fishing, even deep sea fishing, his wife and family, as a matter of course, wish to come along. From the Yukon north, a trickle of feminine fashions is all outdoorsy. If you leaf through the sporting magazines, even the advertisements are full of girls, and lines are illustrated with a pretty girl wielding the rod. More than that, tens and thousands of women and girls are today expert anglers. They've got men cornered. There is no escape.

Except in trout fishing. At this time of year, the weather is too uncertain. The trout streams are in remote, muddy, brawling country. The fish are really can't look her best in hip rubber boots, with the antlers.

Then, just when the trout are at their best, the lilac flies and mosquitoes are at their worst. Science was probably employing women scientists — is desperately to discover a fly-dope to complete the conquest. In the meantime, trout fishing is man's last refuge.

Mackenzie's Column: East and West Moving Slowly To Agreement

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
Assisted Foreign Editor

A further American-Russian conference in New York yesterday over lifting the Berlin blockade brought the pleasing announcement that the talks "are proceeding satisfactorily."

This report was taken in United Nations circles as a sign that east and west were moving slowly towards an agreement on this question.

We can accept this viewpoint without indulging in the wishful thinking which is a dangerous pastime at this stage in the cold war. It doesn't, and shouldn't, commit our hopes to anything more than appears on the surface. That is the lifting of the obnoxious and costly Soviet blockade, in exchange for the raising of the Allied counter-blockade, and a meeting of the long-dormant foreign council of Foreign Ministers to consider the whole German question.

Ulterior Purpose

We don't need to venture further in an effort to decide whether the Russian have only one ulterior purpose in this offer, such as the recognition of the new German Republic out of the three western zones. Even if there is such a purpose, we can contest ourselves with this perfectly obvious statement:

The Russian blockade has failed of its purpose because of the Allied airlift. The Communist offensive has bogged down.

The Soviet Union has nothing to lose, and perhaps have something to gain, by a session on the Moscow proposal.

The present moment will arrive if and when the blockade is lifted and the major question of the unification and control of Germany comes under consideration. The Soviet Union knows that Russia changes its current policies, an accord can't be reached.

Fate Is Sealed

Sate Secretary Acheson has pledged his word that the United States will do everything she can to prevent Germany from ever again becoming a menace. To effect a German settlement that is fair to all, there will be no hair-raising away of the rights of Germans in the zones of Europe.

In other words, the western Allies stand pat in their determination to set up a German government which they hope will in time become the basis for the event will comprise the three western zones. Russia's co-operation is earnestly desired but she will not be permitted to interfere in the future control of Germany.

As I have explained in previous columns, of one thing we may be dead sure: The world revolution for the spread of Russian Communism will go on until either it succeeds or is smashed.

CO-OPERATIVE PUBLICANS

Ambleside, Westmorland, England — (CP) — Amateur businessmen compained when their husbands left home later from their Sunday lunch-time drink, the public-houses here will open from 12 noon to 2 p.m. instead of mid-day. The husbands' late arrivals had caused domestic upheavals, wives said.

DISSOLUTION WILL

The comparison of party standings in 1945 and at dissolution indicates that the 19 by-elections resulted in a loss of two seats for the Liberals and a gain of three for the Progressive Conservatives and of four for the C. C. F. The Social Credit total slipped one because of the death of Norman Jaques. The gains appeared to be all from the Liberal opponents.

The Liberals will go to the country under a new leader—Mr. St. Laurent. The former prime minister and Liberal chieftain, Rt. Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King, announced during the 1945 general election that he would not lead the party through another campaign. He surrendered the leadership at the party's national convention last August. He gave up the prime ministership in mid-November.

Now Mr. Mackenzie sat in the last session of the now-dissolved parliament as private member for the tiny Ontario constituency of Glengarry. He now is retiring from public life.

The government's main opposition, the Progressive Conservative party, also has a new leader—George Drew, former Ontario premier. Premier Frost and Premier Bracken, who retired last fall because of ill health, will again be in running again.

Same Leadership

The two other major political groups in the Commons will have the same leadership as they had in 1945. The C. C. F. party will continue to be led by Major J. S. Coldwell while the Social Credit party's top man again will be Solon Low.

A heavy swath of vital post war legislation, branching into the national and international fields, has piled up since the last sessions of the 20th parliament.

Many of the debates revolved around the problems of veterans' wartime orders and regulations and the rehabilitation measures to have continued in the reconversion period. Of these only a few still remain to be dealt with.

One of the most important pieces of legislation on the docket was the Canadian Nationality Act, passed in 1946 which established and recognized Canadian citizenship. Another was the extension of the loan of $250,000,000 to the United Kingdom.

Unite With Newfoundland

Historically, the major development was the Canadian vote on the passage of the terms of the British North America Act which brought that North Atlantic island in as the 10th member of the Canadian confederation.

Various national boards were set up—the transport control board, the Canada Maritime commission and the Canada Labor board. A national labor code was put in operation.

International agreements galore came before the Commons and the Senate, were discussed and adopted. They included the international wheat agreement, the Bretton Woods financial agreements and the Canada-United Kingdom trade agreement.

The Geneva trade agreement was introduced but still remains untouched.

Washington Spotlight: Action on River Seaway, Hydro Proposals Unlikely in '49

By GEORGE RONALD
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, April 20 (CP)—It is now doubtful that Congress will take action this year on the St. Lawrence Seaway and Hydro development proposals.

Observers point to the jam of legislation piling up on the Capitol Hill and say there is little likelihood of even committee discussion of the Canada-United American scheme.

Representative John W. McCormack of Massachusetts, Democratic majority leader in the House, holds out a flickering hope that the proposal still might be studied in the final days of the session. Put he acknowledged reluctantly:

"It is my opinion that it will probably not come up this session at all."

Delay Likely

President Truman was hinted that he is more hopeful than Mr. McCormack. He told a recent press conference that he was working new on the question and indicated there would be further delay in submission of the project for congressional approval.

Truman is all for the plan. But he has said repeatedly he thinks the seaway and hydro-electric phases of the long-standing project should be implemented at the same time.

Ontario, New York and some of the New England states continue meanwhile, to wrestle with a serious power shortage.

During a visit here in February, Prime Minister St. Laurent of Canada said the Dominion needs only the St. Lawrence power that would be its share of the proposed St. Lawrence outlet.

Canada—particularly Ontario—couldn't wait, he indicated. If the over-all scheme was not approved, the Dominion would have to start thinking seriously about "the next big development in the separate enterprise". St. Laurent did not indicate how soon the Dominion might have to be ready.

Campaign Still Hot

The hydro problem may yet bring the whole St. Lawrence plan to a head. Ontario is still hot.

New York state last week authorized a bond issue to finance the development without waiting for having contracts for disposition of the power.

And in Ottawa the chairman of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, Robert H. Saunders, spoiled out in still another way just how important he thinks the St. Lawrence development is.

Calling help from either the United States government or the State of New York, he said Ontario would have to go tackle the job alone.

WHAT FIBER IS IN YOUR BONES

As a matter of fact you can feel nothing in your bones. Bone has no sensation of feeling. Break a bone a nail in it, saw it through and it doesn't hurt any more than trimming your nails or cutting your hair. Now don't interrupt to tell me it hurts when you break a bone. Maybe it does a little. But that isn't the bone—the pain, if any, is from injury to muscles, tendons, nerves etc. in the area of the fracture.

There is an error widely prevalent among the laity and the medical profession that the bones of elderly persons have more calcium (lime) than the bones of younger persons and that explains why comparatively minor accidents so frequently break their bones. This error probably arises from a teaching in the old school physiology textbooks of sixty or seventy years ago. The latest books in Human Physiology bad it that

The composition of the bones at maturity is about one part animal to two parts mineral matter. The proportion varies with age. In youth it is nearly half and half, while in old age the mineral is greatly in excess

There are many fibers in bone of children are tough, not readily fractured, but as they grow elderly people are liable to fracture. .

The fact is that as we grow older our bones become lighter (in weight) and more brittle because of the steady loss of calcium (lime) from the bones. This change in the composition of the bones osteoporosis, and when I say "brittle" I mean that they break just in years.

At this point I suppose I might repeat the axiom that a man is only as old as his arteries. But that, after all, is begging, the question, for certainly the state of the arteries depends on (1) our nutritional condition throughout life and (2) the amount of unnecessary wear and tear to which the individual subjects his arteries.

Heredity, in my opinion, is of questionable importance as regards the arteries. It is in poor nutrition and in wear and tear that the manifest Young Folks and Old Folks, available on written request, a copy of which, when stamped envelope bearing your address, I give practical suggestions how to avoid or correct the principal nutritional deficiencies that lead to early arteriosclerosis, premature aging, shortened life.

Calcium deficiency, for example, is probably the most frequent nutritional fault in this country among all classes of people in America. Its manifestations are familiar enough to every one, although even physicians generally fail to recognize them. The main manifestations appear in infants, growing children, youths, young adults, middle aged adults and old adults. Our modern refined American diet and our coddling way of life account for our calcium deficiency. Read all about it in the booklet The Calcium Shortage —for copy send twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope. Among the manifestations of calcium deficiency are growing pains, so-called, eczema, recurring hives, periodic headache, vague "rheumatism," nocturnal feet or "weak ankles," spasmodic asthma, nocturnal leg cramps in mature adults, low back pain and stiffness with shortening of stature in elderly folk.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE IMAGINATION

I wonder where all our joys, our comforts, our individual success would be did we not have a mind that could imagine! It acts as a spur to new—and all in utter silence. It is one of the earliest faculties to function. The child has it, as well as the mature.

In our imagination we see ourselves as we are not, as we might be. More vividly than any picture, the imagination shows the whole world becomes a vast movement to us, in which we see ourselves playing an important part.

It is the imagination that looks out upon nature, and sees the organized life of music, color, and form. It is the imagination that looks beyond his drawings and plans to the completed building. It is the one that looks upon his created characters as genuine companions, rather than as fiends. They are real to him, because his imagination makes them so. And so vividly do some of these characters live that we look upon them as real. Sherlock Holmes, Sherlock Holmes or John Bunchan's Richard Hannay.

It is the imagining of ours that keeps us alive said active. The greater the imagination the greater is the achievement. Without it we are dead.

We owe to our pioneers and inventors the ability to imagine perfectly pay. Anything that stimulates, the imagination to some degree of development contributes to growth and progress. People who do not imagine are dull. And all this great power of the Imagination is available to help us to the heights.

The sight of the mind's eye is limitless! Its vision is world-wide. There can be no worthwhile gain in any human endeavor, that imagination creates it. The poorest of us can see ourselves, in his humble spot and see the world about him. Even the poorest of us can now travelling with Charles M. Doughty through his great book "Arabia Deserta" Said Edward Muir: "The power of the Imagination makes us infinite."

Govt. to Urge Early Start on Power Project

Toronto, April 20 (CP)—Assurances that the Canadian government will urge the United States government to make an early start on the St. Lawrence power development were made Friday night by Premier Leslie Frost and Robert Saunders, chairman of the Ontario-Hydro-Electric Power Commission.

Mr. Saunders made the announcement following a trip to Ottawa for a personal interview with Mr. St. Laurent. He presented the Premier with a letter outlining reasons why the project should not be delayed, and Mr. St. Laurent said he would use the letter as the basis for approaching the U.S. government.

Mr. Saunders said an earlier communication from the Prime Minister reported that the Federal cabinet the quickest possible development of the St. Lawrence power development carried out seaway-power scheme, with the separately is necessary.

The Commission and the New York State Power Authority have asked the International Joint commission for permission to start the seaway project, which would produce 2,200,000 horsepower. It was learned that the International joint commission had deferred decision on the application because of a possibility that the seaway and power plants may come before congress at its current session.

Mr. Saunders' trip to Ottawa followed reports that congress might deal with the matter this year. His letter stressed that "an early decision is of importance, because of the fact that even after ratification it will take some five years before power can be generated and distributed to our consumers.

The alternative to the St. Lawrence is, of course, the construction of additional steam units. The steam generators were economically unsound, the letter said.

The Ontario Hydro Commission was hopeful that its present construction programs would protect its customers up to 1952, but after that time it would have to look to other resources, principally the St. Lawrence River.

Standard Time Requested at Board Meeting

Tweed — Percy Jordan, proprietor of the local meat market, has installed a completely refrigerated closed-in display counter at his store. The unit counter maintains a constant temperature of 36 degrees. It permits a larger and more complete display, offering a greater variety of cuts. Additional space is provided by the compact new arrangement.

Want Standard Time

Forty to fifty ratepayers of the Tweed Consolidated School area attended a meeting of the Board on Tuesday night to press for a return to Standard Time. Members of the delegation protested that Daylight Saving created an inconvenience in children attending school in Tweed, pointing out that it was definitely objectionable to the families in the rural areas. Board members discussed the pleas of the delegation at some length, but decided that since Tweed is already on Daylight Saving Time, it was a matter for the village Council of this village. The council will probably further dilate on the question at the regular meeting to be held on Tuesday, May 3.

Knocked from "Bike"

Dawson Thompson, 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thompson, of Northbrook, received a fractured skull, when he was knocked from his bicycle when he was struck by a motor car driven by Hassel Sallam, Plevna.

The boy was returning home from a Sunday School class at the Presbyterian Church, when the mishap occurred. The driver of the car told the police that he blew his horn and then the boy's bicycle suddenly swerved in front of his car. He was tossed some distance on the highway and suffered a fractured skull, fractured arm and multiple facial injuries.

The boy was taken to a nearby house, where he received emergency treatment a short time later from Dr. J. D. Hunt, of Marlbank. Rush's ambulance from Tweed, also called and he was taken to Kingston, where an operation on his skull was performed by Dr. D. W. Boucher. Constable Gordon Stout, Northbrook, investigated

National Capital Plan in Abeyance By Dissolution

Ottawa, April 30 — (CP) — A big, long-range project for a Washington-type capital at least the equal of any in the world was tabled in the Commons yesterday, but what happens to it now, nobody is sure.

The plan would extend the national capital area over 900 square miles of Ontario and Quebec, would cost a fabulous but unestimated sum and modernize and revamp the city entirely during a period of possibly 75 years.

Three years in the making, it may be many more in seeing the fruit of even the initial projects. The definitely is Ottawa's location.

When Queen Victoria approved the choice of Ottawa as the nation's capital, she did something which for Jacques Greber, French town planner who mastermind the plan and his assistants, turned out to be one big headache.

For the plan will necessarily involve the complete agreement and support of the federal government, the provincial governments of Ontario and Quebec, the civic governments of Ottawa and its sister city of Hull, Que., across the river, and scores of smaller municipalities.

Such degree of unanimity is not traditional in Canada's capital.

The report of the National Capital Planning Committee, which Prime Minister St. Laurent tabled in the Commons envisages the new Ottawa as a cultural, civic and, to a degree, sports, with huge buildings and vistas set aside for future needs. The centrally - located government buildings would be scattered through the area, rail lines would move to the outskirts of Ottawa and Hull, there would be new bridge and driveway arteries, and the whole would be surrounded by a "green belt" of parkways and agricultural space, with plenty of room for growth beyond.

Eventual population aimed at would be 500,000, compared with the roughly 250,000 of greater Ottawa today.

London — (AP) — Britons tuned in the staid BBC were shocked to hear oaths and curses from someone hurtling out of the ether last night.

The occasion?

A broadcast of the first postwar dinner of the Royal Academy was event expected to be as sedate as a temperance tea.

But the diners, who included Winston Churchill, the Archbishop of Canterbury and Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, got involved in a argument on modern art.

Retiring President Sir Alfred Munnings, 69, said modern painters were daubers who "cannot paint a tree to look like a tree." He went on to make slighting cracks about French modernists as Pablo Picasso and Henri Matisse.

Outraged supporters of the modern painters shouted, banged on tables and yelled language which is banned from the air all over the world.

Joseph, Ore. — (AP) — Whenever an airplane starts to land at Joseph's busy little airport, a man with a horseback goes lickety-split down the runway to chase away the deer.

The deer dote on the tender shoots of newly-planted grass on the field. They have become so used to the planes that they ignore them.

They still react to the horseman, though. He has chased away as many as 35 deer in one day.

Oklahoma City — (AP) — Oklahoma City policemen can take bandits in stride but the force is having too many casualties helping invalids get to church.

That's why Inspector Roy Berryman ordered discontinuance of the Sunday-morning service of driving invalids to church in squad cars and carrying them up the steps.

So many officers received sprained ankles, he had to put his foot down.

Citizenship Council to Explore New Ways to Help Immigrants Find Happiness in Canada

Ottawa, April 30 (CP) — New ways of helping immigrants find ultimate happiness in Canada will be explored at a meeting of the Canadian Citizenship Council here next Thursday.

The conference will formulate additional plans to help new Canadians become adjusted to the way of life in this country, and will discuss ways of helping to promote understanding between old and new Canadians.

General H. D. G. Crerar, chairman of the council, today gave some indication of the main topics.

Particular stress will be laid on the development of more cordial relations between the immigrants and people either born here or have been in Canada for a number of years.

He added that plans are already under way for the establishment of a national citizenship day at which the naturalization and citizenship ceremonies would be held.

This was in line with attempts by the council to promote an awareness by Canadians of the uncertainties and problems facing munity activities.

people endeavoring to become established in a new country.

Reviewing some of the things that have already been accomplished, Gen. Crerar said "the greatest handicap to the majority of immigrants is their unfamiliarity with the languages spoken in this country.

"However, as a result of the first national conference on immigrant citizenship problems, wide assistance has been given to new Canadians through the teaching of basic English and citizenship.

Sen. Haig Predicted Election Date but Will Not Guess Result

By DOUGLAS HOW
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, April 30 — (CP)—It's been a big and pleasant week for John Thomas Haig.

The 71-year-old Progressive Conservative Senate leader called the shots, first in the election date about 12 weeks before Prime Minister St. Laurent made it official.

It's an experience of mutes satisfaction for a man who has sat in the Manitoba Legislature and the Senate for three decades or and never once on the government side. He was named to the Upper Chamber recently before the Bennett government went into extinction in 1935.

In a throne speech address Feb. 3, he quietly indicated by the belief that Canada would go to the polls June 27, and let it go at that.

Senator Haig said he had thought it all out.

Reasoning

Back in January, he says, Mr. and Mrs. George Drew came out to Winnipeg and he watched them from the wings as they myself, "Mister, if I was prime minister of this country, I'd have to have those two running-round making an impression any longer than is absolutely necessary."

There was that reaction to the new leader of his party and also the feeling that business was slipping just enough to bring fears of a depression. So he figured there would be an early election.

When he came back to Ottawa in late January and got a look at the legislative program, he figured it would take until the 26th or 27th of April to complete.

Traditionally, July and August are bad election months and if the government wanted a June election they would pretty well have to dissolve about eight weeks before polling.

That's how he calculated and he outlined the same method to a reporter before Mr. St. Laurent virtually confirmed the date this week.

Now, in the corridors, they're ribbing him a bit and they're all just a little envious. As for Senator Haig he just grins and if you ask him how the election will go he'll answer more and say the equivalent of "not on your life; I'm resting on my laurels."

Answer Given George Drew on Insurance Risks

Ottawa, April 30 — (CP) — Air-risk insurance for Trans-Canada Air Lines' Atlantic pilots had not been bought, the Commons was informed Friday by George McGillrath, parliamentary assistant to Trade Minister Howe.

Mr. McIlraith had been asked earlier by George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader about a press report which Mr. Howe said concerned cancellation of the insurance on the pilots of T. C. A. flying on the trans-Atlantic route.

Mr. McIlraith said the only cancellation was that of non-occupational insurance instituted during the war because of war risks involving pilots who had stopovers in war theatres.

"There has been no change," he added, "in the air risk coverage provided for $20,000 for captains and $15,000 for first officers on Transatlantic flights."

Mr. McIlraith added the dropping of the insurance had had no effect on contract negotiations between T. C. A. and its pilots, which were on "a most friendly basis."

HOUSING FOR PICTON

Ottawa, April 30 — (CP)—Defence Minister Claxton told C. J. Tustin (PC — Prince Edward Lennox) in the Commons Friday it has been decided to erect a housing project for personnel of the Canadian Artillery School at Picton.

Mr. Claxton said it was intended to build 200 housing units at Picton. When they should be built would depend on the speed of construction and the supply of materials and labor.

The Canadian Press Friday erroneously reported Mr. Claxton had said that 200 married families would be erected.

Soccer Notes

Practice, practice, practice, the keynotes of a successful team, and it would appear that all teams in the league are out to produce successful teams for the fourth coming season. Word reaching Intelligencer has it that the Northern club has had several stiff workouts at the Fair Grounds and that the United boys are hard at it at the Pine Street grounds. The Batawa club are a little removed from the local scene but it is our understanding that things are a "poopin'" out there as their team prepares itself for a stiff season.

Belawa held a very successful dance last Friday evening in the Recreation Hall. Arrangements were in the hands of the club executive under the leadership of the club president Art. Duncan. At the dance a very handsome trophy was presented to the league by the Kent Shoe Co., This trophy was accepted by the league President Les Digby, who thanked the donors for their very fine gesture. It is understood that the Kent Shoe Store will display their trophy in their stores in the district so that the public might see it. The league is more than grateful to the Kent Shoe Co., for this excellent chance.

All team officials are reminded of the general meeting notice to be held at the YMCA on Tuesday next at eight o'clock. The film "The Great Game" will be shown.

Belleville United will practice at the Pine Street School Grounds on Saturday afternoon commencing at three o'clock. All players are requested to be present as well as any other persons who might like to try for the team. Games and dates for future practices will be announced at this practice.

RECORD MIGRATION

Canberra — (CP) — All records in migration to Australia seem likely to be broken this year. The government's target will probably be about 150,000 migrants for 1949 but 130,000 and possibly 150,000 new citizens may arrive by Dec. 31.

WEDDINGS

GOETTLER—LANCASTER

Before an altar banked with white calla lilies, and pink and white snapdragons, Miss Dorothy of Mr. and Mrs. William Lancaster, Belleville, was united in marriage to John H. Michael Goettler, Palmerston, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Goettler, on Saturday afternoon, in Christ Church, Belleville, at 2.30 p.m. The Reverend J. Grant Sparling, read the service.

Dana Cook, church organist, rendered the wedding music, and Miss Margaret Ann Boyd, friend of Belleville, wearing a floor length gown of pink tricia, and corsage of pink roses, sang before the ceremony, "The Lord's Prayer", and during the signing of the register, "I'll Walk Beside You."

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was very lovely in her floor length gown of white slipper satin with round nylon yoke and bustle back. Her full length veil of bridal illusion was held in place by a halo of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of sweetheart roses, stephonitis and maidenhair fern.

Miss Jean Thompson, Belleville, was bridesmaid, and wore a pale green gown of shot taffeta with crop sleeves, square neckline edged with appliqued white leaves, and matching hat. She carried an arm bouquet of yellow Sweetheart roses, mauve sweetpeas and fern.

Mr. Gordon Goettler, of Palmerston, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman, and Mr. Frank Lancaster, brother of the bride, and Mr. Harold Reid, Belleville, were ushers.

At the reception which was held at the Golden Acres Inn, the bride received a wedding navy blue faille, with navy accessories, and corsage of red Bellefonia roses, welcomed the many guests.

Following the reception, Mr. and Mrs. Goettler left for an extended motor trip to the United States. There they will visit friends and relatives, and on their return to Belleville will be living in the groom's parents, who were unable to attend the wedding. The bride chose as her travelling ensemble a navy and grey English sharkskin suit with matching topcoat, and navy accessories, and wore a corsage of red Butterfield roses. They will reside in Belleville.

Out-of-town guests were from Stratford, Palmerston and Trenton.

On April 13, a delightful miscellaneous shower was given the bride-to-be by Miss Jean Thompson and on the following Wednesday, Mrs. Lancaster entertained at a charming trousseau tea.

DORRINGTON—SILLS

Christ Church, Belleville, was the scene of a quiet wedding on Saturday, April 16, at 7 p.m., when Mary Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Sills, Marshall Rd., Belleville, was united in marriage to Edward Dalton, under Dorrington, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Dorrington, of Bolton, England. The Reverend J. Grant Sparling officiated.

After the reception, which was held at the home of the bride's parents, the young couple left for New York State and upon their return will reside at Centenary.

Out-of-town guests were from Watertown, N.Y., Detroit, Mich., and Read, Ont.

Extensive Work Of CAS Told to Women's Club

When you have risen at the early hour of five a.m., motored 115 miles to pick up a seven months' old infant which has been receiving medical aid returned the same day and on the way makes care of the feedings, you have performed just one of the many duties of a Children's Aid Society officer.

This just happened to be the experience of Miss Ruth Corbett who addressed the University Women's Club at the home of Mrs. A. May, Thursday evening.

Miss Corbett, who was introduced by Mrs. May is the assistant superintendent of the Children's Aid Society of Hastings County, and a graduate of the Social Service Training Centre of McGill University. Her address described the tremendous amount of legislation involved in the work of the society, and dealt with three phases, child protection service, unmarried parents' service and adoption service.

Child's Welfare Important

The need for the first is most urgent. As a child is entitled to responsible guardianship until 16 years of age, the society must take action immediately on learning of its neglect. The child is taken from its irresponsible parents by the officials and placed in a foster home. In seven days the case must be brought before court to prove the offence of neglect. If within one year after the child is placed in such a home, the parents clear up the circumstances necessitating the child's removal.

They may reclaim its guardianship. At this time the case is repeated before court and either permanent guardianship or restoration is settled.

In the case of unmarried parents the mother is permitted to make a decision about her child's guardianship within ten days of birth. Action may be taken outside the court at this time against the father through the Society and either a lump sum settlement or weekly protection is arranged till the child is sixteen.

Money received in this way is spent by the Society on the child alone. In case of its death, any balance remains the property of the government. Infants not requiring adoption become permanent wards of the society.

Costs 84 Cents Daily

The responsibility, care and maintenance of these wards is very great. At present the cost is eighty-four cents per day. The greatest problem is to find a suitable home for its adoption, similar to what its own home should have been. Visits are made twice a year by the officer for guardianship and periods are recorded. Nineteen dollars per month of the family allowance for each child goes to the guardians. All medical care and clothing is taken care of by the Society.

After one or two years' probation period to decide the suitability of adoption, the guardians may permanently adopt the child who becomes legally a blood relation with the same rights as the child by birth.

Miss Corbett commended the response made by the homes of this county to the appeal for guardianship and pointed out that in many cases where adoption had not been arranged, guardians are still providing normal home conditions to children even past sixteen who have warranted by good conduct and application this extended assistance.

Mrs. Howard Graham graciously thanked the speaker, appropriately comparing the work of a

23 B.C.I. Girls Inducted Into Hi-Y Fellowship

Twenty-three Belleville Collegiate Girls were inducted, last night, at the weekly rites into the Hi-Y Fellowship, at an impressive candle lighting ceremony conducted by the Ligare Girls' High-Y Club, from Ottawa. Five girls, representing the Ottawa unit, were accompanied by Miss Lillian Smith, Senior Adviser, and Mr. Arnold Fraser, Boys' Work Secretary, of the Ottawa Y.M.C.A. Miss Ruth Rats, president of the Ligare Club officiated and Mr. Arnold Fraser delivered a meaningful address, on the aims and purposes of the Hi-Y.

The Boys' Hi-Y's have been in operation since the turn of the century in North America, and since have developed their scope into the international field. Girls' Hi-Y Clubs, however are a fairly recent development. The Belleville Girls' Hi-Y Club was first started a few months ago and is rapidly becoming one of the strong service clubs, at the High School. The Hi-Y creed, binding together our high school boys and girls, in their common high purpose is "to create, maintain and extend throughout the school and community, high standards of Christian character." The mentor from the Belleville Girls' Hi-Y is Mrs. Mills, the teacher-adviser is Miss Linnen. The president is Miss Catherine Mills.

Following the ceremony the many guests attended were introduced during a social period when a light refreshments were served by the girls.

W.M.S. Conducts Morning Service At St. John's

Tweed.—Last Sunday morning, the Woman's Missionary Society of St. John's United Church, on Tweed, conducted the morning service in the absence of Rev. A. L. Sisco, who was conducting anniversary services at Cardinal a former appointment.

Mrs. Harold Burgess, wife of the United Church minister at Thomasburg, was the guest speaker.

The service was the Easter Thank-offering and Mrs. Burgess delivered a fine address along the lines of missionary work.

The President, Mrs. Lincoln Elliott, was in charge of the service and Mrs. Percy Jordan and the Canadian Girls in Training Group, which is under the auspices of the W.M.S., had charge of the worship service.

Music was provided by the Junior choir with Miss Betty Snare at the piano, organist. During the service, Miss Pamela Sharpe and Miss Snare rendered a vocal duet with Mrs. R. D. Connor playing the piano accompaniment.

Janice Kiser Entertains 13 Little Guests

A very happy time was spent at the home of little Janice Miss Kiser, Donald Street, on Wednesday afternoon, from 4 til 6, when she entertained thirteen little guests, the occasion being her eighth birthday.

The afternoon was spent playing various games, after which an attractive buffet luncheon was served, consisting of birthday cake, ice cream and pop.

As each small guest left for home, she was given a lovely little plastic basket, bearing her name, and filled with dainty homemade candies, at the bottom of which was hidden a tiny surprise.

Janice was the recipient of several pretty books, and personal gifts, for which she kindly thanked her little friends.

Club Activities

ST. ANDREW'S GLEE CLUB

Marmora— The Glee Club of St. Andrew's Church held their April meeting at the home of Mrs. Litt and Mrs. Rennie. There was a good attendance, and the president, Mrs. Thomson, presided.

Mrs. H. Campion gave the treasurer's report, stating that the two Communion table cloths had been paid for, leaving a balance of $6 on hand. The following were all re-elected for a second term.

A very fine program was prepared by Mrs. Potts, and Mrs. Hart, and consisted of two solos by Mrs. Hart, "Galway Bay" and "Sioux City Sue", with Mrs. A. F. Fraser as accompanist, two piano solos by Mrs. Fraser, a vocal solo, "In the Garden", by Mrs. Fraser, a Flower poem by E. Guest, was read by Mrs. Potts. Mrs. Sabine read a short number on "School Teachers" by Aunt Hetty. Mrs. Young gave a reading on Canada's newest province, "Newfoundland". The program concluded with Community singing.

Mrs. Campion offered her home for the May meeting and the program committee will be Mrs. Young, Mrs. Lowery and Mrs. Potts.

The hostess, Mrs. Rennie, served delicious refreshments and the afternoon came to a close with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne".

Girl Guide News

Local Association

Parents and friends of Guides and Brownies are reminded again of the Spring Tea coming up shortly and that action has definitely been started by the convener, Mrs. J. Forrester, to insure its success. Your support is needed.

Next week definite information will be published in this paper about the annual church service.

Belleville Brownies

The Brownies were very happy to welcome at their Tuesday meeting Grey Owl, Mrs. Brandcombe, who told, as only Mrs. Brandcombe can, the story of Dr. Grenfell and the Grenfell Mission in Labrador. The Brownies listened with wide eyes as Grey Owl told of the orphan children who receive love and comfort there. Their help was also enlisted by being asked to bring to their meeting at least one good used, or one new toy, each which will be sent, along with other Brownie donations, to the Grenfell Mission. Brown Owl Samuels asked Grey Owl to take Brownie Inspection which she did, thoroughly, to the benefit of the Pack.

Company 7 Guides

"What's Cooking." No. it's not a slang expression this time, it's a title of a booklet that has been available for some time, through the kindness of the Swift Canadian Co. All the Guides have their copy and are busy working on their health and Cook's Badge. There is quite a list of items to learn to cook so we are counting on Mother's help.

At their regular meeting on Wednesday, April 23, it is decided to give a donation to the "World Friendship Fund." This fund provides help for Guides in other countries and furthers Guide friendships by providing money for international camps, etc., in Canada. The Guides find that in keeping their law "A Guide is a friend to all and a sister to every other Guide."

As a preliminary to their outdoor activities, at their last meeting, the Guides had 10 nature specimens to identify. The Guides are looking forward to finding these wild flowers and trees on their hikes.

Suspended Durocher Has One Consolation, His Giant Sluggers Are Leading National League

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Leo Durocher, suspended manager of New York Giants, has one slight consolation — his sluggers are leading the National League.

The Giants seized undisputed possession of first place Friday night while Leo was flying home to confer with owner Horace Stoneham. The subject was Durocher's indefinite suspension Friday by Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler following an altercation with a fan Thursday afternoon.

It was the same old story Friday night for the Giants, with acting manager Frankie Frisch now calling the signals good hit, no pitch.

Two homers by Sid Gordon and one by Walker Cooper helped the Giants overwhelm Sunday pitching to beat Boston Braves 10-9 in 10 innings.

Clint Hartung, winner of his first two starts, was clubbed from the hill in a five-run first inning after Gordon's two - run homer gave the Giants a short - lived lead.

Nels Potter was the loser. Frisch paraded five pitchers to the hill, Sheldon Jones finally getting credit by pitching two scoreless innings.

Cincinnati's surprising Reds climbed into second place by nipping Pittsburgh 7-3 on a late rally. Ihli Werle, up from the Pacific Coast League, lost his first starting job to Howie Moss who pitched a six-hitter.

Ken Heintzman, Philadelphia Phillies' rookie relief pitcher, notched victory No. 3 at the expense of Brooklyn Dodgers 5-3 despite two homers by Roy Campanella. Puddin' Head Jones homered for the Bums.

Frost (Smoky) Burgess, rookie catcher from the Southern Association, gave Chicago Cubs a 8-4 edge over St. Louis Cards with a 10th-inning pinch single. The bases were full and there was nobody out when Burgess touched Gerry Staley for the winning blow.

Rasoli Beats Sox

In the American League, Vic Raschi smashed a persistent Boston jinx by beating the Red Sox for the first time in his career 7-1. The New York Yankees' right - hander had three to Boston last year. Bases on balls ruined Boston's Jack Kramer, making his first start of the year.

Southpaw Lou Brissie chalked up his third straight victory as Philadelphia Athletics downed Washington 6-3, to end a four - game losing streak.

The A's rallied with two in the last of the ninth to top reliefer Forrest Thompson after Washington took a one-run lead in the first half of the inning. Eddie Joost started the winning rally with a double, led the attack.

Gene Bearden, hero of Cleveland's pennant and world - series triumph last fall, defeated Detroit for the second time 4-1, on a 3-run ninth inning. He duelled with Freddie Hutchinson for eight innings before the Indians broke it up. Dale Mitchell's triple off reliefer Martin Stuart, his fourth hit, scored Boone with the final run.

Chicago White Sox and St. Louis Browns were not scheduled.

Durocher Told Not to "Talk" About Suspension

New York, April 30 (AP) — "The Lip" was silent today as he began the first full day of his second suspension from baseball in three years.

Leo Durocher, pugnacious manager of New York Giants, was under orders from his boss, Horace Stoneham, to keep still.

He will get his chance to talk next Tuesday when he appears before Commissioner A. B. Chandler in Cincinnati.

Chandler suspended him Friday following a brief fracas Thursday with a Brooklyn fan at New York's Polo Grounds.

The fan, 22-year-old Fred Boyson of Brooklyn, accused Durocher of coaching and kicking him after a 15-2 rout of the Giants by Brooklyn Dodgers.

Durocher denied he hit anybody. He said somebody tried to hit him and he grabbed it back.

Boyson's charges, said Leo, are ridiculous.

Boyson said, however, that he had asked his lawyer to seek a summons Monday against Leo, charging assault.

Durocher was en route to Boston with his team Friday when he heard the fan had been arraigned. Frisch is Manager

He named veteran Frankie Frisch acting manager, held a 20-minute press conference and then flew back to New York.

"Mr. Stoneham will give out all future statements," he said in typically-voluble Durocher. He had nothing more to say.

Durocher was suspended by Chandler for the first time in April 1947, for conduct detrimental to baseball. At the time he was manager of the Dodgers. He returned to Brooklyn last spring, then switched after one trip. He coached in mid-season.

Just as there were conflicting versions of what happened at the Polo Grounds there were different views on the Commissioner's action in suspending Leo.

One line of reasoning was that Chandler acted properly to protect Durocher from possible further disorders pending a full investigation of Thursday's incidents.

Another trend of thought was that the suspension was arbitrary, particularly in view of previous differences between Leo and the Commissioner.

Royals and Wheat Kings Confident Before 2nd Game

Winnipeg, April 30 (CP)— Brandon Wheat Kings and Montreal Royals are a cinch to wind up in a dead heat for the Canadian junior hockey title, confidence means anything.

Optimism in both camps are plentiful. Managers, coaches, players and team officials are unanimous in one thing. Their club is going to win the best-of-seven series, nobody—and, practically nobody—gives the slightest hint of hedging.

However, spectators stand now, with the second game to be played tonight in Brandon, Royals are out in front. They won the opener here Thursday night 3-2 and at the same time they convinced skeptical western fans that they would be able to match strides with the highly-touted Wheat Kings.

About the only man who has shown the smallest doubt about victory is Frank Selke, General Manager of Montreal Canadiens. Since Royals are a Canadiens' farm team, it is only natural that Selke is calling a Montreal triumph.

"I think Royals will win all right but I must admit that I'm not as certain now as I was before the first game was played," said Selke rather cryptically. The little Canadiens' boss never didn't elaborate and the only interpretation one can put on his words is that he figures Brandon will improve.

Brandon players pointed to the fact, after the opening game loss, that they have been beaten twice in a row all season. This failed to impress Royal players. When informed of the Brandon views, several of the Montreal hockeyists simply remarked: "Well, there's always a first time."

Said Coach Tag Miller, in reviewing the first game: "It that's the best Brandon can play . . . well that was one of our poorer efforts. Vancouver, outpointed Jackie

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

"LOOK SHARP, BE SHARP"

Murray Michael Sharpe, the blazer of the two handsome wrestlers in heavyweight ranks, will do his stuff against British Empire champion Fred Atkinson here tonight. Sharpe is one fine chappie on any wrestling mat and with the added incentive of the Empire crown at stake he can be expected to really pour it on. But big and strong as Mike undoubtedly is he will have to be at his rip-snorting best if he expects to take the "Australian." Atkins is one stern and hardened wrestler and when he wants to be can be as rough as he is scientific.

A very special type of bout should result when the Cardiff Giant (236 lbs.) meets big Ben Moreau (313 lbs.) Both of these fiends can be rough as well as tough and with their combined weight going up into the six hundred and fifty pound mark Manager Wali Gerver is wisely preparing to reinforce the ring. Each of the huge bearded goats thinks he can flatten the other and Morgan especially has an old score to settle for it was the Welsh Giant who caused him to lose some of his precious beard in Toronto recently.

Ben Sharpe, who is often mistaken for his brother Mike in an aristocratic sort of way, considers another good-looking athlete in Art Brady of Colorado. Brady, the "Arizona son of wrestling" is brand-new here but comes in with a fine reputation. He's young it and something more to get past the rapid-firing Ben.

THEY'RE BITING

The stream-studded north country is the mecca today for the buckaroos of the rod and reel. Starting early this morning, in fact some took off yesterday so as to be in the first breaking of dawn on crashing place that are one of the trout fishermen en route for their favorite haunts. The boys got a "break" in the weather department with the arrival of the season's day's start. Right now the rubber-booted clan will be searching the creeks in quest for the elusive little fellows and the big ones, too, and the conditions are ideal for success when the piscatorial, delicacy reposing in sizzling golden butter in the frying pan awaits the ravenous appetites of the fishermen. Brother, that's a meal fit for a king.

And speaking of fishing the popular Solunar Fishing Tables by John Alden Knight, will once again be published in this newspaper starting today. The tables were first published Saturday for the first few weeks then will make a daily appearance on the sports page. The tables are scores of tables, as vouched for by fishermen marks it as one of the most popular fishing features. Don't miss it.

MISSED AGAIN!

With Belleville and Napanee appearing to be definitely out of the running as senior Central Ontario Baseball League entries, the Kingston leaguers, it is believed, will be seriously consider the applications of Brockville and Smiths Falls. According to the info received here, Kingston, Peterborough and Bata are favorably inclined but Oshawa does not think too highly of the idea. Transportation and long jumps, the latter of an additional $200, would be the issues.

However it has been suggested that the loop be divided into sections with an interlocking schedule. Under this arrangement the two outside teams, Smiths Falls and Oshawa could arrange to play their two home-and-away series other on a holiday date with a double header. This would eliminate the cost of one trip. However this will likely be decided on at the meeting of the COBL executive scheduled for Memorial Arena on Sunday, May 8th.

"NAUGHTY, NAUGHTY"

The Kingston Athletic Club we hear from authoritative OBA authority has applied to that body for a bye in senior baseball during the season. The also reported Secretary Bill Snyder has promised the matter will be taken up by his association. Now at the same time he feels that the COBL executive will not look with any favor on the idea and that they should they. With teams like Brockville and Smiths Falls comprising the loop, why should a team in the midst of things be given a bye? Why did they not enter a team in the COBL? Nope, we are of the opinion that Oshawa, Peterborough, Batawa, Kingston Locos and other squads will give that suggestion the well-known cold water treatment.

LEAF'S OPEN WEDNESDAY

The AHA finals home opening of the Toronto Maple Leaf Baseball Club takes place on Wednesday, May 4th, at Maple Leaf Stadium with the Maple Leafs meeting the Newark Bears. Game time has been set for 2.00 p.m. with the first game festivities commencing at 2.15 p.m. The Honorable Ray Lawson, Lieutenant-Governor of the Province of Ontario, will throw out the first ball, with Toronto's Mayor Hiram E. McCallum assisting. The official gathering will be supplemented by the presence of Frank J. Shaughnessy, President of the International League. The famed 49th Highlanders' Band will be in attendance also.

"UP AND AT 'EM LADS"

The champion ANAF Veterans entry in the Belleville Service Darts League received a jolt on Thursday night when the Hasty Pees defeated them two matches out of three for the championship of the second half of the season schedule. The ANA Effers took the first match by 7-6 and the second by 6-5 and 6-5 scores. Play was the deciding match in the final game when both squads needed "double-ones" to win.

The final series for the league title will be played in the ANAF clubrooms, Front Street, on Monday night starting at 8 o'clock. The series will be the best three of five matches and will likely go the limit before the 1949 champions are decided. ANAF's won the championship of the first half of the schedule and had they emerged victorious on Thursday night would have copped the title without benefit of playoff matches. Interest is at fever heat in the finals and a large crowd of miniature harpoon enthusiasts will likely be on hand to see these veterans of the dart boards "do their stuff."

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, April 30 — (AP) — Manager Tommy Thomas and infielder Ellis Clary of Baltimore Orioles are under suspension because Clary climbed into the stands after an abusive fan, Manager Leo Durocher of New York Giants likewise has been suspended because he has been charged with clouting a cash customer . . . Baseball owners have inducted a new member into their club's responsibilities. It is when it comes to protecting its players from the spectators. It is well understood that the purchase of a ticket entitles a fan to heckle the performers and that under no circumstances is a player privileged to retaliate . . . It also says on every ticket that the purchaser may be ejected from the park for failure to follow certain rules of behavior . . . Apparently it's time for the ushers and special police to perk up their ears and occasionally give the heavies or fans who overstep the bounds for . . . This isn't an attempt to excuse Thomas, Clary and Durocher for anything they may have done. But we don't see why a guy in a ball park should be allowed to shout out things for which he'd be plinched if he merely whis-

Writers Divided On Final Outcome Of Senior Series

Ottawa, April 30 (CP)— A big question mark sprinkled with a few ifs and buts provides an uncertain setting as Regina Capes and Ottawa Senators prepare to mix it up tonight in the second game of the best-of-seven series for the Allan Cup.

Senators have a 1-0 advantage by virtue of their 7-2 victory Thursday night.

But the fact that the odds are about the same as before the series is one indication that the betting fraternity is reluctant to take the plunge either way on the outcome of the Canadian Senior hockey final.

The money is riding about 7 to 5 for Senators to take the series and is expected to drop pretty close to even on tonight's game.

This general uncertainty about the outcome of the current series was echoed around the auditorium here by many of the oldtime hockey fans. Most of them figured it might go to the full seven games before a decision is reached.

With one exception, that was the sentiment of sport scribes in Ottawa for the game.

Scotty Melville of the Regina Leader-Post figures that the Capes play as they did in the third period of Thursday night's game, and if the defence can pull out, "they're going to make it an interesting series."

Lytle Writes Off Caps

Andy Lytle of the Toronto Star has already written off the Capes, however, giving the Senators the advantage of speed against age.

"If Regina wins, it will be like the loot in the pits on race tracks—they'll have to up and pass a miracle."

Tommy Shields of the Ottawa Citizen summed things up in his column when he said:

"After watching (Thursday) night's game, I don't think there will be much closer to a decision regarding the ultimate outcome of the titular series."

Bill Westwick in his Ottawa Journal considers:

"It promises to be a hard fought series and while Regina's defensive team can let down and expect to nurse any scoring advantages . . . it will be anything but easy for forwards don't improve on that effort. After all, it was their first game in the east and their opening game on the auditorium surface."

There's been a lot of talk thus far in the series about the effects of the different shape and size of the rink here.

One suggestion is that the results are more psychological than anything else.

The rink here is about 10 feet narrower than the Regina ice surface and is more rounded at the ends than most.

Toronto's Sanicki Pounding Ball At .364 Average

(By the Associated Press)

Ed Sanicki, 24-year-old sophomore outfielder of Toronto Maple Leafs, is giving International League pitchers plenty of sleepless nights.

Whacking along at .364, he has slammed 12 hits in 33 trips with half of his blows home runs.

Sanicki, who led the loop in runs batted in with 107 last year although hitting only .286, is hitting in the style that made him a terror in the inter-State League in 1946-47.

The Toronto mauler hit .307, socked 30 homers and drove in 144 runs for Wilmington in 1946. The following season he hit 320, hit 37 homers and drove in 108 tallies.

Although he led the league in runs batted in last year and slugged 21 homers, his showing was a disappointment. There's little doubt that he will advance to the parent Philadelphia Phillies next spring if he continues any where near his present pace.

Sanicki banged his sixth homer this season Friday night as the Leafs trounced Jersey City Giants 8-3. Dick Welger, however, was the big gun in the Toronto attack. Welger belted a triple and a pair of singles and drove home three runs.

The Leafs clinched the game with a seven run drive in the third inning to allow veteran Ed Wright to breeze to his second victory of the year.

Syracuse Chiefs edged Montreal Royals 1-0 to tie the Royals for first place. Lefty Al Boresh held the Royals on five hits while Omar Lown yielded only three.

Newark Bears edged Rochester Red Wings 4-3 with Ted Sepkowski supplying the punch with two home runs. Rookie Steve Bilko hit a homer for Rochester one of seven hits given up by Earl Toolson.

Solunar Periods in the Fla. Islands

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT

Noted Sportsman, Author, And Creator of Solunar Tables

St. Petersburg, Florida
On Board Rube Allyn's boat,
Bide-A-Wee:

A great many times during past years folks have told me that they don't need Solunar Tables to tell them when to fish. "Why go into so many fish around our camp," they say, "that we can go out and catch 'em any time."

Frankly, I always accept that one with a grain of salt. But I don't say so. The people who say it actually believe it. No use hurting folks' feelings.

Last week, while at the Everglades Rod and Gun Club, Harry Friedman of Miami told me that I didn't contradict him. Instead I expressed an ardent desire to see a place where there were thousands of snook, redfish, jack, tarpon, and so on, who would blithe lures readily any time of day.

So Harry made a fishing party. He chartered the Snooky, out of Everglades, Capt. Bob Thompson and Mate Elmer Williams. In the party were Harry Friedman, one of Miami's leading sportsmen, Joe Brooks, Manager of the Metropolitan Casting Fishing Tournament, Charley Ebbets, nationally known photographer, Eddie Miller, well-known Miami tackle dealer, and yours truly.

Seasoned Anglers

All of these men are seasoned anglers. Any one alone grouped they will more than hold their own with all comers. They know their fish intimately. They use good tackle and use it well, expertly. It's a large order to tell that crowd anything about fishing. Joe Brooks has named the Solunar Tables for years — East Coast, Midwest, West Coast, Canada and Alaska. He knows that they are valid. But the other three were unconvinced and didn't hesitate to say so. They were polite about it but firm. Very firm.

(It is difficult to write this. Behind the boat, not over two feet from where I sit, are seven little "chinchilla" dunes of sooty scaup begging for a handout. Now and then I must suspend operations and toss them some bits of bread.)

The first day we were out bright and early. Harry took us to one of his "hidden lakes." There are many of these in the Ten Thousand Islands, but this is a particularly good one. The approach is through a concealed tunnel among the mangroves and the place is seldom fished, even by the commercial netters.

Poor Results

Much to Harry's disappointment the fish failed to respond to our best efforts. To be sure, we took a few but they were small ones. In short, the fishing was not much better than you can find most anywhere in southern Florida. Then Charley Ebbets spoke up.

"Hey, Professor, what time does the book say? When are these fish going to bite!"

"Be patient, my boy." I told him. "We won't get much fishing until around ten o'clock."

That announcement was greeted with raucous and full impolite noises, indicating disbelief.

Then came ten o'clock and with it the major Solunar Period. Snook, big snook, bolted out from under the overhanging mangroves and fairly inhaled our lures. All of us were using fly rods and the big streamer flies that Harry had tied up for the trip really did great execution.

Harry Friedman hooked an old buster of a redfish and then another which tied the fly-rod record for the year in the Miami Tournament. Between the two boats, we landed over one hundred fish during the space of the next two hours. A few of these we saved and we had snook fillets for lunch, but the great majority were returned to the water.

Around twelve o'clock the activity began to taper off and by twelve thirty we could cast our arms off without finding a single taker.

Performance Repeated

That afternoon the performance was repeated. Not a single fish was taken by either boat until the minor Solunar Period came in around four o'clock. Then we had about half an hour of active fishing, during which Joe Brooks and I came ashore with a couple of monstrous tackle busters. And that was that.

My hecklers were a bit less noisy that evening and we talked of other things. I didn't say "I told you so." It was better to let them ponder on the events of the day.

Sunday morning we arose before daylight and repaired to new fishing grounds. It was a repetition of the day before, only the weather was even more clean-cut. No fishing to speak of until around ten thirty, when the major Solunar Period "came in." Then the fishing was fast and furious. It was not uncommon for all five rods to be fighting fish at the same time.

At around twelve thirty the activity began to taper off and by one o'clock it was almost impossible to catch a fish. The day's booked and released about four hundred fish during that two-hour major Solunar Period.

Fay Tribute

When the other boat at last drew abreast of us, I noticed that Harry and Eddie Miller and Charley were standing up, elbow to elbow, facing me. Then those three clowns removed their hats and bowed low from the waist.

Charley was the spokesman. "When a man's right, he's right, and we've got to hand it to you, Professor, we doff our hats."

After all, any couple game fish are pretty much like game fish the world over. Forget for when Mother Nature tells them to and they rest between times. Around Miami, down the Florida Keys and over in the Everglades, sport fishermen are learning that it pays to keep track of the daily Solunar Periods.

Better Golf

By Sam Snead

Here is a golfer swinging down to the ball with speed. There's one thing wrong with this picture and I hope you've noticed it. The ball is too far forward. Of course you do play the ball forward of centre for wood clubs, or for long irons but this ball would have been better positioned if it were moved back half the distance to the clubhead. The golf form of this player, except in details (try and spot them), is first to admit is fine. Yes, Professor, we doff our hats."

After all, any couple game fish are pretty much like game fish the world over. Forget for when Mother Nature tells them to and they rest between times. Canadian Sport Snapshots

By TREVOR ICETON
(Canadian Press Sports Writer)

Toronto, April 30 — (CP) — Along with backaches, creaking joints and aching feet, the lack of top-notch golfers in Eastern Canada is blamed on the weather.

This is often pointed as the reason British Columbia produces some of the best golfers in the Dominion.

"But we can't keep on forever giving the climate credit for this state of affairs," says Rex — (Guelph Mercury) MacLeod.

"The plain truth of the matter is that British Columbia endeavors to promote golf more than other Canadian provinces," says Rex. "If a young golfer shows signs of a golfing aptitude he is taken in tow early by a professional and taught the proper golf-busting tactics without having to lay cash on the line."

As proof that B. C.'s policy has paid off, Rex recalls that some of the best golf in the Canadian championships last year was played by Vancouver's Walt McElroy. He points out that the Canadian junior crown is also held by a Vancouverite, Bill MacWhinney.

The Canadian Open last year was won by United States pro Max Chuck Congdon, but Walt McElroy posted the lowest Canadian score of the tournament.

"Vancouver will make a strong bid to retain the junior crown this year," warns MacLeod, and "young golfers in that city are being tutored free of charge by the pros."

"A similar scheme in the east would go a long way toward improving the calibre of the game in this country. Canadian golf might become so proficient at pitching and putting that eventually one of them might win the Canadian Open."

Hockey Medicine

In these days of biff and bash hockey, there's plenty of work for the M. D.'s. Gone are the days when trainers took care of bruises and cuts. Now every team in the NHL has its medical staff.

Bunny (Toronto Telegram) Morganson took a quick squint through Maple Leafs Gardens's hospital and reports:

"Physical attendants are on hand to assist (two) doctors immediately a player is hurt or a spectator has a flying puck . . .

"In this modern hockey panorama we have trainers and physiotherapists . . . the trainer now is strictly an equipment boy."

London, April 30 (CP)—Mickey The Gigger Laughlin, Hot finally won a race.

Mickey The Gigger is the four-year-old horse. As a two-and three-year-old, he ran under the name of Mickey The Clown but he asked for permission to change the name to Mickey The Lark.

Mickey raced under that title as a four-year-old, and didn't win a race. So Peter Stone had his name changed to Mickey The Gigger.

In his second race this season, Mickey finally made it. He won at Newmarket, paying 10-1.

So Mickey had the last laugh—at least, a giggle.

Bookmakers got many a laugh out of their jokes on bald, bespectacled Phil Turner, five-foot, four-inch amateur steeplechase jockey.

They would take bets against him even staying on a horse, let alone winning a race. And good-natured Phil, who gave the race crowds more laughs than dive bombs, would say:

"At least I'll can't stay on a horse I know when to part with it without getting hurt."

In 11 years of steeplechasing he fell from his mount 201 times — but he won 12 races.

The last time was at Fontwell when Jack Thumper, came down at the second last jump in the first race. This time it was serious. He was taken unconscious to hospital, where he died.

Ironically, it was Thumper that brought him close to winning. Thumper carried him to second place at Windsor a few days before his fatal fall.

Port Colborne To Tangle With Rouyn Flashes

(By The Canadian Press)

Rouyn Flashes and Port Colborne Merchants will open their Eastern Canada Intermediate Hockey finals at Port Erie next Monday and Tuesday. Third game in the best-of-three series, if necessary, will be played here Thursday.

Merchants eliminated Gananoque Legionnaires in Toronto on Thursday to take the Ontario Hockey Association title while Rouyn downed Thurso Lumber Kings to win the Quebec and District Maritime intermediate title.

The east-west final of the Canadian Amateur Junior Basketball Championships likely will be played after All Vancouver Friday, Ebbie Bowering, President of the Vancouver Amateur Basketball Association, labelled a report that Toronto Y.M.C.A. has announced their withdrawal from play Winnipeg Light Infantry for the title as "the best news I have ever had."

Charles Goldstein, former city magistrate, said Friday at Brockton he would ask the Chesterfield Kings with a committee of 25 persons to ask Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler that Leo Durocher's indefinite suspension be made for life. Goldstein, now President of the Voluntary Public Defenders Committee of King's County, Incorporated, said the committee felt that Durocher's return to baseball would "restore its dignity and damage its reputation."

The official paid attendance at Friday's Yankee Stadium game between the New York Yankees and Boston Red Sox was 24,089. The official paid attendance at Thursday's game at the Polo Grounds between the New York Giants and Brooklyn Dodgers was —honest—24,069.

At Geneva, N.Y., tiring of Maurice Peatros, 21, Pittsburgh, Negro flyweight boxer and pitcher, was announced Friday by Tom Ravalhire, business manager of the Geneva Robins of the Class-C Border League.

Coaltown, the colt nobody wanted to single when he won the De Grace last week, is going to get some travelling companions today in the $50,000-added Gallant Fox Handicap at New York's Jamaica track. Seven horses are entered along with Coaltown, unbeaten to date this season, for the 1 1/16-mile event.

Last Saturday everything scratched out of the Fairway Burke Handicap at Havre, and Coaltown merely walked over the track to pick up the money.

At Prague, Czechoslovakia's Davis Cup team, winner of the European zone championships the past two years, is a 2-0 lead over Monaco Friday as 1950 competition for the International Tennis Trophy got under way.

Jaroslav Drobny and Vladimir Cernik, the Czechs star singles players, won straight sets of a set. Drobny defeated Borges Pasquier 6-0, 8-1, 8-0. Cernik polished off Alexander Noghues Monsco's No. 1 player, 6-3, 6-2, 6-2.

At Glasgow, East Fife Friday trounced Hearts 5-1 in a Scottish Football League, Division A match originally scheduled for March 26. The postponement was stated to be played Saturday afternoon but was advanced one day.

DRAMA FESTIVAL IN CALGARY 1956

Toronto, April 30 (CP)—Calgary will be the scene of the 1956 Dominion Drama Festival, a D.D.F. Board of Governors meeting was told Friday.

This will be the first time the country-wide competition has been held in Alberta. Some years ago it was announced the festival would be held in Edmonton, but difficulties of obtaining a theatre made it necessary to change the location to Calgary.

A MESSAGE TO OUR CUSTOMERS:

Christian's Electric and Hardware announce the sale of ownership of the Belleville Branch to Mr. Henry Little, who is taking over the business immediately.

We are pleased to announce to the thousands of customers whose business we have enjoyed in the Belleville District, that we have succeeded in finding a purchaser for this business who is thoroughly experienced in all of the various lines that we have supplied you with and who has agreed to maintain and carry on the various services that you are entitled to in connection with the purchase of stoves, appliances, and other lines, whose franchises we have enjoyed.

We might add that many attractive alternative propositions were made to us for the sale of our lease, but we deliberately refrained from leaving our customers without adequate and continuing expert service, not only in the field of service of appliances, etc., but to adequately serve your needs in hardware and our various lines that we have sold to you.

Mr. Henry Little, our successor, comes of a family who have been hardware people for many, many years, and will, I am sure, be able to do an even better job for you than we have, as he, as owner, will be there in charge himself.

I must, at this time, thank you through this medium, as it is impossible to meet personally the thousands who have favored me with business, for their loyal support. It has been a pleasure to me personally to have brought to you thru us, the 4 years of our operation, many thousands of dollars worth of items that you required.

I will always have most happy memories of our Belleville operation and hope that, as you pass back and forth through our City of Oshawa, that we may have the pleasure of keeping up our most pleasant acquaintanceship with you.

To the various Civic Officials, the Police and Fire Departments, and to others including the Chamber of Commerce and other bodies, and to our loyal staff, we thank you for your splendid co-operation and help that you have been to us.

As we mentioned in our offering of the business some three months ago, extensive and rapidly growing merchandising plans in other fields and most especially our new wholesale Division made it impossible for us to adequately service your needs and to give personal attention to this business.

I am very sure that Mr. Henry Little will, as you learn more of his operation, carry on and expand the service and tradition of this well-established firm.

My boast about Horse Sense bidding does not stop with the claim that it is easiest. Included is the insistence that it is the most accurate. At least it is the most accurate yet known.

This does not mean that it will never be defeated in any deal. Or that it will not sometime make more in some deal. A special play by one side or the other may influence the result.

There was a deal like this:

NORTH
♠7 4 3 2
♥7 4 3 2
♦A 2 3
♣A Q 3

WEST
♠J 10 9 5
♥K 9 8
♦Q 8 6
♣10 7 6

EAST
♠A K 8
♥Q 10 6
♦9 7 4 2
♣J 8 4 2

SOUTH
♠Q 6
♥A K 10 8 3
♦K 10 5
♣K 9 5

The bidding went like this:

South	North
1 H	1 NT
2 H	3 H
6 H	Pass

South has a count of six tricks. North has a count of only three. This total of nine is not enough for game in hearts which calls for the taking of ten tricks.

A responder is assumed to have two tricks. If he does not pass, he admits having more than two. If his response is no-trump, three of his tricks are acknowledged to be high cards.

So, the one no-trump response by north shows three high cards. However, only an increase in number consumes the third suit trick. Therefore, north did not use up his third suit trick.

North used up his third trick with his raise to three hearts. The two south raises in number make an overbid of one trick. Despite this, declarer took his needed ten tricks.

Opening lead from west was the spade jack. By guessing which way to finesse, diamonds, ten tricks are easy. But how about taking ten tricks without trying to finesse by a guess?

Find the way this is done. It is good hunting.

RECORD STEEL OUTPUT

London — (CP) — Britain's steel output in March showed a rise to a record level with an annual rate of 18,296,000 tons. This follows the record production in February and establishes an annual rate of 15,850,000 tons for the first quarter of this year, by far the highest quarterly figure ever recorded.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was eating her grapefruit diet this morning, saying to pop, William, I wish you'd try not to take too mutch work on your shoulders at the office today. I'm thinking of calling up Maud Hews and suggesting that we go over there for bridge tonite, and I dont relish the mental picture of you practically falling asleep at the card table, she said.

Dont worry, my dear, I'll be as sharp as a steel trap, pop said. Call her up by all means, he said, and me and ma think I'd better wait till you come home and see there's no danger of you sitting all evening over your wrangling cards wishing you were a thousand miles away in bed.

I'll be rite on my toes and as brite as a new penny, pop said. I'll be so keen I wont even need good cards, he said.

And when he came home for supper he said to ma, Here I am, my dear, shinily sparkling. You can call up the Hewses. Herb Lewis got in touch with me and wanted me to go bowling, but I told him I would not think of wasting my flashing intelligence on meer muscular effort, he said.

Now tell them you'll get in rite back in touch with him and tell him you'll ma said, I know how mutch you injoy bowling compared to how little you injoy bridge, she said, and pop said, Okay, that makes everything fine, because just as it happens, Herb told me he'd expect me at the bowling alleys unless he hears to the contrary.

Well, I think you rnite at least of waited till you heard my views on the matter before coming to any such understanding, ma said, and pop said, Herb up and let him hear to the contrary.

All rite, I'll call Herb up and let him hear to the contrary.

It's too late now, ma said. Maud called me up and we decided to go and inspect the new upholstery class in the High School bilding and see if they have a course in slip covers, she said, and pop said, Yes gods, It's a women's world.

Being the end of the subject,

WE'LL MEET AGAIN

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

Fidelis:

There was a feeling of peace in seeing Penny, a feeling of reality that she felt was lost in living in Gregg's polished world and with the charming worldly Millicent.

Penny cried, "Guess what? Oh, I wish we could celebrate wildly!" She took a deep breath. "Mac has sold Chris' play! Yes, he did! He didn't tell me until last night. And it's already in rehearsal! Oh, I'm so glad for Chris and glad for us because we have such a little bit of money!"

Gay stood still. "Chris will be famous!"

"Oh, he doesn't care a hang about being famous," Penny said, "He'll never let them. Wait and dine him, and he'll never make a speech! He just thinks the satisfaction of doing something good and getting paid because one must eat!"

Mac came in. "Didn't I tell you I'm famous, too? I'm wearing the worn my only pair of shoes thin but it was worth the fight. In three weeks it's going on."

"Won't Chris come back for the premiere?" Gay asked.

Mac lighted a cigaret. "No. He'd much rather play tennis with Evelyn Ewing."

Somehow he couldn't go back to the penthouse with Gregg and his mother and put on a new dress and talk of where they'd go tonight. Why, that wasn't important! Chris' play was in rehearsal! That was important! That was something to talk about! That was a personal triumph! And it was her play written out of Chris' love and his understanding and his poverty.

Dismissing the chauffeur, she walked with the others today. Girls looked at her and Gay thought, "Don't envy me! Once I walked to save a dime. I'm only living on borrowed luxury now. Once I used to hurry from the shop to the studio and walk with Chris down the avenue at night. I was happy then just to walk beside a man like him. And then he'd look at me, it didn't make any difference where I was or what I wore!"

She looked up, and she was at the old house again. She went inside and walked up the flights of dark steps. The hall was dark. Opening the door to the apartment where Chris had lived, she stepped inside. The room was bare and chilly.

It wasn't Gregg Randolph's finances which made her empty room. It was Gay who had been taught values by Chris Mallory and a little girl whose love had made a bitter man happy and whole again. It wasn't Gregg's fiancee, exquisitely dressed, wearing his ring, who turned his face to the wall and died. It was a girl who loved Chris Mallory and who cried because now she knew it.

She thought, "I kept a false, shallow thing, Alan's love, alive in my heart. Chris, I love you. You can't hear me and you don't know. I don't want power and triumph. I want you. Worlds separate us, you said. I've seen both worlds and I want your world. Chris, as long as I live half of me will be where you are, the best half that being poor and knowing you made me."

* * *

At dinner she said, "I just heard today that a play by Chris Mallory opens in three weeks."

"Who is Chris Mallory?" Millicent Randolph asked.

Gay thought, "He's the man I love. He has dark hair and eyes. His mouth is bitter at times, and then it's a boy's amusing mouth. He knows everything and he's learned from hard experience. His laughter does your heart good."

She said, "He's an old friend of mine."

"You must tell me about him sometime," said Gregg. "I'm jealous. But of course I'll get tickets for the opening."

In the drawing - room where coffee was served he said, "I took a look at the yacht today, Gay. The Fidelis is the only thing you have to be jealous of. We're going to have a festive christening next week. Mother and I have made out the guest list and all your old friends will be invited to take a weekend cruise."

"Dear," asked Millicent, "won't you get a tremendous kick in seeing Margo and Frances and all the others with their latest husbands or boy friends? I want it to be a very gay party. It will establish you again."

Gay gave her a grateful smile. "You're very good to me."

"I think," said Gregg, "that we should give a toast to the Fidelis."

Gay walked out on the patio. "You see, Chris," she thought. "We're climbing but in different directions. Perhaps we'll meet again some day and be cool and indifferent to each other because we must." She sighed. "Fidelis. That's pretty, Gregg. Thank you for reminding me that I belong to you."

On a warm sunny afternoon the Fidelis was appropriately christened with champagne. Old friends, Frances Lee, bored and twice married, with a Swedish count at her side, Margo Stevens, a doll-like blonde creature, Marz Archer, tired, Jimmy and others responded not only to the invitation to the christening but to the weekend cruise.

"Like old times to see you, Gay," said Frances.

Margo tried to light a cigaret in the wind. "Some people have all the luck. I know now why Gregg wouldn't fall for me. I made bold overtures but he simply would not notice me."

Fred was impatient. "When do we shove off? The skyline looks better from a distance."

Familiar faces, familiar voices to Gay. She had played with the pink and white Margo when she was five. She and Frances had shared the same tent at camp. Fred and Jimmy had come to her twelfth birthday party. Old friends. But where had they been when she was modeling dresses for Marchand?

Millicent was resting in a deck chair.

Gay, I can't save my surprise another minute."

Margo said, "Gay carries a lucky charm. What are you going spring on her now? A castle or just a tiny chateau? Hold your breath, Gay. It'll be tremendous. Get your surprise out of your system, Millicent. On this cruise I want to relax and get a premature sunburn."

"It's neither a castle nor a chateau," said Millicent, smiling in the sunlight. "It's a villa. Some one told me of a perfectly charming place in Miami. You and Gregg will want to be in Miami part of the year, Gay, and you simply must have a house. I'm flying to Florida Monday to see it and if I think it's nice enough, you and Gregg can come down and have a look at it. Now that that's out, you can run along to your cocktails. I'm going to take a nap."

"You're spoiling me," said Gay.

"Just give me a mother-in-law like that," said Frances. "Just once!"

"Why did we bring so many people along?" Gregg asked. "I can see I'm not going to have a minute alone with you."

"You're not going to — beginning now," said Frances. "Your decision, Mr. Fiances and get to dress for dinner. Gay, give us a suggestion, please. Startle us and make us feel badly."

It was, in a way, good to be back in the fold again, she thought, dressing for dinner in a room in which her every whim in decoration had been carried out. The silver on the dressing table, the linens, and bedspreads all had her monogram. The field flowers she loved were in a tall vase on the bookcase. Even her favorite magazines were there.

Was this happiness, she wondered — was this triumph? Frances had ignored her on the street one day, Margo, seeing her a few months ago, had smiled lamely. Now they were her good friends again, planning to see her in the future, and reminding her that they had been friends since childhood.

She looked at herself, at the slim graceful lines of the blue chiffon dinner gown. She looked at the solitaire that caught the light and the diamond bracelet Gregg had given her only yesterday. Her hair was coppery and shining. "I'm afraid I'll lose contact with Chris' world. I'm afraid that these people who live on a merry-go-round and take love lightly will make me lose Penny and Mac. I won't lose them! If I have to live two lives, I'll always go back to the place where I found Christ"

At dinner Margo folded her white hands and said, "I hear so much talk about a play that is opening next week."

Frances, sleek and sophisticated in black, said, smiling, "You'll be hearing more of the playwright, darling. He's a hard-boiled newspaper man, and handsome enough to be in pictures. Imagine this! He isn't coming for the opening! He said he can't be bothered. He'd rather stay in Nassau and play tennis with an English girl. he's in love with."
